NIGHT WALL ST. CLOSING PRICES

U. S. SEEKS TO FORCE STRIKE PEACE

Today

Really a Moving Picture. New Bonds for Old. Wonderful Miss Perkins. But Suppose They Earn It?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN THE White House last night President Roosevelt was to see a newsreel by Pathe, reproducing in pictures and sound, a labor riot outside a steel mill at Ambridge, Pa. The President will not forget the picture, and will want anybody in his administration that takes our strike epidemic lightly to see the picture also.

First you see strikers picketing the mill. The sheriff has told them not to pass a certain line. They are young men, excited, angry, and pass outside the line. The square-jawed sheriff warns them, still they come closer.

A CORPS of deputy sheriffs comes rapidly, each with a white band on his arm to show that he represents the law, and a sawed-off shotgun, resting on his right forearm.

The mob spirit awakens, hatred springs up between men that have been neighbors and friends. One striker is beaten with a club. Fighting starts, then the shotguns are heard, smoke rises.

The majority have shot into the air. The strikers run. Bare hands cannot stand against firearms. But not all have shot into the air. One man lies dead, another, wounded, is carried away on the back of a friend.

That picture ought not to be possible in the world's richest country with courts to settle quarrels and unlimited power residing in the government.

IN SULLIVAN County, Indiana, martial law is established with National Guardsmen in control, following three explosions in one night connected with labor troubles.

Also, the Philadelphia police report that "khaki shirts" preparing to march on Washington carried "loaded pistols, knives, clubs and blackjacks" under the khaki shirts.

The Khaki Shirt movement that had announced "1,500,000 men will descend on the capital from nine states and install President Roosevelt as the nation's dictator," amounts as yet to as little as the "seven tailors of Tooley street." But Hitler did not amount to much either a short time ago.

THE UNITED STATES calls in old bonds, puts out new bonds. It will sell for cash five hundred million dollars worth of the new bonds. The result will be loading on the backs of taxpayers an annual interest charge that would soon pay off the bonds.

The government could have paid off those bonds and could pay off all other bonds now outstanding, with new money signed by the government, that would have been exactly as good as the bonds themselves. If that were done twenty billion dollars would be put into circulation and prosperity would return.

MISS PERKINS, Secretary of Labor, informs government "conciliators" that "you have no right to tell any editor what he may or may not print in his news or editorial columns." Miss Perkins seems to have read the Constitution. She ought to read it to some of the others.

NRA THINKS child movie stars are paid "more than they should be paid," and is distressed about "directors receiving five or six times the salary of the President." The directors will quote Johnson, "comparisons are odious," and suggest, reasonably, that the question is not how much they get, but whether they EARN what they get.

If one mining engineer can tell you where to find gold, and another only tells you where you can find nothing, you would rather have the former, even at a higher salary. You might even divide the gold with him "50-50." That's all there is to the "too big salary" question.

THE DOCTORS, gathered in Chicago, mention 15,608 recent new cures of cancer, making a total of 24,448 cases known to have been cured.

What is more important, Dr. Mayo tells us our lives would be longer if we would take care of ourselves.

Most important, proper care will make the brain last ten years longer, in good condition.

He suggests that it is useless to keep a man alive until ninety and let his brain die at seventy.

WHEN YOU go West as far as Oklahoma City, you find Americans that do not like the crime wave, or kidnapers included in it.

Yesterday an Oklahoma City judge sent "Machine Gun" Kelly, and his wife, Kathryn, to jail for life, under the "Lindbergh Law," for kidnaping Charles F. Urschel. It took only three days to reach that conclusion.

In connection with that one kidnaping, six persons have been sent to prison for life, including Harvey Bailey, "super-badman."

IN THE news comes gruesome items from Shanghai shedding light on our "civilization."

Generalissimo Chiang Kaishek is hurriedly rushing to Kiangsi province 10,000 hospital beds to be ready to handle the wounded.

THE AMERICAN Federation of Labor officially opposes "any United States move toward inflation as a danger to wage-earners." There is a worse danger than "inflation" for ten million men that were once "wage-earners," and are now without jobs. That is the danger of continuing idle indefinitely.

You can't put men to work with resolutions, or with talk about "an honest dollar." Any dollar that would buy something would suit those ten millions idle.

MINERS COOL TO OWNERS' QUALIFIED CHECKOFF

Johnson Says Diggers Who Fail to Work Delay Recovery

As the National Labor Board was meeting in Washington to lay plans for assuming jurisdiction in labor disputes such as the mine strike, "holidaying miners" indicated that the qualified "checkoff" agreement offered by captive mine owners would not end the dispute that has crippled Western Pennsylvania's coal industry.

The National Labor Board was meeting this afternoon to lay plans for enforcing arbitration of such labor disputes.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, in Washington, declared that if the captive mine operators sign agreements along the line suggested in their letter to President Roosevelt, the National Labor Board should assume jurisdiction in the dispute—and force arbitration by peaceful means.

Senator Robert Wagner, chairman of the Labor Board, according to Washington dispatches, was in executive session with his colleagues, deciding how to force the ending of such strikes.

JOHNSON HITS HAGGLING

Johnson, declaring haggling over the question of whether or not the checkoff should be on a voluntary basis would be inexcusable, said:

"I never have believed in the union practice of trying to force members to submit to involuntary deduction of pay for dues from their envelopes.

"I think that every captive coal miner now on strike should make personal, individual, voluntary allotment of his pay in writing to his employers, if he wishes the checkoff system established as the union now contends he does."

The strikers have stubbornly fought for the checkoff because in deducting $1 per month from their pay the steel company oper-

VERDICT FOUND AGAINST FORD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—(AP.) — Verdict of $100,000 against Henry Ford was awarded today by a jury in the suits involving the Detroit manufacturer and the Sweeten Automobile Company of this city.

Ford sued the Sweeten Automobile Company for $6,800 admitted to be due on promissory notes and the Sweeten concern brought a counter action to recover $160,000 which it claimed it lost as a result of Ford's taking over the Lincoln Motor Company.

The Sweeten Company was the Philadelphia distributor for the Lincoln car at the time. It is now in receivership.

The Sweeten company contended that Ford had promised to make good all obligations outstanding against the old Lincoln Company.

LEWIS OUTLAWS UNION MEETING

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 13.—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, today took a hand in Western Pennsylvania's bituminous holiday affairs and issued orders direct to local presidents in the Connellsville coke region, center of the coal controversy.

The orders from President Lewis outlawed a scheduled meeting of local presidents in District No. 4 and forbade even attendance.

The meting was held, however, with 64 of the 67 locals gathering in Franklin Hall. Steve Pentronie, Marty Ryan, insurgent leaders, were seated on the platform. Attorney Anthony Cavalcante was called in.

It was understood that elections of officers would not be discussed.

Word has gone out that President Lewis' mandate will be obeyed and a guarantee of allegiance to the U. M. W. A. and

3,000 BATTLE POLICE IN NEW YORK

Union Workers' March On NRA Office Ends In Wild Disorder

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Rioting flared up today between police and over 3,000 union workers who attempted to march on NRA headquarters in the Hotel Pennsylvania. Fifty persons were arrested and thousands of pedestrians were caught in the mass that surged around the hotel.

Wildest scenes of disorder marked the police efforts to clear the street, but none was seriously injured.

The trouble began when a group representing the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers Union attempted to pass through the Thirty-second street entrance to the hotel.

The police ordered them to halt, then charged the workers. Pandemonium broke loose; there were many fist fights and emergency calls brought mounted police, emergency squads and 12 radio cars.

As the rioters were giving way another delegation representing the Shoe and Slipper Workers marched to the hotel and booed police. Some deserted their ranks to join in the melee.

Then a group of men's custom tailors marched into the fray, and the battle flared anew.

Mounted police rode up on the sidewalks, driving panic-stricken pedestrians to cover. Many fled into the hotel and into the Pennsylvania Station. Hundreds were bruised when they were jammed against the walls.

During the rioting someone in the NRA headquarters threw out thousands of placards reading:

"Wake up, America; now is the time to buy."

The workers, said by NRA officials to be the radical element in the unions, also carried placards condemning the NRA. One read:

"Grover Whalen, stop hiring strikebreakers."

JARRETTS WED SECOND TIME

Assistant District Attorney Charles B. Jarrett and Mrs. Jarrett, whom he divorced last May, were on their second honeymoon—figuratively speaking, today.

With marital difficulties a thing of the past, the couple slipped into the Church of the Redeemer at twilight on September 7 and were married by the Rev. Robert N. Meade.

The Jarretts, who have three children, are residing in the Beechwood boulevard home where they lived before their separation. Their first marriage was in June, 1924. Mrs. Jarrett was Marjorie Williams, daughter of Homer D. Williams, steel executive.

ROBERT SMITH SOLES

Mr. Soles, well-to-do McKeesport businessman held for court on a charge of murder in the death of his wife, whose maid today has told the district attorney of how he several times talked of blackmail, changed the locks in his home.

DAVIS CLEARED, SOBS THANKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—James J. Davis, junior senator from Pennsylvania and former Secretary of Labor in three cabinets, stood acquitted today of charges that he caused the sending of lottery tickets across state lines in 1931.

Another indictment charging the same offense in 1930 still stands against him.

A federal jury which heard three and a half weeks of testimony decided in three hours of deliberation that neither Davis nor his co-defendant, Theodore G. Miller, committed any crime in the promotion of a fund-raising enterpise for the Loyal Order of Moose in 1931.

COURTROOM TENSE

It was because Davis is director-general of Moose and Miller head of Moose propagation that they were brought to trial as responsible for "Mooseheart charity balls," in which cash prizes were distributed nationally to the holders of lucky tickets.

The trial was the second for

BLACKMAIL 'FEAR' LAID TO SOLES

Maid Declares He Had Locks on Doors Changed

The flavor of mystery which seems to envelop the alleged murder of Mrs. LaRoux Soles was strengthened today, despite the confession attributed to her husband, Robert Smith Soles, prosperous McKeesport businessman and ex-army captain.

A report on Soles' conduct for weeks before and after his attractive wife was shot in their bedroom was made by their maid, Iva Johnson, who has been questioned by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

'BLACKMAIL FEAR'

On several occasions, before that early morning in June when Mrs. Soles was shot, Soles muttered talk of blackmail, according to the maid. Also, before he took his wife to Atlantic City for her health in early May, he had the locks changed on virtually every door of their home in Jenny Lind street, she said.

Newspaper reports of kidnaping invariably excited him to strong language, the maid said.

The Soles couple had twin beds in the front room on the first floor of their home and, after Mrs. Soles had been taken to the hospital, fatally wounded, Soles thereafter slept in her bed, according to Miss Johnson, who is confident her master, who was held for court yesterday on a murder charge, is innocent.

A week after his wife had died, Soles went to the second floor of the home, knelt by a trunk containing the clothes of their baby, Kenneth, who died at the age of 2, and, while examining the baby's garments, sobbed:

"If it hadn't been for these things it never would have happened. Why do women act like that?"

The maid said that, even after the Coroner's jury, believing in the so-called suicide note Mrs. Soles had written after she had been shot, had returned a verdict of suicide, the husband made no attempt to destroy possible evidence. For one thing, he refused to allow her to send to the laundry the stained bedclothes, she said.

SMILES AT HEARING

Soles smiled and seemed in good humor when he was arraigned yesterday before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan. County Detective Peter A. Connors testified that Soles had made a confession and District Attorney Park made mention of "the lady" who was questioned shortly before Soles is reputed to have confessed.

Identity of the woman was not revealed nor would Park allow himself to be quoted as saying that Soles had given his wife's jewelry to her a month after the death.

Soles' case probably will be presented to the November grand jury. His counsel, Attorney O. K. Eaton, who probably will be joined by Attorney William H. Coleman, has not ndicated what Soles' defense will be, in the face of the reputed confession.

A. F. L. URGES BOYCOTT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A boycott was declared by the American Federation of Labor convention today against goods and services supplied by Germany, Italy, Russia, China, or "any other country" which forbids free trade unionization.

The executive council had recommended simply a boycott of German-made goods and service, the boycott to continue until working people were allowed to organize and the "persecution of Jewish people" ceased.

But the resolutions committee's report, adopted by the convention, said that to boycott one nation without mentioning others might bring accusations that the convention was unfriendly to a particular nationality.

"The boycott," the convention agreed, "is not intended to be restricted to use against the unfair and cruel practices of the German government only, but also against any other government under similar circumstances."

The report added that the convention should adopt a similar policy "against the governments and commercial interests of other countries wherein the workers are being denied the right of free trade union organization, or where any people are being persecuted because of race, religious belief or political affiliations."

Racehorse Doping Case Turned Over to Police

By TOM THORP
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Dissatisfied with progress made by racing authorities in investigation of the sponging of his horse, Sweeping Light, owner A. Kram has turned the matter over to the criminal authorities of Queens County. Assistant District Attorney Anthony Bibiak and Lieut. of Detectives Edward Moore have been assigned to make a thorough investigation of all the angles of the latest piece of crookedness to mar the local sport. A preliminary hearing will be held today at detective headquarters.

Rumors were rife today that the United States narcotic squad is busy at local courses. The suspension of Garden Message for having been "stimulated" caused an order to be issued from the Washington headquarters which brought a large squad of Uncle Sam's expert sleuths to the Gotham tracks. They are to make a thorough investigation of both the alleged "stimulating" of Garden Message and the sponging of Sweeping Light. The fact both are crimes under the law gives them the right to investigate.

COUNTY AIDE ARRESTED IN QUIZ

Four Others Grilled As Woman Bares Jury 'Tampering'

Because of the arrest of a county road department truck driver in the District Attorney's investigation of alleged jury-tampering involving the trial of Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, Judge Elder W. Marshall today withdrew a juror and continued the case to the next term of court. This is a technical way of ordering a retrial.

This action was taken by Judge Marshall following a conference in his chambers with District Attorney Andrew T. Park, his assistants and attorneys for Westwood, growing out of the arrest of James Connor, 36, of North Fayette Township, a county truck driver.

WOMAN MAKES CHARGE

Connor was held for court at a hearing before Alderman Thomas J. Flanigan.

A woman member of the jury had told Park she was approached at her home last Monday in an effort to win her over to acquitting Westwood. A man, county detectives said, told her:

"You might want a favor yourself some day."

Three women and another man, described by county detectives as a foreman in the county road department, who lives in Sturgeon, were questioned at Park's office following Cannon's arrest. This man was not involved, detectives said. Refusing to divulge any information or details of the alleged attempt at embracery, Park said he was continuing an intensive investigation.

URGES DECISION

A. M. Oliver, attorney for Westwood and his two constables, William A. Meissner and Thomas "Tim" Drexler, who were on trial charged with defrauding the county in alleged fake cases, followed up Judge Marshall's continuing order today with a request that he try the case on the evidence already submitted without a jury.

Oliver was given until next Monday to prepare a motion to this effect, which if allowed by a full bench of judges would place the responsibility on Judge Marshall to decide the case.

Westwood, on the stand yesterday, made a complete denial of the state's charges. He said every information on which he had collected costs had actually been made in his office and the defendant discharged.

DAVIS ACQUITTAL NARROWS PINCHOT SENATE CHANCE

GIRDS TO FIGHT REED FOR LONE SEAT

State Party Leaders Await Contents of 'Mystery Letter'

HARRISBURG, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—With the acquittal of United States Senator James J. Davis on long-standing lottery charges, any senatorial hopes Gov. Pinchot may have, depended today on his readiness to oppose and ability to defeat United States Senator David A. Reed.

The Governor recently said he had not made up his mind whether he will campaign for a Senate seat in the primaries next May. His comments have carefully avoided denial or confirmation of persistent reports that he will enter the field.

Republican organization leaders, foes of the independent Governor through his two administrations, assert he is certain to be a candidate.

As long as the Davis case was pending they insisted the Governor was delaying his plans to decide whether he would seek Davis' seat in the event of conviction or Davis' resignation.

The Senator's acquittal leaves only the normal senator opportunity—the six-year term for which Senator Reed is a candidate for the Republican nomination. Reed opened his campaign several weeks ago.

The Governor, while silent regarding his plans, has been building what organization leaders say is a foundation for a fight against Reed and the Mellon Republican organization with which Reed has been affiliated.

As an aftermath of the Davis trial, political leaders of the state—Democrats, Republicans and Independents—look to Washington for disclosure of the contents of the "mystery letter" Pinchot sent with Davis' certificate of election.

That missive was sent to the president of the Senate with instructions that it remain unopened until a verdict was reached in the trial "or until such time as the Senate of the United States shall deem fit and proper for its publication."

Garner Fails to Receive Pinchot's Letter

UVALDE, Tex., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—John N. Garner, Vice President, said today he had received no notification of a letter to the Senate from Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, concerning Senator James Davis, who was acquitted yesterday on charges of violating the federal lottery laws. Garner said:

"I will not order the letter opened until I receive an order from Gov. Pinchot authorizing me to do so. Upon receipt of that order, I will direct the Secretary of the Senate to open the letter and make its contents public."

SUBPENAS OUT IN VOTE QUIZ

Residents of the Twenty-second Ward are being subpenaed today by the Pittsburgh Registration Commission to explain how they obtained the tax receipts on which they voted at the primary.

This move is in line with the Registration Board's hearings in an effort to purge the registration lists of fraudulent names before the general election next month.

Hearings will be continued to October 26 when the commission must make public the names of those out from the lists. Voters thus stricken off will then have 10 days in which to appeal to the courts.

The Registration Board has announced it will turn over to the District Attorney data collected during its investigations bearing on the alleged wholesale distribution of tax receipts through all parts of the city.

NO. 13 GETS JOB FOR CANDIDATE

It was "roll the pea" day in the county election bureau today. And what a time the jinx must have had when the "peas" started rolling, because no matter who won there were sure to be 100 losers.

Some 200 tied candidates in the last primary rolled it out to see who would get their names on the November election ballot. The rules of the game say the man rolling the lowest number wins.

Well, it got off to a good start. The first number rolled was 13 and decided a tie between Louis Wechsler and Mrs. Sarah M. Phillips for fourth place on the Independent nomination for City Council. Wechsler won.

Then the jinx turned up again and cinched the fifth place Council nomination on the Independent ticket for William A. Magee who already is assured of places on the Republican and Democratic tickets. Those tied for the position with Magee were James F. Malone and Joseph Stack.

Arthur L. Miller was one of the favored half when the pea gave him the fourth place nomination for Dormont Council on the Republican ticket, against Albert C. Staley.

FINANCE PARLEY AT CAPITAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—President Roosevelt held a long conference with the finance officials of his administration today, but those attending refused to discuss the meeting afterwards.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC; Henry Bruere, whom the President named as liaison man between the federal credit agencies; Budget Director Lewis Douglas and James Roderick, of the New York State Banking Commission, were gathered in the conference with Mr. Roosevelt.

There were indications after the conference that the President is [illegible] ready to announce the set-up of the giant credit and finance program through which he hopes to unleash billions of dollars to depositors in closed banks, but no announcement was forthcoming today.

Police Create Own Traffic Jam to Balk Bandits

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Police viewed with equanimity a 20-minute traffic jam in the downtown streets today. While motorists punished their horns and voiced their views in bitter adjectives, the cops looked on with unwonted serenity while a huge delivery van squarely blocked the street outside the Federal Reserve Bank and two truckmen trundled heavy crates into the institution.

Only after it was all over did police explain their complacency. The traffic jam was fully premeditated, they said. The crates contained a large money transfer and the blockade of motorists was created purposely as a barrier through which no bandit machine, if one were present, could hope to speed to safety.

RUSSO-JAPAN BREAK NEAR

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The tightly drawn cord of diplomatic relations between Russia and Japan was stretched a bit nearer the breaking point today.

It was strained further with reports from Khabarovsk, Siberia, of the arrest of two more Soviet officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Nippon's puppet state, Manchukuo.

Only a few days ago, a sensation was created here with the publication of what allegedly were documents describing a Japanese plan to seize the railway.

One by one, it was said, the few remaining Soviets among the road's officials were to be removed, eventually giving Manchukuo complete control.

The two latest arrests reportedly were made as Soviet Consul General Slavutski at Harbin renewed his demands for an answer to his previous reports.

Meanwhile, from Tokio came a foreign office spokesman's statement which indicated Japan's stand remained unchanged.

"Several days of careful deliberation," he said, wil precede Nippon's next move in the controversy.

Father's Suicide Sequel To Powers Murders

A tragic sequel to one of the most gruesome crimes in American history was enacted near Cedar Falls, Ia., late yesterday when Wilko Drenth, 71, father of Harry Powers, West Virginia bluebeard, shot and killed himself.

Shock over the crimes was blamed by investigators for the suicide.

He had not seen him in years and believed him dead until he picked up a newspaper and saw the picture of his son, accused of the murder of Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Illinois, and her three children, and Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Massachusetts.

Powers, tried in Clarksburg, near where the bodies of his victims were found on his "murder farm," was hanged March 18, 1932.

DAVIS CLEARED, SOBS THANKS TO JURORS

Senator Will Hurry Back Here; Plans Visit to Father

Davis, the first ending in mistrial a year ago.

The verdict came at the dinner hour last night, the courtroom filled with Moose officials and their women folk.

Senator Davis sat tense at his counsel table. Next to him sat a sombre faced youth of 18, his son, James J., Jr. Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh lawyer and chief advocate for the Senator, drew tight lips waiting for Foreman Frank J. Berr to speak.

"We find both defendants not guilty!"

As if they were one body, the crowd in the courtroom came to their feet and emitted an ear-splitting outcry.

Davis was on his feet, large tears running down his tanned cheeks. His son embraced and kissed him.

When Judge Hayes left the bench the demonstration commenced again. Men and women surged forward to grasp the Senator's hand. His attorneys, Margiotti on one side, Charles H. Tuttle on the other, propelled him to the jury box. Tears still streaming from his eyes, he grasped the hand of each of them. He choked out:

"Thanks! Thanks!"

WILL VISIT FATHER

Miller laid his head on the shoulder of George J. Mintzer, his attorney, and wept. He, too, shook the hands of the jurors and muttered appreciation.

Davis broke away from his well-wishers to write a statement. He completed it hastily and mounted the platform on which sits the clerk of court. As he read his voice broke:

"I thanked my God when I heard the verdict. I knew I was innocent."

He continued:

"I expect to get back home to Pittsburgh as soon as possible, and to visit my dear old blind father in Sharon."

The reference to his father caused the 50-year-old Davis, who rose from immigrant boy to Secretary of Labor, to burst into tears again.

TAMMANY AX HITS BOLTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Tammany reprisals against party bolters spread today to Brooklyn where John H. McCooey, veteran Tammany ally, has been served notice by a majority of his district leaders to abdicate or support Joseph V. McKee, independent Democratic mayoralty candidate.

The sharp edge of the Tammany patronage knife was felt this time by the leader of the McCooey insurrection—Kenneth F. Sutherland, district leader and assistant to the president of the City Board of Aldermen.

Sutherland was notified by Dennis J. Mahon, board president, that his services with the city were terminated.

Sutherland, who drew $9,140 a year, is supporting McKee.

BANKER ADMITS AVOIDING TAX ON STOCK

Organized Personal Company in Order To Escape Levy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A Dillon, Read & Co. member told Senate investigators today how he paid no income tax in 1929 on a stock profit of $864,000 by means of setting up a personal company in Canada.

James V. Forrestal, the banker, testified between puffs on a pipe that the tax would have been far in excess of $95,000 if he had made the sales direct.

Questioned closely by Ferdinand Pecora, committee council, Forrestal said he had made an income tax return on the Canadian Company this year after disclosures before the inquiring committee in the investigation of other bankers.

As a result, he said, a tax of $6,000 was paid and another levy of $95,000 was under consideration.

The witness testified at length about various transactions with the Canadian company, including an $800,000 loan, and then Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, said:

"In effect, all these transactions were doing business with yourself, weren't they?"

The witness replied:

"Certainly, for myself."

Couzens added:

"Just shifting money from one pocket to another?"

The witness replied:

"I hadn't thought of it as such."

Forrestal testified earlier that he sold 16,788 shares of stock for $53 a share which he had acquired for less than a dollar each.

ITALY EXECUTES 'BLUEBEARD'

SPEZIA, Italy, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A volley of bullets in the back at dawn today ended 47-year-old Cesare Serviatti's gruesome career as Italy's modern "Bluebeard."

Serviatti was tied to a chair and shot in the spine by a squad of carabiniere. A huge crowd witnessed his death.

He was convicted and sentenced in the Court of Assizes on 11 counts, July 7, all connected with the mysterious disappearance and subsequently confirmed deaths of three young women who had given him their affections and life savings.

Swarthy, heavy and personally lacking all the accepted attributes of a Casanova or Don Juan Tenorio, he made a sickly effort at jauntiness as the white-faced young carabiniere tied him to his chair, blindfolded him and then leveled their muskets at his back.

BERMUDA BARS ITALIAN BOXER

International News Service.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 13.—Mystery enveloped the refusal of authorities to permit Enzo Fiermonte, Italian boxing instructor, to land in Bermuda when he arrived on the liner Queen of Bermuda, today.

Fiermonte, who has been instructor to the two sons of Mrs. William Astor Dick, came here to join Mrs. Dick, who still is in a local hospital with a broken arm which she received in a fall several weeks ago.

Fiermonte will be forced to return to the United States tomorrow.

Whether the Italian's visit had anything to do with marriage plans could not be learned. He recently admitted he had proposed to Mrs. Dick, but declared she had not given him an answer.

Twenty-five employes of the Hahn Cleaning Company, 5524 Walnut street, who walked out yesterday, remained out only one hour, H. Hahn, president, stated today in announcing a settlement had been effected. He said:

"These men were called out unjustifiably because of a misunderstanding in regard to classification of employes. The walkout was called by union leaders in violation of my contract with the union. The difficulty, however, was soon adjusted and the strike ended."

SIFT ALUMINUM EVIDENCE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Evidence that many of the stockholders of the Aluminum Company of America were also stockholders of Aluminium, Ltd., of Canada, was read into the records of the United States District Court yesterday during the fourth day of the trial of the $9,000,000 suit against the Aluminum Company of America.

Charging that it suffered heavy losses because of a monopoly exercised by the defendant, the Baush Machine Company, of Springfield and Chicopee, Mass., seeks $3,000,000 damages and punitive judgment of $6,000,000.

The evidence concerning the American and Canadian companies was presented before Judge Carroll C. Hincks and a jury during the reading of the deposition of E. K. Davis, president of Aluminium, Ltd.

The deposition disclosed that while the two aluminum companies engaged in the same business they did not compete with each other. It brought out further that the Aluminum Company of America confined its business to the United States, while the Canadian concern operated in Canada and other foreign fields.

Girl Treasures Book That Stopped Bullet

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A book of poems with a bullet hole through it became one of 16-year-old Meredythe Gardiner's most treasured possessions.

She was reading from the book as the bullet, accidently fired from her brother's gun, struck it. Physicians said the reason Miss Gardiner's wound was superficial was that the book deflected the bullet.

AIR TRANSPORT CRASH LAID TO BOMB

Stains Found in Liner Wreckage Believed From Nitro

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Stains which investigators believe might have been caused by a time bomb have been found on the wreckage of an air transport liner that crashed Tuesday night, killing seven persons near Chesterton, Ind.

Investigators for the Department of Commerce brought fragments of the wreckage to a Chicago laboratory for examination.

The fragments, including small pieces of the metal fuselage and the side of a bottle, bore stains which investigators believed were caused by gun powder or nitroglycerin.

EVIDENCE OF BLAST

A federal official said holes torn in the fuselage and wreckage in the baggage compartment of the huge air liner also indicated a terrific explosion had sent the plane crashing to earth as it speeded from Cleveland to Chicago with a cargo of passengers and air mail.

"There is considerable evidence of an explosion," said the federal official who reported finding of the stained fragments.

"If it was an explosion, then a time bomb secreted in the plane for purposes of murder and sabotage appears to be the only answer."

He said the investigation had shown there was no explosion of the gasoline tanks in the air. He said there was no evidence indicating some passenger had wrecked the plane with an explosive as a bizarre means toward suicide.

BOMB THEORY PROBED

The bomb theory has been subscribed to in part by Coroner Carl Davis, of Porter County, Indiana, another investigator of the crash.

Farmers in the vicinity reported hearing a loud explosion before the plane spun to earth from an altitude of about 1,000 feet. Although Dr. Davis said he was not convinced of any explanation thus far advanced for the accident, he acknowledged that the bomb theory was being investigated.

M'CLURE TRIAL LINKS BEER

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Activities of the Delaware County liquor "protection" ring which the government charges was headed by State Senator John J. McClure, extended to shipments of high-powered beer in freight cars as well as to ships, it was testified today at the trial of Senator McClure and 77 others accused of a liquor conspiracy.

Additional ramifications of the ring were disclosed by Thomas Reynolds, a former Reading Railroad detective, who was called as a government witness.

Reynolds said that at the request of Patsy D'Amato, a racketeer killed in Chester by gangland bullets, he arranged to have a carload of beer placed on an obscure siding, where it would be unloaded without exciting suspicion. As a reward, he said, he received several barrels of beer. He testified:

"This was done several times later, and frequently I received $50 for my work."

Survivors Tell of Fight For Life as Ship Sinks

International News Service.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., Oct. 13.—A grim tragedy of the sea in which 20 members of the crew and the wife of the ship's engineer lost their lives was recounted today by four sailors and the captain of the Greek freighter, Annoula, sole survivors when the ship sank near Bermuda in a hurricane last Saturday.

After drifting more than 24 hours in their water-logged life boat, the survivors were picked up by the Italian steamship, Montello, and brought here. The survivors are: Capt. George Couvelos, Johannes Mathisen, a Danish sailor; Panagio Diacatos, the cook; Vassilip Pappas, boatswain, and Isadore Cheras, a sailor.

The Annoula, loaded with a cargo of coal, foundered bow first. As the ship began sinking, the sailors cut away life boats, joined hands along the rail, and leaped into the sea, battling mountainous waves in a million-to-one chance to reach the lifeboats.

"I swam towards the lifeboat which was floating keel up a short distance away. A huge wave picked me up and dropped me right on it. Three other men were picked up by the captain," Mathisen said. "We fought for hours to right the boat. We did it. God knows how.

"The boat was half filled with water. The rudder was smashed. We rigged up a rudder and tried to keep her headed out of the trough."

Mathisen told how the little band of survivors shouted as they saw the lights of the Montello in the dark. Finally, the searchlights of the Italian boat picked them out in the water and they were rescued.

Capt. Couvelos said a wave swept over the side as he ran into the radio cabin midnight Friday to send an SOS. Knocked unconscious, the captain found himself in his own cabin when he regained his senses. There, in the tradition of the sea, he waited for death.

"I felt the ship going down. Just then a wave ripped off the top of the cabin and as the Annoula foundered I found myself swimming in the ocean," he said.

U. S. PREPARES 'DEVIL'S ISLAND' FOR DESPERADOES

RACKET KILLERS SLATED FOR ISOLATION

'Machine Gun' Kelly One of First to Go to Isle

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Alcatraz Military Prison, high on a rocky island in San Francisco Bay, has been selected as the spot where the country's toughest killers, kidnapers and racketeers will be confined after their conviction in federal courts, Attorney General Cummings announced today.

Cummings contemplated the immediate transfer of about 75 prisoners from Atlanta Prison and the same number from Leavenworth.

George (Machine Gun) Kelly, just given life for kidnaping, probably will be among the first arrivals at Alcatraz, it was said today.

Other likely candidates are Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, southwestern kindapers and desperadoes, also given life.

Kelly, Bates and Bailey are considered "career criminals" of a dangerous type, criminals who would be expected to cause trouble in any prison.

Other notorious prisoners like Al Capone and Gaston B. Means probably would not be sent to Alcatraz, it was said, because they are not rated as "desperate."

Habitual criminals of the type known to students of penology as recividists, repeating crimes at every opportunity, will be taken to Alcatraz.

She is hoping the federal authorities will change their minds and allow her to be sent to the same person as her mother, Mrs. R. G. Shannon, also under life sentence for her part in the kidnaping. Kathryn said:

Kathryn was reported to be ill in the county jail today. She refused to eat breakfast.

FEAR WINKLER PARTNER SLAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Joseph Bergl, business partner of Gus Winkler, was missing today and police feared he might have been the third victim in a series of gangdom deaths that began with investigation of a $250,000 mail robbery.

Police said Bergl had feared death since Edgar Lebensberger, night club owner, committed suicide and Winkler was assassinated. Mrs. Bergl denied her husband was in fear, but admitted she did not know his whereabouts.

At the Bergl garage in suburban Cicero, employes said they knew nothing about Bergl's associates. Police have charged gangster automobiles were armored and eqquipped with smoke screen devices in the garage.

Meanwhile, federal agents continued a search for seven Chicago suspects they have named as connected with the robbery of last December 6. Two score defendants in the case already have been seized.

U. S. BAN ON GUN SALES SEEN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Federal laws to wipe out indiscriminate sale of firearms and laws to prevent the release of prisoners who probably would revert to lives of crime were predicted by Joseph B. Keenan, special Assistant Attorney General in charge of the government's drive against kidnapers and racketeers, in an address before the American Prison Association last night.

And as to the Urschel kidnaping gang which he prosecuted:

"They can appeal in all the courts in the nation. They can go to the Supreme Court of the United States, but there will be no bail bonds, no releases from jail. The government owes protection to society and to Urschel. That man is a hero."

He referred to Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire, whose kidnapers were run to earth by government men under the "Lindbergh law."

FOREST CORPS AT SOUTH PARK

Fifty-five members of the Civilian Conservative Corps arrived at South Park today from Idaho and set up tents which will house them for the next six months while they work on the trees and shrubs in the park.

The men, under command of Capt. L. E. McGregor, are mostly from Western Pennsylvania and have re-enrolled in the corps after serving their first six months. They had been detailed to Idaho to fight forest fires.

The camp at South Park will be recruited up to 200 men, according to Capt. McGregor who said they would be selected from the Pittsburgh C. C. C. headquarters.

Hollywood in Turmoil Over Code for Films

'Astounding,' Says Cantor, May Go To See Roosevelt

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sal., Oct. 13.—Hollywood is all atwitter.

Not since those thrilling days when sound came to the screen and the movie industry was remade from top to bottom has there been so much excitement.

There are mass meetings, protests, and indorsements—all because of articles nine and ten of the proposed NRA code for the movies.

The first of these deals with actors' relations with their agents, and the second covers the writing of contracts, and provides a "black list" of actors who violate the code.

"Radical" says the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which has representatives from all branches of the industry.

"Astounding," says Eddie Cantor, wide-eyed comedian now turned deadly earnest as newly elected president of the Screen Actors' Guild.

MASS MEETING SUNDAY

The actors, headed by Cantor, will hold their big mass meeting Sunday when a definite program will be laid down for presentation at the NRA hearing.

Joining Cantor in the guild—which has virtually split with the academy — are such prominent movie figures as Ann Harding, Frederic March, and James and Lucille Gleason. Said Cantor today:

"We want representation at Washington.

"Nobody understands things but the actors themselves, and how are they going to know what's going on in Hollywood if we don't tell them?"

It isn't just a question of big salaries, Cantor explained.

"After all, you can't set a salary for any person that delivers a unique service—any more than you can set salaries for doctors or lawyers.

DEFENDS 'HIGH PAY'

"We're in a peculiar position — we can't last forever, and we've got to make the best of things while we may.

"Maybe today the juvenile stars get a pretty good salary—then tomorrow they have to become shoe clerks or run bicycle shops.

"And look at the five-dollar-a-day extras that used to get salaries that ran into four figures weekly."

Cantor is deadly serious about the guild that he directs. And he wants to lay matters before Gen. Hugh Johnson—"maybe even before the President himself," he says.

HUSBAND FINDS WIFE HANGED

Missing his wife, Clara, 35, after a quarrel, Guy Sippey, 35, of McKnight road, Ross Township, found her hanging to a tree in the yard, according to a report to the county morgue.

The husband told morgue attaches he and his wife had quarreled last night when he threatened to "sleep in the barn."

Pretending to carry out his intentions Sippey said he went to the barn. He returned a short time later and his wife was missing. A short search revealed her body hanging to the limb of a tree, he told morgue officials.

JANET SNOWDEN IN HOLLYWOOD

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—Traveling incognito, Janet Snowden, 19-year-old New York oil heiress whose recent "spite" marriage to Prince Francesco Don Caraveta, of Naples, lasted a scant five days, arrived here yesterday on the liner Santa Teresa.

Huffed because the alias of "Miss Elizabeth Wilson" availed her naught, the heiress left her companion-guardian, Mrs. Edith Crockett, to complete customs formalities, hurried to a huge limousine and was whisked away to a Hollywood hotel. There she went into seclusion. She registered under the name of "Miss L. Gordon" and refused to see anyone.

Immigration officials complained that they were made to wait an hour and a half at quarantine while Miss Snowden dressed in her stateroom.

Following the southern route, the Macon is scheduled to complete her 3,000-mile flight early Sunday morning at Moffett Field, near San Francisco, from where she will operate permanently with the Pacific battle fleet.

The Macon is carrying 14 officers, 55 enlisted men and three civilians. She had only one of her regular complement of six planes with her, four others already having reached Moffett Field and the other scheduled to take off today.

CLAIRE LAUGHS AT READ'S FLOP

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The ill-starred fistic venture of Alfred C. Read, Jr., former Oakland broker, baseball player and sportsman, elicited a chuckle here yesterday from blonde Claire Windsor, violet-eyed film actress.

Miss Windsor, conferring with attorneys in her fight to avoid payment of $75,000 to Mrs. Marian Read for allegedly alienating Read's affections, laughed when informed he had been knocked out by Jimmy Mello, of Oakland, in the first round of a professional boxing match at Oakland last night. But her comment was more sympathetic:

"I have no interest in Mr. Read now, but I am sorry he was knocked out. I wouldn't like to hear of anybody being punched so hard."

MAN MISTAKEN FOR THUG SHOT

Isaac R. Skelton, 46, of 644 Mifflin road, was in South Side Hospital today in a serious condition with a bullet through his body.

Police said Skelton was shot by Floyd Osborne, 44, of 81 Lebanon street, a street car operator.

Osborne told police he thought Skelton to be a highwayman.

Osborne and James Walker, 36, of 628 Mifflin road, with whom Skelton had spent the evening, were arrested and held in South Side Police Station on suspicious person charges.

Walker said his companion thought Osborne was an acquaintance and when they met him just as Osborne had left his home they approached.

As the two men approached Osborne said he backed away. He added:

"I thought they were holdup men."

When they continued Osborne, police said, drew a revolver and fired. Skelton fell with a bullet wound through his body.

Osborne, police said, had a permit to carry a gun.

M'GOVERN PAYS DOG TAX FINE

Because an unlicensed dog was found on his farm in Moon Township, Col. Charles C. McGovern, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, is minus $5, it was revealed today.

McGovern mailed a check for $5 and costs to Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, after a warrant had been left at his home. He ignored several notices to appear for a hearing for keeping an unlicensed dog, the squire said.

V. B. Johnson, agent of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, found McGovern's dog unlicensed along with 15 others in Moon Township.

SALLY'S FINALE CROWD COOL

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Sally Rand, attired somewhat like a bathing beauty of the gay nineties, gave her final Broadway performances last night before moving on to Philadelphia.

She did her much-publicized fan dance before an audience that seemed apathetic to the decorum of the show.

Sally was ordered by License Commissioner Sidney S. Levine to don "opaque raiment"—or else. Until the order Miss Rand used only what she termed an "artistic" covering of paint, powder and cream and, of course, the fans.

Gus Winkler Buried Without His Diamonds

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—His widow and a few spectators today witnessed the burial of Gus Winkler, Chicago gang overlord, in Park Lawn Cemetery after services at the Church of St. George.

His diamond studded watch and chain, and the bejewelled belt buckle presented by Al Capone, apparently were not in the silver plated casket, although his widow tearfully announced in Chicago she would "bury Gus' diamonds with him."

The church service was by special permission, it was explained by an attache of the church which Winkler attended before he went to Chicago. Winkler re-embraced religion and received absolution just before he died in a Chicago hospital of 72 buckshot wounds inflicted by two men.

On a stand near the body as it lay in a funeral parlor was an open Bible, over the pages of which was inscribed in roses:

"Last Chapter."

Winkler, a "punk" in the underworld of St. Louis a decade ago, became a "big shot" in Chicago, but back home today he disappointed the curious who flocked to view his body.

His casket, while worthy of note, was devoid of excessive ornamentation.

Few of Gus' old friends were among the 2,000 who visited the funeral parlor last night. Like Winkler himself, some of them have been slain; some are in prison.

Clubwomen Divided On 'Walkout' Rift

Two things seem to have divided the thought of the 500 delegates to the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention which closed last night with a banquet in the William Penn Hotel. These two items—whether clubs not affiliated with the State Federation should be permitted to join the county federations and whether Mrs. Charles S. Musser, of Philadelphia, did or did not walk out on the convention.

As a matter of fact, when Mrs. Musser arrived she told Mrs Richard J. Hamilton that she would have to leave Pittsburgh in the middle of the week to attend a club conference in New York And not only she but several other eastern club women left Pittsburgh on Wednesday night for New York.

It is generally conceded that Mrs. Musser was upset by the bitter differences that had arisen on Wednesday over the admission of unfederated clubs. But certainly she was not the only one in the same state of mind; all the women approached on the subject regretted the turbulent incident, but felt that it was inevitable.

Mrs. Musser, being chairman of county federation and extension, was expected to feel that the question came a little closer to her than to many of the others.

Mrs James G. Chalfant, president of the southwestern district and general chairman for the convention, said most emphatically:

"Mrs. Musser certainly did not walk out. When the convention opened we knew she would leave before it was over in order to attend the New York conference."

JINX DAY OPENS 'KISS OF DEATH' GIRL'S TRIAL

Survivor of 7 Gangster 'Sweeties' in Court As 3 Killers Die

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—For more than a decade the violent deaths of Chicago bad men have been closely associated with the name of Margaret Mary Collins. They call her the "Kiss of Death Girl."

Today, Friday, the 13th, she goes on trial here before Judge Erwin J. Hasten under the new "Criminal Reputation" law.

Selection of the date for Mary's trial was no accident. When the "Jinx Girl," beauteous personification of death, seven of whose gangland sweeties have died from the curse of her embrace, appeared in Women's Court and asked for a continuance, Judge Hasten said:

"Continuance? Let me see what would be a good day for this trial. Hmm, we'll make it October 13. That will be a good day for Mary."

EXECUTIONS SCHEDULED

The grimness of it caused even the hard-boiled, but pretty, Mary Collins to blanch. For as her trial proceeds the state will take the lives of the policemen killers, Ross King, Morris Cohen and John Scheck—all of them members of the underworld which Mary so dramatically represents, and fellow victims of the crime war which resulted in Mary's arrest.

First to die was Cohen, executed early today.

The new law under which Mary will be tried is one of the most drastic ever passed in this state. Conviction is obtained merely on the reputation of the defendant, and more than 100 of Chicago's public enemies have been named in warrants. Mary is the only woman so far.

Mary may not have a hard time proving she is no vagrant. She suggests in appearance the night club queen, or possibly a lady right off the "gold coast." She is a beautiful platinum blonde—time was when she was a redhead and later a brunette—and she dresses in the height of fashion.

HISTORY OF DEATH

But the reputation by which the state hopes to convict her is tied up with the long list of men whose deaths revealed their association with her. Her history is intimately connected with the bloody list of crimes which runs like a scarlet thread through the warp and woof of the Chicago prohibition era tapestry.

Reputedly a shoplifter in New York before her Chicago advent, Mary came here after a Monhattan sweetie, named Thomas, had been killed. This Thomas has never been counted in Mary's crimson list, and would make the number of dead affinities read eight.

On December 8, 1923, "Dandy Jack" Sheehy, known as "Sheehy the Immune," and one of Chicago's most dangerous criminals, died on the operating table in the Bridewell Hospital of wounds received during a celebration of Mary Collins' twenty-third birthday the night before. Sheehy had taken Mary to a cabaret and in a quarrel killed the day-steward and bartender before being fatally wounded by police.

On August 27, 1924, John Phillips, accomplice of Louis Alterie, was killed in the Northern Lights Cafe. Mary mourned at his bier.

MOURNED O'BANION

On November 10, 1924, Dion O'Banion was shot down in his florist shop blind on North State street. The story was that O'Banion was killed in a feud with Mike Carozzo over Mary, who at any rate was in widow's weeds following the funeral, with its 122 autos, 24 trucks of flowers and a $10,000 coffin.

On August 28, 1925, Irving (Sonny) Schlig, bootlegger, diamond thief and bandit leader, who had been a suspect in a $200,000 diamond robbery a few months before, was found shot at Ashburn flying field.

Mary again was bereaved, but not for long, for on the following November 27, John (Jew Boy) Bates, who had been suspected of killing Schlig to appropriate Mary, was found murdered in Stickney, Ill.

Followed four and a half years of comparative oblivion, and on June 7, 1930, Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, who obviously had been tortured to death, was found in the Summit drainage canal.

On June 16, 1932, Sam Katz, extortioner, was killed by police when he walked into a hail of pistol fire in the office of Morris Schacter, from whom he had demanded $25,000.

PINCHOT RIVALS WIFE FLAYING STEEL KINGS

After administering another verbal spanking to the big men of the steel industry, Gov. Gifford Pinchot urged the support of a $25,000,000 bond issue for state relief in an address at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs in the William Penn Hotel last night.

The Governor out-performed Mrs. Pinchot in his denouncement of "steel magnates,' blaming them for prolonging labor disturbances, and describing three of them as "chiselers and cheaters."

In a five-minute talk over radio station WCAE with the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, the Governor declared:

"I mean the steel magnates—I mean Taylor, Grace and Schwab, and their messenger boy, little Moses—men who should be rememberd by the American people as chisiers and cheaters."

TONES DOWN TALK

The outspoken Governor toned down his criticism of the steel giants before the members of the Federation. He told them the success of the NRA depended upon the soft coal output, and that unless the operators of captive mines obeyed the law serious trouble would result. He said the strike situation continued critical.

However, of the final outcome, the Governor had little doubt.

"It is simply a case of a little group of captive mine owners against the government and the people of the United States."

His talk to the women, however was largely confined to the relief bond issue in Amendment Eight that comes before the voters November 7.

URGES BOND ISSUE

Describing the bond issue as "terrifically necessary," the Governor declared that all state funds for unemployment relief would be exhausted by December. He said:

"A breakdown of our relief program in December would result in indescribable suffering and hardships to our unemployed. And it might result in serious trouble for many who are now employed."

Failure of the voters to warrant the issue would result in the closing of many hospitals and the financial impairment of many of the state's universities, he told the women.

"Last week trustees of the State Hospital Association called on me. They told me that a great many hospitals would close, and that practically all would be crippled in their efforts to give free treatment to the penniless if the amendment is not passed."

AUDITOR UNDER FIRE

When Gov. Pinchot discussed opposition to the amendment Auditor General Frank Baldwin drew the Governor's criticism. He said:

"The only individual I know who is opposed to it is Auditor General Frank Baldwin. And he appears to constitute a minority of one.

"If I had not given up all hope of understanding why Baldwin does the things he does, I would entertain a suspicion that he is against Amendment No. 8 because I am for it. That is a rather narrow point of view—even for Mr. Baldwin.

"The reason he gives is that he is against all bond issues.

"But Baldwin's opposition must not be dismissed too lightly. Unimportant in himself, he is the sign and symbol of all those who are constitutionally 'agin' everything."

STATE'S CREDIT GOOD

The Governor also urged passage of the amendment on the grounds the loan would not impair the state's credit. He said:

"No state is in better financial condition than Pennsylvania. We are living strictly within our income. Pennsylvania's credit is as good or better than that of any other state in the Union."

Gov. Pinchot flew to Pittsburgh from Greenville, where he spoke at the dedication of a community park. His address there was confined to an attack on the officials of the United States Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

He attended the regular weekly meeting of the County Relief Board in the City County Building yesterday. He declined comment on the session.

He also declined to comment upon the contents of the sealed envelope he sent to the United States Senate with the certification of Davis' election last March 3. Pinchot said he had nothing to say "at least not until I return to Harrisburg and possibly not then.'

The envelope was accompanied by a note from Pinchot requesting that its contents not be made public until after a verdict in the Davis trial or "until such a time as the Senate shall deem fit and proper for its publication."

Weirton Strike Dispute Major Test Facing NRA

Board Probing Weir's Arbitration Snub Hears Union Men

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The eyes of industry and labor were turned today on a major test of the NRA—the National Labor Board's investigation of the strike of more than 10,000 employes of the Weirton Steel Company.

That investigation began here as the board took testimony from officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which E. T. Weir, president of National Steel Corporation, Weirton's parent firm, has refused to recognize.

Not only has Weir refused to recognize the union, but he has declined to deal with the labor board, which asked Weir's promise to submit to its arbitration if the men went back to work.

MAY FORCE HAND

As the board started its inquiry, which may be transferred to Weirton, W. Va., principal seat of the strike, efforts to force Weir to submit to arbitration loomed important on the horizon.

Labor has already accepted its authority, in several cases. Capital has balked before, but this is by far the biggest test of the board's power that has arisen so far.

PRESENT GRIEVANCES

The board proceeded to hear the men's side of the quarrel today as M. F. Tighe, international president of the Amalgamated, and William J. Long, president of the Weirton Local, took to it their grievances.

Only yesterday Weir claimed he know of no grievances.

Of these grievances Tighe said:

"When Mr. Weir says there is nothing to arbitrate, he ignores a serious contention on the part of his employes.

"It is well known that certain of his men who complained about working Sunday were displaced. When this was taken up by the union officials no recognition was given to these complaints. The strike followed.

"This is in contravention of all the regulations of the NRA as well as of the union.

"We stand firmly on this and so we shall testify to the Labor Board."

OTHER ACCUSATIONS

Other charges against the steel company will undoubtedly include:

1—Violation of the steel code by refusal to deal with the Amalgamated.

2—Coercion of employes to join the company union.

3—Importation of strike breakers.

Labor Board Marks Time On Complaint Against Weir

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The NRA Labor Board today had taken no action on the complaint of Representative Robert L. Ramsay, of W. Va., that E. T. Weir, of the Weirton Steel Company, had said it might be necessary "to shoot a few men to end the strike."

Sheriff Tope, of Hancock County, W. Va., Congressman Ramsay's informant, had, according to the Congresman, changed his version of the Weir quotation. He now says, according to the Congresman, that Weir said only that "there may be a little shooting."

Weir declares he was entirely misconstrued. He says he was not threatening when he talked of shooting, but merely explaining that there was danger of shooting as a result of the bearing of arms by labor leaders. He said William J. Long, Weirton district president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, had gone armed to the entrance of the steel plant.

Congressman Ramsay predicted the appearance yesterday before the NRA Labor Board of Sheriff Tope, but the sheriff said he had not been summoned. Ramsay's only comment was that he did not regard the incident as closed.

WEIRTONSTRIKE ZONE QUIET

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 13.—Quiet prevailed here today with an undetermined number of men entering the seven mills of the Weirton Steel Company, and thousands still on strike demanding recognition of their union.

Widely varying figures on the number of employes who have returned are given out by company officials and the men. T. E. Millsop, assistant to the president, places the number back at work here and in Steubenville at around 5,000. Union leaders cut that figure to 1,200.

George Ellison, vice president of the Weir-Cove Lodge, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said affidavits had been forwarded to the state government that the company was operating an employment agency in Steubenville and was hiring non-union men daily.

SWINGS 'FISKS' IN MOVIES

Popeye, the sailor, famed comic strip star of Sun-Telegraph, has gone Hollywood. He is fast becoming a full-fledged movie actor on his own merits.

The hard-hitting sailor, granted permission by his creator, Mr. Segar, ventured Hollywood-way, determined to break into the movies either by gentle persuasion or by the use of his two powerful "fisks."

Popeye, with his stove-pipe imbedded in his determined, comical face and his club-like lower arms blazing the trail, took Hollywood by storm.

Popeye's first venture, which Max Fleischer is animating, will be known as "I Yam What I Yam." Popeye is making his debut on the screen at the Warner Theater today.

$30,000 Tipple Burns After Mine Strike

RIDGWAY, Pa., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A tipple at the Dagus mine of the Northwestern Mining and Exchange Company was destroyed by fire today. The company estimated damage at $30,000. Police say they believe the blaze was of incendiary origin.

A group of coal cutters were discharged because they refused to work Wednesday under a new wage scale. Three hundred men were thrown out of work.

Aliquippa Man Dies In Auto Collision

ROCHESTER, Pa., Oct. 13.—Fred Grimes, 50, of 1314 Wade street, Aliquippa, died in the Rochester Hospital today of injuries received in an automobile accident Wednesday. He was riding in a car driven by Floyd Hindman, of 1308 Irwin street, Aliquippa, on the Ambridge-Aliquippa highway, police reported, when it collided with a parked car. Hindman suffered slight injuries.

Labor Continues Fight For NRA Benefits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The American Federation of Labor reached the concluding sessions of its fifty-third annual convention today, agreed to support President Roosevelt's recovery program, but fully determined to continue the workers' fight for greater benefits under it.

This was the campaign challenge of William Green after his unanimous re-election yesterday to his tenth year as president of the more than 3,000,000 organized workers:

"I'm going to lead this army of organized labor forward until all of us enjoy the rights and privileges to which we are entitled."

With overwhelming votes behind them for shorter hours and higher wages under NRA codes and against unregulated currency inflation, few major questions remained to be disposed of by the almost 600 delegates.

CHECKOFF SEEN AS ROOSEVELT VICTORY

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—President Roosevelt tucked away the first victory for union labor wrenched from the big steel interests in 32 years today, and asked the barons for more.

Fighting to bring permanent peace to the captive coal mine fields of Western Pennsylvania, the President wants no compromise with the giant steel companies which own the mines.

PRESDIENT URGES SPEED

The concession of the steel magnates in granting qualified use of the checkoff system in captive mines did not fully satisfy Mr. Roosevelt. He suavely acknowledged receipt of the letters advising him of the one concession, and replied with the hope that the steel men would work with dispatch toward further progress.

Selection of the checkweighmen by the workers themselves was the second demand of the miners. Mr. Roosevelt wants that demand granted also.

Recognition of union labor—a startling victory for the workers—was contained in the agreement by the steel companies to allow use of the checkoff. They advised Mr. Roosevelt that whenever an individual worker voluntarily asked the company to deduct from his wages dues for the union or organization which he was a member, it would be done.

QUALIFY CONCESSION

Qualifying their concession, the steel companies advised the President they reserved the right to protect their nonunion workers from coercion or interference by union forces.

Steel companies had objected to operation of the checkoff system because they felt it would be an entering wedge in the steel industry for the union.

Ex-Gov. Nathan L. Miller, of New York, now with the American Iron and Steel Institute, wrote that Thomas Moses, of the United States Steel Corporation's Frick Coke Company, and Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, were carrying on negotiations. Murray represents the captive mine workers only—not his union—in the negotiations.

PA. TEACHERS STRIKE FOR PAY

SCRANTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Strike tactics in the school room kept 67 Jessup Borough teachers from their classes and threaten to cause a new walkout among 100 Old Forge teachers.

Both groups are battling for at least part payment of overdue salaries. More than $100,000 is due the Jessup teachers, unpaid for 10 months.

At the beginning of this term, the Old Forge teachers remained away from classes for a week in an effort to force payment of their six months' overdue salaries, totalling about $120,000. Since then they received one month's pay.

They voted yesterday to discontinue teaching Monday in protest against the borough school board's plan to float a $50,000 bond issue, necessity for which the teachers claim is being ascribed to their demands for payment.

A request from Dr. James N. Rule, Superintendent of Public Instruction, that the Jessup teachers return to work Monday, was ignored. Approximately 7,000 students are affected by the disputes.

Virginia Will Not Act Against Nudists

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The state government will follow a hands off policy regarding the establishment of a nudist colony in Virginia unless and until local authorities appeal for assistance, Gov. Pollard said today. day.

He added that he has no doubt that any persons walking around unclothed in view of others who object would be dealt with properly by authorities of Fairfax County where a nudist colony was reported yesterday to have been established.

Dynamite Expert Held in Mine Quiz

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 13.—Deputies at the Lambert mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company early today apprehended an alleged dynamite expert when he was discovered within 10 feet of the fan house of the mine.

The suspect, Albert Lee Palmer, 38, Negro, who said he had lived recently in Charles street, North Side, Pittsburgh, was turned over to county detectives here for questioning in connection with the recent dynamitings in the coal strike area. The detectives said he had admitted being an expert on explosives.

High School Ousts 287 Over Tuition

PITTSTON, Pa., Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Educational authorities dismissed 287 students from the high school here today because their tuition has not been paid. Books and other school supplies, owned by the students were confiscated.

This action was taken because educational authorities in Pittston Township and Dupont, homes of the students, failed to pay the specified tuition charges.

Checkoff Acceptance Text And Roosevelt's Reply

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The text of the letter of Nathan L. Miller, of the American Iron and Steel Institute, to President Roosevelt, announcing acceptance of the checkoff, follows:

"At a conference today of the owners of the so-called captive mines, I laid before them the statement enclosed in your letter to me of October 9. After full discussion of the matter and in an effort to meet your views, they have signed the letter which is enclosed herewith and which I trust you will find satisfactory.

"I also beg to advise you that I am informed that Mr. Moses, the president of the Frick Coke Company, is now, in accordance with our assurance to you on Saturday, engaged in a negotiation with Mr. Murray, the vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, as the representative of the employes of that company who are members of that organization.

"I beg you to believe that we have been moving with the utmost dispatch in a very earnest effort to reach a solution of the difficult problem with which we have had to deal."

PRESIDENT'S REPLY

The President's letter to Miller, sent yesterday, follows:

"I have received your letter of October 10 enclosing a letter from owners of captive mines stating their willingness to recognize voluntary orders for payment of any portion of their wages to any employe of their coal mine for dues to any organization of which he may be a member under certain conditions.

"It is not my understanding that the statement of these conditions or any other statement in these letters intends to interpret, modify or qualify any existing statutory requirement or the exercise of any statutory administrative discretion.

"I note also that Mr. Moses, of the H. C. Frick Company, is engaged in negotiation with Mr. Murray as representative of your employes who are members of his organization.

"I am gratified to note this progress and I trust that negotiation may proceed—as you say—with the utmost dispatch in a very earnest effort to reach a solution of this difficult problem."

OPERATORS' LETTER

The letter to the President, signed by a score of big corporations, tentatively agreeing to the check-off system, follows:

"The undersigned companies, operating directly or through affiliated companies so-called captive coal mines, have been advised of your letter of October 9, 1933.

"Each renews the assurance which has been previously given to you and which was restated by the committee invited to confer with you on Saturday that we are desirous of co-operating to the fullest extent in your recovery program.

"We understood at the conference on Saturday that the only point of difference in which it was felt that we could go further in our co-operation related to the collection of dues from those of our employes who were members of a union. As we attempted to make plain to you in our letter of October 6, 1933, our objection to the so-called 'check-off' system is that we believe, in the light of past experience, that the inevitable consequence of the adoption of such a system will be the closed union shop, unless it can be adequately safeguarded.

"Under the National Recovery act we are required to employ our workers without regard to their membership or non-membership in any labor organization and we feel that we owe a duty to protect our employes who do not desire to be coerced into joining a union.

"However, we will recognize voluntary orders for payment of any portion of the wages of any employes of our coal mines for dues to any organization of which he may be a member, to the extent that we are legally permitted so to do under the laws of the respective states in which our operations are conducted, on the understanding that all of our employes shall be free to join or not to join any union as they please, and that any of our employes who do not wish to join a union will in some effective way be assured of adequate protection from interference, restraint or coercion of any kind. It is not our intention to surrender any right which we may have to afford them such protection."

U. S. Acts as Miners Rap Checkoff Plan

ators would be forced to place on their books the name of the United Mine Workers' local union to which they turn over the deductions.

Johnson also declared that since the captive mine owners have offered the checkoff, miners who do not return to work will be considered as holding up the NRA program.

Indication that the operators themselves do not feel the "qualified checkoff" is recognition of the union was not expected to hurry the men in their return to the pits.

In brief, the operators told President Roosevelt in a letter yesterday, signed by President Nathan Miller, of the American Iron and Steel Institute, that they would deduce from miners' pay their dues in any union or organization, if the miners voluntarily requested that deduction.

But they insisted that miners not desiring that deduction—the checkoff—and not wishing to join any union must be protected.

The door to non-unionism was thus left wide open and the United Mine Workers of America was extended no special favors.

For two weeks, officials of that union have maintained that granting of the checkoff in "captive" mines would be full recognition.

They said that because deduction of dues from a pay envelope before the miner gets it insures the union's income. An insured income perpetuates the union. And that is what "captive" operators have tried to avoid in the past.

So the "captives" apparently decided that, if the United Mine Workers must have the checkoff, other organizations could have it, too, and that none must be forced to accept deductions from his pay.

An indication that such an arrangement won't be satisfactory to the men in Fayette County who mine for the H. C. Frick Coke Company, leader of the "captives" group, came from Martin Ryan, left-wing leader of the striking United Mine Workers' members in the coke region.

Ryan said:

"That is not recognition.

"If that is recognition or more than it says, the President should tell me."

Ryan pointed out that he doesn't speak for the membership in the United Mine Workers and that the new proposition must be submitted to the members. But Ryan has led in prolonging the strike until Frick recognized the union outright.

Spokesmen for the "holidaying" miners contend that the least they will probably be satisfied with will be an agreement by captive mine owners to make definite written contracts with the United Mine Workers' Union to collect union dues. It is pointed out that such agreements have been made by commercial mine operators and are considered to meet the legal requirements of the NRA because they do not specifically say they are exclusive. There is nothing in their texts to prevent the commercial mine owners from making additional concurrent contracts with individual employes or unions other than the United Mine Workers.

MOSES' VIEWS

It would appear that the operators don't consider the new concession as recognition. President Thomas Moses, of the Frick firm, asked about recognition, said:

"Well, that's up to the President of the United States. That's an entirely different matter."

And asked if the "qualified" checkoff is recognition, Moses answered:

"I don't think that that matter has anything to do with the union."

And on top of it all came a note of warning from the White House, indicating that Washington officialdom will protect the miners from possible herding into company unions or coercion to remain out of any union, when President Roosevelt said, in reply to Miller:

"It is not my understanding that the statement of these conditions or any other statement in these letters intends to interpret, modify, or qualify any existing statutory requirement or the exercise of any statutory administrative discretion."

The words used by Miller in conceding the checkoff principle were these:

"We will recognize voluntary orders for payment of any portion of the wages of any employe of our coal mines for dues to any organization of which he may be a member to the extent we are legally permitted to do so under the laws of the respective states in which our operations are conducted, on the understanding that all of our employes shall be free to join or not to join any union as they please and that any of our employes who do not wish to join a union will in some effective way be assured of adequate protection from interference, restraint, or coercion of any kind.

"It is not our intention to surrender any rights which we may have to afford them such protection."

Moses and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, will meet again, probably tomorrow, and from their meeting may come the decisive word that will send the men back to work.

The two met on Tuesday and again yesterday in attempts to thresh out the dispute, with Murray declaring obdurately for recognition but willing to accept the checkoff as recognition. From these conferences apparently came some of the willingness of the operators to grant the checkoff.

MINE HOLIDAY CONTINUES

Coal mines in most sections of Western Pennsylvania remained on holiday today, while others that have renewed operations reported increased operations.

Two mines in the Burgettstown area reported they had shut down—due to losing their orders. Their yards were filled with coal.

The rumored new march of striking miners on the Clairton by-product plant of the Carnegie Steel Company failed to materialize. The mill was not picketed, and workmen came and went without challenge.

One outbreak of violence was reported from Fayette County, center of the mine holiday.

The home of Mrs. Stella Rae, telephone operator at Smock, whose husband is a member of the Independent Brotherhood Union, was pelted with shotgun charges last night, police said.

Mrs. Rae and her five children were in the house. No one was injured.

The mines in the Fayette region remained closed.

In the Allegheny and Washington County district, south of Pittsburgh, pickets failed to close any of the working mines. The majority remained down, however.

LEWIS OUTLAWS UNION MEETING IN FAYETTE

its international leaders, Lewis and Philip Murray, international vice president at Pittsburgh, has been signed and attested to by nine local presidents, so-called insurgent leaders of the holiday movement in this district.

LEWIS' TELEGRAM

The Lewis orders, contained in a telegram sent to each local president in the district, read:

"Such a meeting will not be in conformity with the laws of the United Mine Workers of America and each local union and every member is hereby instructed not to attend or participate in any way in the business of such illegally called meeting."

The international office, Lewis' telegram stated, "had been informed" that the meeting was called for the "purpose of electing district officers."

Lewis declared:

"Any officers elected would not be legal officers under the laws of our union."

It was generally conceded that the opinion of the U. M. W. A. membership of this district strongly favored an election of officers. Sentiment against William Feeney, district president, has crystalized since he was almost forcibly ejected from a mass meeting of miners at Searrights, near here, 10 days ago.

FEENEY CHASED

Feeney, addressing the assemblage, urged an immediate return to work. He was booed and threatened with bodily harm and left hurriedly as the crowd surged menacingly around him.

It is reliably understood that overtures have been made to the international offices for a change in the District No. 4 leadership.

No official acknowledgement has been made and no open rebellious move had been made up until today's scheduled meeting.

There was no desire on the part of local leaders to rebel, spokesmen anxiously declare, and there will be no disobedience of President Lewis' mandate.

Today's meeting will be for the purpose of discussing the holiday and organizing picket movements more effectively. A group of local presidents, acting as a sort of unofficial board of strategy, will take charge of the meeting.

This group, all of whom are signers of the guarantee of fidelity to the U. N. W. A., is composed of the following local presidents:

The guarantee is in the hands of Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, acting as a mediator in the coal controversy for Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

FOUR UNIONS IN FIELD

Four separate union organizations today saw new hope for real participation in the collective bargaining of miners for wages and working conditions.

Each of these organizations that has been striving for membership and domination in the stormy Fayette County bituminous field, under the checkoff concessions made by the captive mine owners to President Roosevelt yesterday apparently has equal rights to consider itself entitled to represent miners and anticipate the future receipt of dues collected for it by the mine operators.

No prediction was made today, however, that all would eventually receive company collected dues.

The strongest group, not officially recognized, but none the less formidable, is the United Mine Workers of America, demanded by the majority of working and unemployed workers.

Conservatively, their membership numbers more than 12,000 in Fayette County alone.

SECRET ORGANIZATIONS

Among the Frick employes, of which there are about 8,000 in this region, it is estimated that nearly 3,000 have recently become affiliated with one of two so-called company union movements. These groups, known as the Independent Miners' Brotherhood and the Workman's Brotherhood, have been organized secretly among the miners refusing to align themselves with the United Mine Workers' groups.

The Independent Brotherhood had its origin among employes of the Frick-owned Colonial mines. Headquarters, according to membership cards being circulated in the region, have been established at Smock, where the Frick Colonial No. 1 mine is located. Cards do not bear the names of officers. Its known members do not welcome questions.

The Workman's Brotherhood is not so mysterious in its attitude. Members do not relish questions, but they explain the reason. One of its organizers, a Frick employe, told this correspondent:

"We are not ready for publicity. We have nothing to conceal—we're going to get a charter and we hope through the medium of publicity to attract quite a few miners to our organization.

"We are not a company union. We have organized for our own protection, both from the terrorization of other union groups and employment problems."

CONSOLIDATION RUMOR

This group claims a membership of 3,000 employes of Frick mines. It is rumored that this membership comes from a recent consolidation with the Independent Brotherhood, but members of both groups will neither affirm nor deny this.

The fourth group seeking a foothold in the present coal controversy is the Progressive Miners' Union, a Socialist organization with headquarters in Illinois.

Several similar attempts have been made by the National Miners' Union, a Communistic organization with headquarters in Pittsburgh, but their efforts in every case have failed with loud condemnation of leaders in the holiday movement here, who steadfastly maintain their allegiance to the United Mine Workers.

GERMANY SAYS SHE'LL FIGHT ARMS BAN

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A German spokesman today said that any attempt to haul up Germany and ask her to sign on the dotted line on a disarmament decision imposed by others will be followed by the withdrawal of the Germans from the conference and perhaps from the League of Nations.

The spokesman voiced the belief that Germany would remain in the conference if allowed to negotiate on the basis of equality but that the nation refuses to be treated as a participant shorn of all initiative.

Admitting the gravity of the situation, he said he rebelled against allegations that Germany is seeking to rearm when all she wants is a few defensive armaments in order to begin the suitable equipment of a transformed reichswehr (army).

The spokesman said:

"We do not want to rearm. We merely want some weapons, the number of which are to be negotiated.

"While other nations have been arming up to the strength authorized by treaty, it has even been hinted to us that we can not have the full number of arms of the type authorized by the Versailles treaty."

He concluded with an appeal to the American people not to permit the powers to dictate to Germany, saying that this would only aggravate the political situation.

Dr. Rudolf Nadolny, German representative, who left Geneva last night for Berlin, is expected to return Sunday.

POLICE QUELL ARAB RIOTS

JERUSALEM, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A few minor affrays, in which several persons were slightly injured and a few were arrested, accompanied Arab demonstrations planned for today in protest of a recent increase of Jewish immigration.

Tin helmetted British police and other officers patrolled the streets armed with sticks.

Crowds of Arab demonstrators sang songs directed against Zionism and against the government as they emerged from the mosques where, under the demonstration plans, they were called to prayers.

As soon as the demonstrators emerged from the mosques, however, they were quickly dispersed as the control methods the police had arranged to meet the emergency were put into operation.

Sunday School Meet Elects Officers

GETTYSBURG, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Election of officers and selection of the 1934 convention city today closes the seventy-first annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association.

Extension of Sunday school work was suggested to the 1,200 registered delegates at group conferences and general sessions yesterday as a means of occupying increased leisure time being provided by changing conditions.

Hitler Right to Hilt, Shaw Tells Tea Party

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw enlivened a literary tea party last night with a speech in which he declared:

"Hitler is perfectly right—he is right up to the hilt."

The far ends of the world figured in Shaw's address as he paralleled the types of patriotism in Japan and Germany, saying:

"Japan has a race which believes it belongs to the family of God for the purpose of governing the rest of the world."

The dramatist asserted:

"Everybody in the East says Japan has nothing to do but stretch out her hand and they say she can take Hongkong, she can take Singapore. She would take the Hawaiian Islands from America if America would let her.

"East is east and west is west, is what we say. What we really mean is west is west and the east belongs to it."

Turning to Germany, Shaw said:

"The whole ecret of Hitler has been that looking back on the Versailles treaty he found other nations had been plundering Germany. Hitler found there was absolute determination (in Germany) to stop this plundering.

"He wants to get rid of drama, literature, art and the Jews. They (the Germans) don't care about that. It's a mere trifle. What they really want is to be on an equal footing with every other nation."

NAZI PROTEST DELAY FORCED

International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Ambassador William E. Dodd today was forced to postpone his visit to Foreign Minister von Neurath regarding assaults against Americans because the presence of von Neurath was requestetd at a conference with Chancellor Hitler over the disarmament tangle.

Dodd is expected to call on the Foreign Minister later today or tomorrow.

Dodd will lodge a formal protest against the recent beating of Roland Veltz, an American who was struck in the fact by storm troopers. He will remind the foreign ministry that other cases of beatings of Americans have not been settled.

The American Ambassador will be armed for the visit with a list of 27 Americans assaulted since last March 5, for none of which, according to embassy attaches, the United States has received "proper satisfaction in a diplomatic sense," although apologies of individual brown shirt officers have been tendered.

BATTLE OVER PARTY NAME

Two sets of candidates in Wilkinsburg township will battle in court for the right to use the name Peoples Party at the November election.

Sarah L. Little, Duncan Beveridge and others today filed a petition asking that a nominating petition taken out by James N. Barker for justice of the peace and Andrew J. McKeever, for township treasurer, on the Peoples Party ticket be declared void on the ground that the name already had been pre-empted by a different group.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich set October 18 for a hearing.

High School Senior Dies of Beating

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Emmett Chapman, 20-year-old high school senior, died here today as the result of a beating suffered when he attempted to prevent two intruders from stealing vegetables from a neighbor's garden.

TEARS REVEAL GIRL'S IDENTITY

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The identity of a 16-year-old girl, held at St. Joseph's Hospital for three weeks as a victim of amnesia, was revealed last night by the girl herself after she had been moved by the tears of another girl, seeking a missing sister.

The patient said she was Anita Elizabeth Kirby, of Washington, D. C. She was found on Spruce Street Bridge near Passaic Falls September 22, and said her name was Dorothy Delphey. To all other questions she replied:

"I don't know."

A Hoboken girl heard of the case, visited the hospital last night, and in her disappointment, wept. Miss Kirby wept, too. Then she called a nurse and told her name.

From Washington came news that the girl's name was Dorothy Juanita Kirby and that she left home September 19 because she was not permitted to play the radio.

Wave of Swastika Fires Hits Vienna

VIENNA, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The country-wide wave of Swastika fires reached Vienna last night when, for the first time since the outlawing of the Nazi party, the Hitler emblem appeared in fiery form on historic Kobenzl Hill, overlooking the metropolis.

ALIBIS SOUGHT IN NAZI TRIAL

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—"Mistaken identity" was suggested today as a defense of three Bulgarian defendants in the Reichstag fire trial.

For the first time since the beginning of the trial of five men for the burning of the building last February, Paul Teichert, counsel for the three Bulgarians, took the center of the stage.

Teichert requested the summoning of more than a score of Muscovites to testify that the Bulgarians lived in Russia at certain times when they allegedly were seen in Berlin. Waiters from Berlin restaurants also were listed as defense witnesses, to testify as to when the defendants ate at certain restaurants, and with whom.

Other witnesses for whom Teichert demanded summonses will be called, he explained, for the purpose of "confronting each other to demonstrate that a mistake in identity is not only theoretically possible, but actually occurred."

Austrian Socialists Urge Strike, Revolt

VIENNA, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A general strike and a revolution were urged today as the Socialist answer to Heimwehr Fascism in Die Wahrheit, a new and uncensored young Socialist tabloid newspaper distributed through the mails in plain envelopes.

Die Wahrheit's issue was devoted to convincing the Socialists that unless they were willing to risk their lives in a revolt against the overlordship of Premier Mussolini, of Italy, "who is ruling Austria through his minister in Vienna," they might as well give up hope of repelling the Nazis.

Attack on German Legation Reported

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Four alleged Jewish Communists attacked the German legation in Bucharest today, according to a dispatch to the newspaper Lokal Anzeiger.

The report said the Communists smashed numerous windows with stones wrapped in red cloth and hurled a bottle of red paint against the German emblems on the front door. One, Nahum Rothstein, was arrestetd. The police president apologized to the German minister for the incident.

BRITISH PRESS DEBT CASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—British war debt spokesmen today rounded out a new exposition of the reasons they believe preclude full payment of the London government's obligations to this country.

Sir Frederick Leith-Ross and his colleagues had an engagement postponed from yesterday, to call at the Treasury for their second formal discussion of the debt problem.

In the first, Sir Frederick told American officials that radical changes in economic conditions had occurred which were not foreseen when the debt was funded. He also contended the debts originated in non-commercial loans which were necessary to the effective continuation of the war.

LOOD CONTROL PLAN INDORSED BY GENERAL

The Pittsburgh $53,000,000 flood ontrtol plan received the indorse-nent of Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn ere today.

He will be the principal speaker t the annual banquet tonight of e Propeller Club of the United tates in the William Penn Hotel.

Concerning the flood control lan, he said:

"Ordinarily the federal gov-ernment requires that the local listrict benefited by such a plan hould pay 50 per cent of the ost. But considering the mag-itude of the Pittsburgh plan, nd the fact that it is an inter-tate project of such impor-ance to a vast stretch of terri-tory, I think that the govern-ment should carry the project hrough. In addition, it could e a key unit in the govern-nent's public works program to nake jobs for thousands."

Recent proposals to impose a ll tax on inland waterways oused the General's ire. He id:

"Such a tax would ruin what he government has spent mil-ons and 100 years of effort to reate — cheap inland water ansportation. Eventually the ivers may bear a tax, but not ow. Such a tax might be all ight if the government levied oll against all government-ided carriers, railroads, roads nd airlines."

But the general sees the future inland waterways with a ight eye. He points out that e government will spend seven nes as much for waterways xt year as it has ever spent in single year before.

His speech tonigt will be "A actical Plan for Co-ordinating ansportation," a definite at-mpt to present a workable solu-n of the age-old dispute be-een opponents and defenders federal free waterways.

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The United States will recognize the Grau San Martin government of Cuba within the next 10 days, probably sooner, Universal Service learned today on highest official authority.

The Grau government, recognized yesterday by Spain, has dispatched an informal envoy to Washington, due to arrive late this week, to place a plea of recognition before the State Department.

The envoy is Juan Casanova, distinguished Cuba sugar man. He holds no political position with the present government, and is a non-partisan figure in Cuban politics.

The State Department, it was learned, is prepared to grant the requested recognition. Secretary Hull feels the Grau government has positively established its ability to maintain order in the island republic.

Preparatory to recognition, the State Department has withdrawn four American fighting vessels from Cuban waters, explaining that conditions are so quiet that their presence is no longer required.

Mosquitoes Slow To Bite in Work Of Science

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A strange reluctance of mosquitoes to bite people in laboratory sleeping sickness tests was reported today by U. S. Public Health Service scientists.

But the scientists hastened to say the difficulty was encountered only in the laboratory.

While a dozen of the big culex mosquitoes, common here, might bite a person a dozen times in as many minutes on a suburban veranda, a swarm of 200 mosquitoes in a laboratory produce only about two or three bites in two hours in the laboratory.

MINERS JAILED IN SLAYING

International News Service.

SCOTIA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Three unemployed Pennsylvania coal miners have confessed to the murder of Patrolman William E. Deal, of the New York Central railroad police, who was shot down Wednesday night in the local railroad yards, the authorities announced today.

The men under arrest gave the names of Charles Stuller, 34; his brother, Clifford Stuller, 24, and Clifford Gilbert, 26, their brother-in-law, all of St. Benedict, Pa.

The trio were captured at gun point by state police and deputy sheriffs in the woods near Clifton Park, a few miles north of this city.

Al Gets Degree, Still Has Space

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith hung a new honorary degree on his office wall today, but there's still room for a few more.

He was given the degree of doctors of laws by the University of the State of New York in Albany last night to add to those from Harvard, Columbia, Manhattan, Fordham and the University of Ireland, not forgetting the degree of F. F. M., by his own description, "Fulton Fish Market."

West Still Wild; Bears Wreck Cabins

BILLINGS, Mont., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Out in this state where the West is still somewhat wild, bears destroyed two cabins last month, the State Predatory Animal Control reported today.

Bears and other predatory beasts also made away with 229 sheep, 179 turkeys and other domestic stock, the report said. Four bobcats, 104 coyotes and eight bears were slain during the month.

Van Loon's Dinner Suit Attached By Dentist

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Hendrik Van Loon, the writer, a guest of honor at dinner last night in the American Woman's Club, had to come in a business suit while all the rest of the speakers at the table were dressed up.

It was the only suit he had left.

He explained in his after-dinner speech that all the clothes he had at his hotel had been attached on the complaint of a local American dentist, who "evidently had been reading about the French budget deficit."

K. OF C. MARK COLUMBUS DAY

Declaring that this is an age of "too many laws and too little justice," Clare Gerald Fenerty, assistant district attorney of Philadelphia, speaking last night at the Columbus Day dinner of Pittsburgh Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in Fort Pitt Hotel, said "we had to invent new laws for the novelty of committing new transgressions, hence prohibition."

He continued:

"It is a sad commentary upon our fallen human nature that in order to govern the entire universe with its billions of human souls, an all-wise Providence devised but 10 laws, while we, in order to direct our own infinitesimal destinies, insist upon passing 25,000 new laws each year."

The dinner, Pittsburgh's main celebration of the holiday, was also addressed by Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, rabbi of Rodef Shalom Temple; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of the parish schools of the Pittsburgh diocese, and Thomas E. Doyle, past grand knight of Duquesne Council. State Senator Frank J. Harris, general chairman, introduced Francis A. Keating, toastmaster.

GUARD VATICAN AGAINST BOMBS

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Rigid precautions have been taken by Vatican authorities to prevent a recurrence of the bombing of St. Peter's following the arrest this week of two men charged with complicity in the explosion which injured four persons last June 25.

The Governor of Vatican City, Marquis Serafini, has issued an ordinance requiring all visitors to St. Peter's carrying valises and packages, and even women carrying handbags, to deposit them at two booths, one for large objects and the other for small ones.

Every such object must be opened for examination by attendants before being received for deposit. The same rules apply to the Vatican Museum.

It was reported that Leonardo Bucciglione, a Rome clerk, who was arrested Tuesday, had confessed that he was one of a group, with headquarters at Paris, which intended the St. Peter's bombing to be one of a series of similar explosions throughout the kingdom.

Science Helps Pair Escape and Then Traps Them

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 13.—(A.P.)—Patrolman Raymond Stark is undecided whether science and invention work to the advantage of criminals or the police.

He put two prisoners in an elevator on the fifth floor of City Hall and was about to follow them when the door was slammed in his face. Down went the prisoners.

They would have escaped, too, but for the fact he was able to telephone an officer on the first floor who apprehended the fugitives as they stepped from the car.

RUSSIA AMAZES REYNOLDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, returned today on the liner President Roosevelt from a trip to Russia.

He said he was amazed at the indications of progress in the Soviet Republic.

Asked whether he would advocate recognition of the Soviet Republic, Senator Reynolds replied:

"That is entirely within the province of the President."

Senator Reynolds was in Russia from September 17 to October 1, and part of the time was with Senator McAdoo, who is making a study of Russian Industrial and economic life.

Man, 74, Sets New Roller Skating Mark

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—A new world's mark of 112 hours 41 minutes continuous roller skating was claimed here yesterday by W. W. Miller, 74. Observers of the endurance tests said he was forced to stop at 1:41 p. m. by faulty wheels. He started at 9 p. m. last Saturday.

Miller, widely known in Pacific Northwest skating circles as an instructor, said the former skating mark was 100 hours and 25 minutes set by Billy Weatherell, of England.

COPELAND SAYS GANGS PERIL U. S. RULE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The gangster, kidnaper and extortionist today were termed a challenge to organized government by Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, chairman of the Senate committee investigating racketeering.

In an address before the National Anti-Crime Conference, under auspices of the United States Flag Association, Copeland said:

"We must choose between bowing the knee to the predatory criminal and finding some effective means of dealing with the rats of the underworld.

WHERE REMEDY LIES

"The American people must rise in its might and shake off the shackles of criminal control, or else the increasing boldness and grasp of power will make the criminal surpeme in his authority."

The real remedy in fighting crime, Copeland said, "goes to the very foundation of society." He added:

"Until we raise a generation of mentally balanced citizens, trained from their youth in law observance and love of country, we will be facing the same problem."

Detailing methods of controlling crime, Copeland advocated greater use of compacts between states with the consent of Congress in seeking the arrest and return of criminals, increased personnel for the justice department's division of investigation, compulsory fingerprinting, broadening the so-called "Lindbergh law" to cover ransom demands transmitted by telephone or telegraph, a ban on the sending and receipt of stolen property through inter-tstate commerce, control of firearms, a new study of the parole and probation system and a limit on the number of peremptory challenges permitted in courts.

UP TO PUBLIC

He spoke against adding new amendments to the constitution with which to reach the criminal, contending that there now existed sufficient ways of approaching the crime problem.

"In the last analysis," Copeland said, "what we accomplish in the enactment of new laws or the reform of legal procedure will be the result of an aroused public opinion.

"Courage on the part of the citizen is essential. It is not pleasant to incur the wrath of the criminal and it is only natural for one to hold his tongue from fear of it. But we can't end crime by hiding it. It is the relentless glare of publicity that the gangster dreads."

DRIVE PLEDGED

In pledging an intensive drive against criminals through state and federal co-operation, Attorney General Cummings put aside proposals that an American "Scotland Yard" be created on the ground that the size of the United States made such an agency impracticable.

Instead he suggested the possible establishment of a national institution of criminology for scientific research and training of officers, and the formation of state constabularies.

MENCHEN CRIME 'CURE' BACKED

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The recent declaration by H. L. Mencken, the critic, that all habitual criminals should be hanged today drew support from Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of the Supreme bench of Baltimore.

Among other suggestions made by Judge O'Dunne for the consideration of what he termed the legal "brain trust" were:

Take the judiciary, the prosecuting attorney and the jury commissioner wholly out of politics.

Abolish "abuses and barbarism of the third degree, which is widespread, if not universal," and deny the right to use a confession obtained by persons in authority after arrest.

Abolish the statute of limitations.

Give the Appelate Court the right to modify or increase a sentence in its discretion.

Abolish too frequent rotation of judges in Criminal Court.

Frequent rotation, said Judge O'Dunne, "seems as absurd as to have the professor in Greek annually succeed the professor in astronomy or chemistry."

SCHOOL ABLAZE WHILE NIGHT CLASS WORKS

A blaze beneath a staircase in Schenley High School was quickly extinguished by firemen last night. A student at the night classes sounded the alarm.

There was no excitement among the students, the fire being extinguished before many of them knew about it, according to Battalion Chief John Callaghan, who estimated damage at $500. He said the fire apparently started on the third floor and burned downward. Its cause was undetermined.

A large shed in the rear of 218 Erin street was razed by fire of undetermined origin last night. Several thousand bottles stored in the place were destroyed by the flames, which illuminated the sky and were visible throughout the neighborhood.

The house fronting the shed is owned by Frank Lustig, the bottle dealer, and was bombed two years ago, police said.

AUTHOR SEES ARMS PARLEY AS FAILURE

Nations will meet in Geneva and talk about peace, but the net result of all their talk will me more war, declares Henri Barbusse, noted French pacifist and author. He spoke on "Against War and Fascism" in the Y. M. and W. H. A., last night.

The horror of the World War still lives for this tall, kindly Frenchman, who in the midst of bursting shells and the grime of trenches produced his most famous book called "Le Feu," meaning "Under Fire."

Between puffs at cigarets, which he kept burning in an endless process of lighting one from another, M. Barbusse told his interviewer:

"I fear that the disarmament conference is not likely to have any success. Each one of the great personages who will take part in it will represent the interests of the imperialism of his own country. Each country will be willing to have the others disarm but will not be willing to disarm itself."

EVASIVE ON NRA

Smiling at his own apparent pessimism, he quickly changed the talk to America's immediate problem of putting over the NRA. But on this topic he was evasive, refusing to be quoted as to whether he thought there was a similarity between the system of organizing labor under the Blue Eagle and the syndicates of Fascism. However, he gave an indirect answer:

"Chancellor Hitler, for instance, is a representative of a general movement of reaction which one finds in every country. This system of reaction already is installed in certain countries and is being installed in others."

Strikes, which have sprung up like prairie fires in Western Pennsylvania and throughout the nation as the NRA has moved forward, are, in his opinion, justified. He said:

"I cannot consider strikes a good thing because they are an indication of poverty and misery of the workers. On the other hand the world-wide movement for peace naturally interests itself in the rights of the workers and of the exploited against the exploiters."

HEAR BRITISH LEADER

Another puff on a cigaret, and M. Barbusse is back on his favorite subject—peace. The only lesson the world has learned from the World War, he is convinced, is the "common sense one of letting us carry on this great movement against war. This is not true of the official governments, but is true of the intellectuals and the great masses of the working classes."

The writer's appearance in Pittsburgh was sponsored by a newly formed anti-war committee and was preliminary to forming a permanent anti-war organization. J. C. Weaver, of Kingsley House, is chairman of the provisional committee. Tom Mann, British labor leader, also addressed the meeting last night.

M. Barbusse will speak at an open forum on "Literature and Peace" at 8 o'clock tonight in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement.

Fire Prevention Orator Shows How

PARMA, Mich., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Lieut. Ray Howard, of the Jackson fire department, was speaking on fire prevention before high school students when he saw smoke pouring from the roof of a house across the street.

Without finishing his speech, he and a fellow fireman rushed from the schoolroom, clambered to the roof of the burning house and were putting out the blaze when the fire department arrived.

Prayers Heard, Says Senator's Blind Father

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Seated in his big easy chair, the blind father of Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania learned last night from the Associated Press of his son's acquittal on lottery charges.

Said David Davis, slender parent of the Senator, as his face lighted perceptibly:

"My prayers have been answered.

"I knew he was innocent and have prayed continuously that he would be publicly freed of these most unfair charges."

Then he knelt and offered another prayer "of thanksgiving" for the verdict.

DUDES GONE, WEST STARTS FALL ROUNDUP

Feed Price, Forcing Early Sales, Irks Cattlemen

DENVER, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The dudes have gone from the ranch, the boys are home from the Rodeo wars and the old ranch ain't what it was this summer.

The old man has hung up his rusty revolvers, kicked off his silver spurs, crawled off the horse and into the flivver and gone back to blue serge and white shirts. Safe in mothballs, the goatskin chaps and the cerise neckties are laid away for another year as the waddies go forth in overalls and woolens for the fall roundup.

The silver-mounted saddle is under canvas and the Spanish riata hangs on the wall. Far too precious, these, to be used in the brush of the high ranges. Simple leather and hempen lariats do the work and cost less.

Cowponies, which toted dudes over safe trails or browsed along fishing streams the summer long, are relearning their hard lessons as the herds are rounded up, cut, sorted and shipped to market or to lower ranges.

This is the work round-up; not the joyous pursuit of bawling calves for branding in the spring, but endless days on horseback in the fogs and snow, hours of searching deep ravines for straying, half wild cattle and nights of soggy blankets and saddle rations. No joy is there in cutting, sorting, sending this one to the railhead, that one to the winter pasture. It is work—the most gruelling work of the cowboys' year.

This year, the work may go for naught, the Colorado Cattle Growers Association believes. Lack of feed, which is forcing the cattle to market despite low prices, is causing heavy losses to ranch owners. A plan has been approved by Secretary Wallace, according to Dr. B. F. Davis, executive secretary of the organization, whereby the government will buy thousands of pounds of beef to steady the market and to feed the unemployed.

Cowpunchers Back From Rodeos, Doff Fancy Garb

But meantime, while owners look for feed or markets and the government moves to aid them, the round-up, delayed as long as possible, is going ahead.

Fan Letters Tell Odd Tales

By AIRCASTER

As you might well imagine, many curious letters accumulate in the files of those oracles of the air who specialize in advice, domestic, moral, and otherwise.

And the Voice of Experience is hardly an exception.

The wide variation in the nature of his fan mail is exemplified by two letters delivered this week.

The first apprises him of the happy fact that his broadcasts have reunited a mother and daughter in Connecticut, after a separation of 17 years.

The second gives you an idea of the mental processes of an average radio correspondent.

The writer obviously is a righteous lady interested in church work.

She tells a sad, but not unfamiliar story about the handsome young bank cashier, named Elmer, who pilfered 50 grand from the bank and lammed out of town with the faithless wife of his best friend.

"Now that he's gone," deplores the letter-writer, "can you help? Can you suggest someone to succeed him as teacher in our Sunday school?"

* * *

Crows for Potatoes

Moran and Mack, the famous "Two Black Crows," have been signed for four broadcasts with Fred Waring starting the 25th., and replacing Richman and Berle.

The agency responsible for the program explains in a long letter that the change is being made "because audiences will not continue to listen to a cold potato."

And all this time I've been thinking it was a beried potato.

* * *

Gimmick

Columbus sailed a nifty ship,
And for himself a name he made.
But Isabella backed the trip—
So even then, the woman paid!

Which brings us to yesterday's holiday atmosphere and the inevitable side remarks from the gay folk of radio row.

In pointing out things to be remembered about Columbus, Paul, the dean of modern music, for instance, proudly recalled that Columbus was the first Whiteman to land hereabouts.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Alma Krekler, singer of sweet songs, joins Fran Eichler's band for the first time, for a half-hour program at 6.

Jimmy Murray presents members of the Pitt coaching staff for his "Football Show" at 8.

Pick and Pat, the two funny men, are heard at a new time tonight, being billed at 10:30.

Eddie Peyton serenades the Navy as the highspot of his 11:30 Frivolities.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The recent birthday anniversary at the Heinz plant in honor of the founder's memory brings to the mind of one globe trotter an incident out of the past, as well as a favorite saying of H. J. Heinz.

One day, years and years ago, a little lad was poring over the books in the children's room of the Carnegie Library.

So engrossed was he in a story of Cuchulain that he didn't notice the arrival of several distinguished-looking gentlemen until a librarian tapped him on the shoulder and told him that he was wanted "over nere."

Fearful that he might have been doing something that he shoudn't have been doing, he, full of trepidation, answered the summons.

He was directed to the group of visiting gentlemen and was welcomed by one who inquired his name and then said:

"This is Mr. Heinz."

The lad, seeing the soft, kindly face framed with white flowing side whiskers, knew then everything was all right. That man was a friend.

Mr. Heinz told him to take a pencil and write as he dictated. Eagerly the boy did. When he had finished Mr. Heinz signed his name.

This is what he wrote:

The boy, now a man, still treasures that slip of paper.

* * *

Leah Verbofsky, of Mellon street, has written a corking good Globe Trotter theme song to the tune of "Turkey in the Straw." It ends with:

"That the moral, good folks, is 'Get your Sun-Tele'."

That's the idea all right.

Frank G. McPherson, Beaver Falls, has submitted a peach of an NRA anthem but space limitations prohibited its publishing.

Cashier, L. E. Huseman; assistant cashier, C. G. McKee, and board of directors, Thomas M. Allen, W. H. Cadwallader, George R. Craig, Frank H. Davis, Fred L. Graf, A. D. Harrison, Edward A. Jenkins, Jr., S. C. McConahey, J. C. McQuiston, Roscoe Seybold, and Mr. Noble.

The plan for the new bank, approved by the Comptroller of the Currency, called for a capital of $200,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $50,000. Under the provisions of the Glass-Steagall Banking Act the deposits will be insured in part and the stock not subject to double liability. Fifty per cent of the deposits of the old bank will be available at the opening of the new institution.

Those active in organization of the new bank are Mr. Allen, J. Torrence Miller, Mr. McConahey, Mr. Jenkins, Mr. McQuiston, Mr. Craig and W. H. Cheffey.

JEWISH RELIEF HEAD SOUGHT

GENEVA, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The names of three Americans, Alfred E. Smith, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Nicholas Roosevelt, were mentioned as possibilities today as the League of Nations sent out feelers as to who was best available for undertaking the job as high commissioner in handling the problem of the Jewis refugees from Germany.

A league official revealed that the name of Mr. Smith, former Governor of New York, was under consideration. Others talked of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., the former governor general of the Philippines, and Nicholas Roosevelt, recently retired minister to Hungary.

Mr. Smith was informed of the suggestion at Albany, N. Y., but declined to comment "because this is the first I have heard of it."

The league council, taking quick action on the plan for the relief of the German Jewish refugees, voted during yesterday's session urgently to ask the appointment of the high commissioner by Raoul Amador, of Panama, the head of the section. The German delegates did not vote.

ARRESTED MEN SLUG SHERIFF

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Sheriff Perry Browning was slugged and tossed from a bridge into the Wichita River here last night by three of seven men he arrested because of their suspicious actions near a railroad trestle.

The river is virtually dry near the bridge and the Sheriff, after regaining consciousness, crawled to a filling station. He was taken to a hospital, where physicians had not determined the extent of his injuries.

Ten men were taken in custody for questioning concerning the attack. The Sheriff said his attackers were Negroes.

SHAVE $2.20; JAIL BARBER

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Thomas Colligan went into a barber shop for a shave. When the barber had finished he presented Colligan with a bill for $2.20. Colligan protested that a sign said shaves cost 20 cents, whereupon the barber explained he had given him a "violet ray treatment and a lemon facial."

Colligan tendered a $1 bill and asked for his change which was not forthcoming. Soon afterward a policeman appeared on the scene, and took the barber, Andrew Dellis, away.

Now he's in the hoosegow.

MILL-POLLUTED WATER DUE TO ARRIVE

Coal black water polluted by paper mills at Johnsonburg, is due to arrive within the next few days at the city's filtration plant on the Allegheny River, Aspinwall.

C. F. Drake, superintendent of filtration, said late yesterday the water will continue black for approximately four days.

The polluted water, even after passing through the filtration beds, will have a brownish color and taste of vegetable matter, according to James H. Kennon, chief engineer in the water bureau.

A great part of the polluted water now flowing down the Allegheny River was recently discharged from the Piney hydroelectric dam in Clarion River. The dam, until the last four days, has been discharging about 1,000,000,000 gallons daily, Drake said yesterday. The dam's normal discharge is only one-tenth that volume.

The Armstrong County Water Company at Kittanning reported the black water from the Clarion River arrived at its plant yesterday afternoon.

Kennon attributes much of the vegetable taste of the water to falling leaves in the state's Cook Forest.

Quadruplets Born In W. Va.; One Dies

SALEM, W. Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Harrison County's first set of quadruplets in many years, three girls and a boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Grover Benedum yesterday. One of the girls died shortly after birth, but the others were reported to be healthy.

Benedum, a former coal miner, has four other children, the oldest 16.

Hunter, Truant From School, Bags Buck

DENVER, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Carl Suppes, Jr., 14, started to school, but went deer hunting instead—and bagged his buck. En route to classes he decided deer hunting held greater attraction and hitchhiked to his uncle's ranch at Salida. A telephone call to his parents explained his disappearance.

Bride in Trousers Amazes Marrying Justice

MIFFLINBURG, Pa., Oct. 13.—(INS.)—Justice of the Peace L. F. Lybargar wondered today what would come next.

His latest performance was a wedding in which the bride substituted men's clothing for the conventional trousseau.

When Mrs. Alverta M. Rouse, 17-year-old widow, and David Hanselman, 50, came to him to be married, Lybargar asked for the bride.

"She's the little boy in the man's clothing."

For three years Mrs. Hanselman has worn overalls to do house work and men's suits for dress purposes.

Husband Gets Half Of Woman's Estate

CHARGES MATE CLAIMED HOUSE

Immediately after their marriage her husband demanded she give him all her property, Jane Saar, of 18 North Boquet street, testified before Judge W. Heber Dithrich in asking for a divorce from Albert J. Saar. She added:

"He told me the same day of our marriage, that he was the head of the house and as such, should turn over all I had to him."

Judge Dithrich, inquiring if there was any agreement of that nature before they were wed, she answered:

"No sir. He never earned it. I owned the home in which we lived in North Boquet street and earned enough keeping roomers, to buy the place."

They were married in 1929 and Saar left in 1931 but returned and made further demands for her property, according to Mrs. Saar, knocking her down when she refused. He left again in 1932. She charges cruel and barbarous treatment.

what makes a cigarette taste better

WHAT makes anything taste better? It's what is in it that makes a thing taste better.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because we buy ripe tobaccos. These ripe tobaccos are aged two and a half years—thirty months. During this time the tobaccos improve—just like wine improves by ageing.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because they have the right kind of home-grown tobaccos and Turkish Tobaccos "welded together."

We hope this answers your question.

Under Surface Moves Vital in City Fight

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields

The major and vital movements of the Pittsburgh municipal campaign are operating beneath the surface, with the public inauguration of the campaign delayed until next Wednesday by the Democrats and until the following Monday by the Republicans.

But the undercover negotiations are of extreme importance, probably more so than what happens in the open. For these negotiations revolve about the efforts of Democrats to obtain assistance from Republicans who were dissatisfied with the results of the September primary, bringing about the nomination of John S. Herron as the Republican mayoralty candidate.

One story now afloat is that preparations are under way to open headquarters for William N. McNair, Democratic opponent of Herron, in the Hotel Roosevelt, the site of the operations of the campaign of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell in the primary. This phase of the campaign would be entirely apart, of course, from the Magee Building headquarters operated for McNair by the regular Democratic organization.

* * *

Mackrell Men May Staff New McNair Quarters?

And should the headquarters be established it will be staffed by men who were attached to the Mackrell movement in the primary. It will, however, exert its influence only in the municipal campaign, and will not seek to defeat the Republican judicial candidates, with the possible exception of Charles H. Lane, Jr., who is the Republican nominee for Juvenile Court.

That the headquarters will be opened is not a definitely established fact. But it is known that men who were associated with Mackrell in various capacities have discussed the subject, and at least one yesterday said he would be working at the old stand next week, but this time for McNair.

It is possible that this gentleman may have been a bit precipitate in his prophesy, but it is nevertheless a fact that many of those connected with the Mackrell campaign have been withholding any declaration of what they intended to do in the general election.

Mr. Mackrell has been resting since the primary election, when he ran second for the mayoralty nomination. He is reported to have held some conferences with a few extremely close friends, but as a general proposition he is keeping himself free from politics for the moment, and probably will have nothing definite to say until he returns to his office, perhaps not until the middle of next week.

Even should Mr. Mackrell carry into the general election the sentiments he expressed against the present Republican city ticket, he might find himself handicapped in a continuance of his active energy because of the Republican judicial candidates. He is friendly to Judges Ralph H. Smith and Harry H. Rowand, candidate for Common Pleas Court, and Judges Frank A. Piekarski and Benjamin Lencher, candidates for County Court.

* * *

Move Might Jeopardize Judicial Candidates

These four gentlemen have Republican nominations only. If there should occur a Democratic sweep, in which Mr. Mackrell would have even a semblance of participation, their election might be jeopardized. This consideration may cause the blow-up of the entire proposition for opening McNair headquarters in the Roosevelt, but the subject has been under discussion, is today, and so far no positive conclusion has been reached.

Gov. Pinchot, during a visit in Pittsburgh last night, had a conference in his suite in the Pittsburgher Hotel with Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence. The Governor said the subject matter of the meeting was the impending special legislative session and what should be included in the call. Naturally, he would consult the Democrats on this subject because they have a sizeable bloc in the Assembly, and in the last regular session were of considerable assistance to Mr. Pinchot.

It is reasonable to believe that the topic of old age pensions was discussed, though both participants were silent. The Governor and the Democrats fought for the proposition in the regular session through a constitutional amendment, and will do so next month with a direct bill as the vehicle to embarrass the regular Republican organization of the state.

Mr. Pinchot, asked if he had any comment to make on the Pittsburgh election, said he did not, "at this time." The qualification intimated he might speak later, but it is a certainty he will take no step which would jeopardize the success of Judge Smith, who has come to be looked upon as the principal Pinchot leader in this section.

Two Men Arrested In Downtown Break

While Patrolman Thomas Scanlon was patrolling his beat in the downtown section early today he saw two men attempting to force open a dentist's display window at Fifth avenue and Market street. He pounced upon them after they had the case open. At Central Police Station they said they were Frank Hasic, 20, of 844 Lockhart street, and Edward Harris, 21, of 10 Smithfield street.

VOTE MACHINE QUIZ TO CALL OWN EXPERTS

Nollie Discouraged And Lonely After Reaching Big City

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

CHAPTER IV.

A hateful scene with Lil over the missing $10. Nollie had not accused Lil. Had merely stated the fact of the money having disappeared from their room, at the same time keeping her quiet blue eyes on Lil's tell-tale countenance.

"So you think I steal, in addition to my other sins?" Lil had spat out, her face, under its rouge, splashed with color.

"I don't think anything at all, except that two $5 bills that were here at noon have disappeared from my suitcase."

Synopsis

Nollie Day, young and pretty, lives in a small town with her aunt and uncle. She works in her uncle's paint shop for a nominal salary, most of which her aunt takes for board. Her 18-year-old cousin, Lil, lazy, irresponsible girl, who borrows from Nollie rather than work, shares her room. Nollie longs for a career in New York. The opportunity arrives when she wins a $50 prize. Jake Tippett, calling to keep an appointment with Lil, mistakes her for Nollie because she is wearing Nollie's clothes. He throws his arms around her and says, "At last, I've got you alone, Nollie darling." Lil is furious. Next day, Nollie discovers $10 of her prize money missing.

Now Go On

"And you claimed you couldn't even lay your hands on $8.95? You refused to help me out on the dance dress?"

Nollie explained her winning of the check, of how she'd gone down to the Morning Appeal and cashed it, following their conversation. "In any case I couldn't have let you have the extra money," she had added quietly, "you already owe me $15."

And at that psychological moment Aunt Sara had appeared at the bedroom door with a square cardboard box with Schimbel's label on it, and instinctively Nollie knew that this was the coveted dress!

"So you did get it after all?"

Lil only hesitated for a second, then she flew into a violent tantrum. Considering she'd gone downtown and borrowed the necessary $8.95 from a girl friend, she shouted, who, thank the Lord, wasn't as stingy as Nollie, why shouldn't she buy whatever she wanted?

NOLLIE ACCUSED

What business was it of Nollie's what she did? Nollie was jealous because she hadn't a beau of her own, and was trying in vain to take Jake Tippett from her. But Jake was wise to Nollie and her kind and he hadn't a particle of use for her!

To top all this, Nollie—here Lil swung around with the accusation to her mother—Nollie dared to call her own cousin a thief!

Aunt Sara joined in the fray, and mother's and daughter's voices were raised high. Uncle Cy came padding up the stairs in his carpet slippers to find out the reason of the row. He tried to side with Nollie, who claimed she had made no accusations at all, merely stated the fact of the money being missing ... but his voice was drowned in the general deluge.

* * *

At half past 12 that night, Nollie—who had got herself and the clumsy suitcase that contained her few belongings stealthily out of the house and down to the railroad station—boarded the night train for New York.

* * *

She found a temporary nest for herself in a diminutive hall bedroom in one of those fading "brownstone fronts" in the West Forties, at $7 a week.

She was dazed, albeit thrilled, by this pulsating town that is like no other city on earth.

LOOKS FOR WORK

Buildings towering into blue heaven. The elevated roared beneath her window. Street cars clanged. There was the incessant thunder of the traffic and the honk-honk of automobiles.

10,000 'FIRST' COVERS SENT

Acting Postmaster William M. Turner estimated this morning that more than 10,000 "first-day" covers had been sent in for the new Gen. Kosciusko commemorative stamps, which were placed on "first-5-cent-day" sale at Pittsburgh Postoffice today—simultaneously with Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, St. Louis and Kosciusko, Miss. There was also a steady line of collectors at the retail stamp window all morning getting early specimens and in "singles" and "blocks" for their collections.

The Kosciusko stamp will be available at all other postoffices throughout the United States as soon as distribution can be perfected at Washington. Postmaster General Farley placed Pittsburgh on the list for "first-day" sale on account of the increasing interest of stamp collecting in this area since the inauguration of the Stamp Collectors' column in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

FATAL CRASH ENDS PARTY

Joy was turned to tragedy early today when an automobile load of young people returning from a dance at Culmerville overturned on KDKA boulevard. When the car was righted Stanley Smolic, 19, the drive of Bairdsford, East Deer Township, was found dead. His companions, Anna Elder, Mary Antolic and Frank Fabach, escaped injury.

Helen Foster, 25, of 7536 Bennett street, and Theodore Yearsley, 32, of 5871 Ellsworth avenue, were treated for minor injuries at Pittsburgh Hospital last night as a result of a crash between two automobiles at Fifth and Shady avenues.

Veterans to Push Organization Plans

Five meetings to further organization activities in Allegheny County are scheduled for tonight by the United American Veterans' Association.

They were to be held at the Franklin School, Foxhurst and Logan streets; Greenfield School, Greenfield avenue and Haworth street; South High School, South Tenth and Carson streets; Horace Mann School, Shadeland and Dickson avenues, and the Bellevue Borough Hall.

MAGEE ASSAILS ASNIS CHARGE

James M. Magee, Pittsburgh member of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission now being investigated by a special legislative committee, today struck back at Charles E. Asnis, dismissed member of the commission, who charged Magee and another member with responsibility for revocation of orders halting sale of certain securities.

Magee labeled the charge a "monumental lie," adding:

"In Asnis' case it does not amount to merely the wish to get back at Gov. Pinchot for firing him. Rather it is an instance of a constitutional habit of involving every one with whom he comes in contact."

Co-ed Cheerleaders Pep Tech Grid Spirit

Pair Trains Hard To Conquer 'Locomotive'

If a new spirit seems to galvanize Tech students and the Tech football team this season, perhaps Carnegie rooters owe most of their thanks to a pair of co-ed cheerleaders.

The jumping-jack girls are Ruth Schmelz and Ida Bickley.

Old timers rubbed their eyes when the yell-girls called for the Carnegie locomotive at the Temple game Saturday, for they are the first college co-ed cheerleaders this district has seen in many a long year.

The girls are training to lead the Tech cheers right along with the boys. Their attractive costumes of red skirts, red tams, and white sweaters closely match the uniforms of the men.

And the girls are helping Carnegie Tech rooters to put more pep in their yells, according to Ammon Godshall, Tech's head cheerleader. He says:

"Girl cheerleaders are part of our new policy for getting more Tech student spirit."

Police Hold Driver Of Car After Crash

Arrested on Herron Hill last night after a car, he was alleged to have stolen, crashed into a parked automobile, Owen Henderson, 29, Negro, of 2839 Vincennes street, was to be given a hearing in Traffic Court today. Police said Henderson was also identified by Francis Flaherty, taxicab driver, as the wan who held him up on Mathilda street last Tuesday.

Accidental Burns Prove Fatal to Girl

Burns suffered when her clothes became ignited from matches with which she was playing, resulted in the death early today of Rose Marie Weunschell, 6, of 2128 Patterson street, in the St. Joseph Hospital, according to a Coroner's report. The accident occurred October 3.

One-Oar Navy Unless Geneva Takes Even That

—By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER—

Looks like the Geneva conference will allow our Navy one oar and permit it to row in a circle.

Strange thing after all these years that a polyglot yodel from the Swiss Alps should turn out to be our national anthem.

A navy ain't a bad thing to have around when the tea kettle boils over. If you have a big hammer you don't have to crack hickory nuts with your teeth.

No more will the white sails gleam in the harbor. The men who went down to the sea in boats can now go take a big buggy ride for themselves.

We shall miss those gallant admirals with their flapping epaulets, their gold braid and Paul Jones bonnets with the waving plume that looked like Sally Rand doing a fan dance.

Our supremacy at sea is now dependent on our tourists. If foreign nations get tough we can always declare weekend cruises on them.

SHANNON TO BE 111TH GUEST

Maj. Gen. E. C. Shannon, commanding general of the 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, and lieutenant governor of the state, will be the guest of honor for the annual reunion of the 111th Infantry Veterans' Association, to be held here for two days, beginning November 10.

Gen. Shannon was wartime colonel of the infantry, formerly the 18th Regiment, P. N. G. He will speak at the banquet to be held at reunion headquarters in the Fort Pitt Hotel on the first night. Entertainment features of the banquet will include a cabaret show reminiscent of Vin Blanc, Vin Rouge and Vancelieres.

The veterans will participate in the annual Armistice Day parade on the second day. A military ball, with veterans and friends of the 28th Division invited, will close the reunion that night. Reservations are being received by Gordon L. Clawson, general chairman, at 1203 Arch street, North Side, and William G. Blough, secretary, addressed to the Homewood postoffice.

PROBERS READY TO END PUBLIC HEARINGS

Women Leaders Asked To Appear Before Harris Committee

Unless some new developments are brought to light during the day's session, the Harris Committee investigating the breakdown of voting machines last primary day will end its public hearings today. Several important witnesses are scheduled for appearance this afternoon when the committee, composed of State Senator Frank P. Harris and Attorneys William B. McFall and Edward O. Tabor resume their probe in the Court House.

Following today's testimony the committee expects to have one or two of its own mechanics inspect some of the voting machines. Albert Lauer, chief mechanic for the county's elections department, and B. B. Sklar, vote machine expert, are to be present when the machine inspection is made. Sklar has charged that he can vote repeatedly for one candidate on any machine during the time allotted to any one voter.

Sklar also is expected to be a witness today to refute the charges that he accepted money from representatives of the Automatic Voting Machine Company, of Jamestown, N. Y., during the time he attacked the machines made by the Poole Engineering and Manufacturing Company, of Baltimore. The latter firm manufactured the machines owned by Allegheny County.

Invitations have been extended to Mrs. J. . Miller and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith to appear and testify before the committee inasmuch as their names were brought into records of the investigating committee Wednesday by a witness telling of the vote machine controversy. It is not likely that either of the women will be present as it was said at their homes that they were out of town and would not return until Sunday.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 13.—To the Editor Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

We celebrated Columbus Day here, and he never even say California. (Chamber of Commerce fell down again). Old "Eric the Red" from Garboland already had a home in America where he spent his summers, but this Columbus was quite a fellow. He is the only man then, or since, who ever had a queen pawning jewels.

Columbus was an Italian, but he made Spain pay his fare over. The other night up to Charley Chaplin's house I met Emil Ludwig, the world's greatest biographer, who has written more things about big men than Walter Winchell has about little ones.

Well, Ludwig tells me that Napoleon was an Italian, too, that was just operating under the auspices of France. Lafayette saved the U. S., Pershing and some Englishmen saved France. I can't find where any local boy ever made good at home.

I got to get with his Ludwig and go into history deeper, when Chaplin aint' clowning around.

Yours in search of facts.

WILL.

CHICAGO FACES MILK STRIKE

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Chicago today faced the prospect of having its milk supply cut off unless the Federal Farm Adjustment administration acts immediately to enforce terms of the marketing agreement signed by producers and dealers.

Delegates of 18,000 dairy farmers, who supply most of the Chicago market, voted at a secret meeting here to empower directors of the Pure Milk Association to halt all deliveries of fluid milk to the dairies.

D. N. Geyer, manager of the association, announced that producers were willing to wait "a few days" before taking action to withhold their supply. No date has as yet been set for the strike.

TWO QUIT NAZI GERMANY, JOIN TECH STAFF

German scientific experiments will undoubtedly be crippled in the future because of the Hitler policies, according to Prof. Otto Stern, experimental physicist, who arrived here yesterday from Germany to join the Carnegie Institute of Technology faculty.

Preceding him by a few days was his assistant, Prof. I. Estermann, who also joined the faculty. They left Germany because of the treatment of the Jews. Dr. Stern said:

"I could not stand seeing my Jewish friends treated as they were. I decided to come to Pittsburgh because I was assured by Dr. Baker that I would have the utmost freedom and the best of facilities with which to conduct my scientific research."

Prof. Stern is particularly interested in developing the use of molecular beams as a tool in physical and chemical research. Recently he extended his study to the diffraction of molecular beams, indicating by his experiments that atoms may at times behave as particles and at other times as light waves of very high frequency.

MOLECULAR RAY

Prof. Estermann has extended the method of molecular beams to a study of the structure of molecules, as well as assisting Dr. Stern in his studies of the molecular ray.

Both Dr. Stern and Dr. Estermann have been in this country before, Dr. Stern for a year and a half as visiting lecturer at the University of California and Dr. Estermann working in the chemistry department of the same university for four months. This time they plan to remain in America permanently and to take out citizenship papers.

Dr. Stern is a bachelor. Dr. Estermann brought with him his wife and two daughters, one a year and a half and the other 8 years.

CHANGE IN GERMANY

In speaking of the student life in German universities, Dr. Estermann said a decided change would take place in it this fall. He declared:

"German universities have been marked by an unrestricted freedom in learning and in teaching. There has been no compulsion as to what the student should take or the professor teach. Both were left to the individual will. With the change of regime it is unquestionable that compulsion will be introduced. This will, in all probability, be done through the student executives, who are appointed, no one knows by whom, and who have the power to direct the curricular schedule."

BULL FIGHTING PLANNED IN U. S.

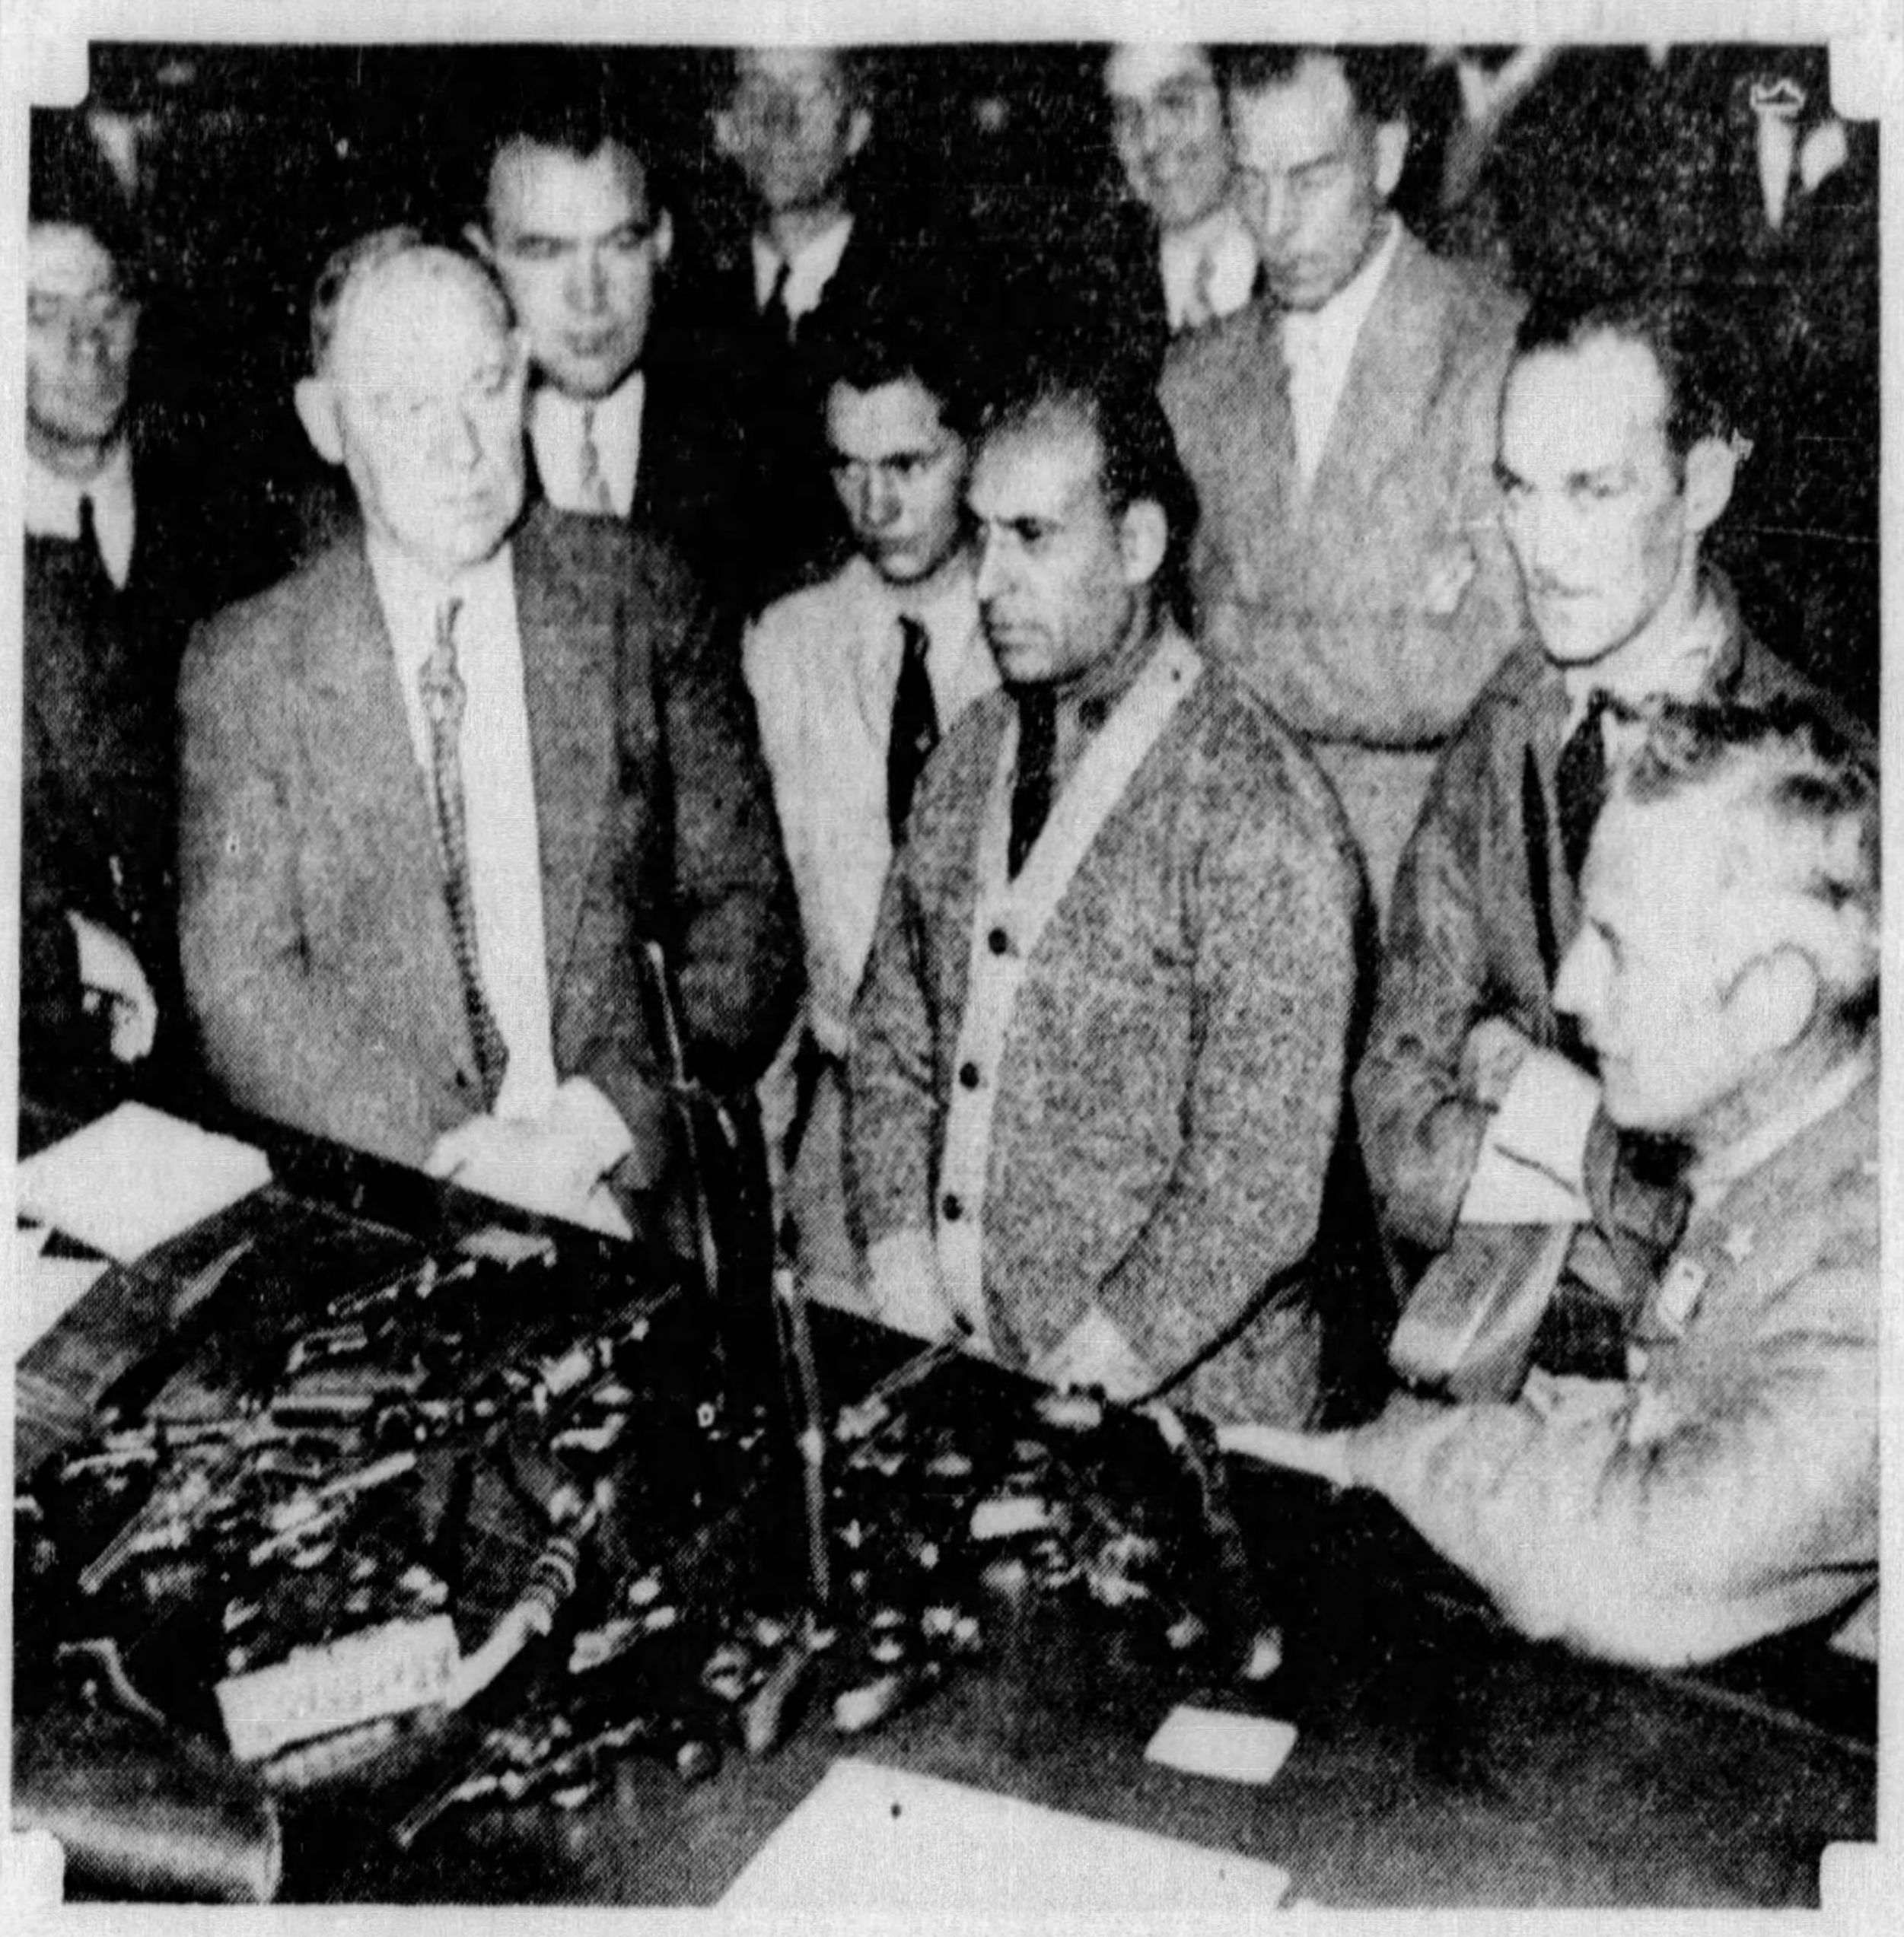
MADRID, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Monolo and Pepe Bienvenida, who rank as two of Spain's most colorful matadors, intend to carry bullfighting into the United States.

Their father, Manuel Bienvenida, announced an American, Arthur Shaw, a promoter and carnival concessionaire of New York and Los Angeles, will handle the bull fight business in the United States.

Stadiums in New York and California are to be the scenes of the "cobridas," and the bulls are not to be killed, they're not even to be hurt. Instead the American audiences are to be shown the chances the bullfighters take, with all the attendant cape and footwork, without ruining the bull.

The brothers will arrive in the United States probably in January or February.

'Khaki Shirts' in Police Court



GUNS, OTHER WEAPONS AS EVIDENCE IN THE HEARING FOR THE U. S. "KHAKI SHIRTS"

The scene in a Philadelphia police court as police arraigned a score of prisoners seized in a raid on the headquarters of the "Khaki Shirts," reported by police as prepared to raid an armory then march upon Washington, D. C., to seize the government and install President Roosevelt as a dictator. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

POLICE FLATTEN KHAKI SHIRTS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The Khaki Shirts of America looked somewhat limp and bedraggled today.

Their ranks torn by revolt and their morale severely tested by police raids which cost them a quantity of arms and amunition, members of the organization—some at least—transferred their attention from the proposed "march on Washington" to a search for their erstwhile commander-in-chief, Arthur J. Smith.

Art disappeared yesterday while police were raiding three of his headquarters and arresting 27 of his subordinates, including a few "generals" and "colonels," and the rank and file were waiting impatiently for orders to start for the national capital and the "installation" of President Roosevelt as "dictator" of the United States.

The prisoners are under bail ranging from $500 to $2,500 on various charges, including disorderly conduct, inciting to riot and violation of the state firearms law.

WOMAN LEAVES $150,000

An estate valued at $150,000 was disposed of in the will of Miss Rosetta Arthur, Schenley Apartments, probated today. Bequests of $1,000 each were left to Ettie Weible, Mrs. William Hollins, Miss M. E. Haggerty and Mrs. Eliza Smith.

To her sister, Mrs. Mary Arthur Gregory, of Indianapolis, Ind., Miss Arthur left all the money on deposit in the Dollar Savings Bank, and the remainder of the estate she left in trust for Mrs. Gregory and the following nieces and nephews: Arthur, Carroll and Ellen Bowman, all of Indianapolis.

WESTINGHOUSE HOST TO STEEL EXECUTIVES

Prominent steel mill executives from many sections of the country were in Pittsburgh today as guests of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

A committee composed of A. W. Robertson, chairman; F. A. Merrick, president, and J. S. Tritle, vice president and general manager, met the visitors at the Duquesne Club and escorted them to the Westinghouse research laboratories.

The visitors included:

F. B. Hufnagle, president, Crucible Steel Company, New York; D. A. Barrett, vice president, American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Pittsburgh; J. W. Marrimann, vice president, A. M. Byers Company, Pittsburgh; C. H. Hunt, assistant to president, Weirton Steel Company, Weirton, W. Va.; R. E. Zimmerman, vice president, United States Steel Corporation, New York; G. G. Thorpe, president, Illinois Steel Company, Chicago; C. C. Kimball, vice president, Illinois Steel Company, Chicago; J. J. Kennedy, vice president, National Tube Company, Pittsburgh; Gordon Fisher, chairman of the board, Spang-Chalfant Company, Pittsburgh; W. E. Watson, vice president, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Youngstown; Frank P Bell, president, Edgewater Steel Company, Oakmont; E. L. Benedict, vice president, Pittsburgh Steel Company, Pittsburgh, and C. W. Bennett, acting president, American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Pittsburgh.

FEDERAL RELIEF CHIEF TO OPEN DRIVE HERE

Launching the Welfare Fund's advance campaign for its 1934 budget, Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins will address nearly 300 civic and welfare leaders at a meeting in the Hotel Schenley Wednesday night.

The relation of rederal relief to private social agencies in making NRA producers and consumers of families in want will be the topic of Hopkins' talk. Hopkins, who holds that economic conditions have proven the fallacy of the precept that a wholesome life brings success, says:

"Thousands whose lives were an exemplification of that teaching are in want today, and 6,000,000 of those on relief are children under 16 years."

The special gifts division of the campaign will be in charge of the meeting. William P. Snyder is chairman of the division.

Numbers Counted By Electric Machine

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—When you talk billions you're getting into figures. To show that the Museum of Science and Industry has installed an electrical device which counts numbers at the rate of five per second.

It runs 24 hours a day and by the time it has counted 10,000,000,000 it'll be 1996.

Patricia Pitt

When it comes to styles for the races, Pittsburgh women, like all smart Americans, turn their back on French influence.

They appeared at the Columbus Day races yesterday afternoon at Huntlands, the George R. McNarys' place near Greensburg, in the smartest of sports clothes—no picturesque costumes such as the French woman wears to the races in her country.

There was one exception, the Baroness Jean Pellenc, of Paris—just several years ago she was debutante Frances Kier, the Frank J. Kiers' daughter, who has lived in Paris part of the time since her marriage.

Baroness Attends

She wore a jaunty, brimless geranium pink velvet hat cut with a high peak on one side, and a soft grey wool coat, having black caracul trimming on the collar. Both she and the Baron and his brother, Baron Gabriel Pellenc, were there.

Everything was wool—either tweeds or knits or those fascinating novelty weaves—perfectly tailored with gayly striped Ascot scarves and jaunty hats feminizing even the severest tailleur.

There were few fur coats worn by spectators yesterday, and fewer raincoats although the skies threatened all afternoon and drops fell now and then. Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., was one of the few wearing a rain coat — a smart white one with a deep cape.

A tailored suit of deep American beauty red, fashioned of ribbed wool that resembled a knitted fabric and then again wide-wale pique, was worn by Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife. The jacket was just a few inches shorter than the skirt. With the suit she wore a dark blue blouse, a blue beret-type hat and an Ascot scarf, of course.

Mrs. Scaife's father and mother, the Richard Beatty Mellons, were at the races, too, and a big day it was for them—their son, Richard King Mellon, won the big races—that is, his horses, which came in first.

Mellons At Races

Mrs. Mellon wore a fur collared brown wool coat and a brown felt hat, with a red feather about the crown.

One of the smartest of sports costumes was worn by young Mrs. James Verner Scaife, Jr. The skirt was of buttercup yellow rough wool and the jacket was of yellow, plaided with brown. It had an Ascot scarf of the yellow, with a brown felt hat completing her costume.

Little black-haired Laura Oliver chose a diagonal-striped blue and white skirt with which she wore a jacket of deep, bright blue wool, an Ascot tie of the striped material, and blue tam with a perky red feather.

Pretty, blonde Rita Borntraeger, who was watching the races with the Baron Gabriel Pellenc, wore a most distinctive tailleur of mixed moss-green wool—with the "mixture" of yellow and blue and green. Her hat and her large handbag were of the same fabric, and her scarf was of broken checked green and yellow wool.

Mrs. Harry Darlington, there with James M. Bovard, chose a red and white diagonal-striped, loosely woven wool suit and a red felt hat.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson and her sister, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, who never miss a race, were among the spectators, and so were Thruston Wright, the Clarence A. Stanleys with Mrs. Stanley in a tailored suit of novelty wool; Mrs. T. M. Jones III, and Mrs. B. F. Jones III.

Nancy Byers, in a broken checked chartreuse green and brown wool coat and a brown hat, and Chauncey Hubbard I saw, Mrs. George R. McNary, Mrs. A. C. Martin, Miss Margaret Coulter, Roberta Martin and Elizabeth McNary.

Friends Meet

Talking with Mrs. George L. McCook and Mrs. E. J. McCague was Mrs. Willis McCook Reed in a smart gray tweed suit with the swagger-length jacket having revers of white and grey striped rose-red jersey to match the blouse. Mrs. J. L. D. Painter was there, Mrs. W. W. Blackburn, and Mrs. Leonard S. Mudge, Mrs. Reed's sister.

I recall seeing Eleanor Longenecker, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary, Mrs. Jack Bissell, Mrs. Charles Flaccus, Mrs. F. C. Irish, Louise Reed in a tailored suit, Lucile Todd, Mrs. Frank R. Denton, Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly in a beige fur swagger coat over a brown wool dress.

Others there were Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland in a brown herringbone tweed suit, Mrs. A. P. Woolfolk, Mrs. T. F. Smith, Mrs. George H. Love in a brown and tan broken check suit with a matching Ascot scarf.

Represent Sewickley

From Sewickley came Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., Margaret McCready, Rosamound Fitch, Miss Dorothy Slack and Elizabeth George.

Strolling about were the Frederick Gwinners, the III, and the Harvey Childses, the III. Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner was there, Mrs. James McKay, Mrs. Clark Miller, Betty McKay in a brown tweed suit with a knit cap, and Harriet Fickes in a brown tweed tailleur.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby was in a red wool suit with the long jacket collared in fox, and a sweater of striped blue.

Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson I saw, Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, Mrs. Mortimer Miller, Miss Marjorie Gethoefer, Mrs. Frances Burke Rodgers in a smart brown tweed suit, and Ruth Friday, and ever so many more—but my space is all gone!

Betty Tinker, whose betrothal to Meredith Ewing was announced recently, is to be honor guest at a dinner Saturday at Longue Vue Country Club. Mrs. George V. Foster is to be the hostess, and there will be about 24 guests.

Dons Nuptial Dress of Mother

Still another bride of this month donned her mother's wedding dress for her own marriage. She is Miss Martha Eversmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. W. Eversmann, of Woodmont street, and she became the bride of Harry James Bovard, Jr., son of Mrs. Hilda Rieck Bovard, of Denniston avenue, yesterday afternoon at 6:45 o'clock.

The ceremony took place in the living room of the Eversmann home before a mantle banked with cibotium ferns and dahlias. The Rev Dr. H. P. Eckhardt, of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, was the officiant.

The wedding dress, practically unaltered since the time her mother wore it about 27 years ago, was of white satin and princess lace, and the bride's veil, which had also been her mother's, was of tulle with a cap of Duchesse lace. She carried bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Ruth Bovard, the maid of honor, wore pink satin, with a jacket having long sleeves, made in period style, and a similar gown of green satin was the choice of the bridesmaid, Miss Virginia Sanborn. Both carried dahlias in autumn shades.

The bride's mother wore pansy blue lace and Mrs. Bovard appeared in black velvet. Both had shoulder corsages of orchids.

A friend of the bride, Mrs. Nevin Poole, played the wedding music, and Mrs. Edward O. Taber sang.

After the ceremony there was a reception and buffet supper. Dahlias were used in profusion to decorate the house and the buffet table.

Mr. and Mrs. Bovard, Jr., left on a motor wedding trip and will be at home here when they return.

Isabelle Rubenstein, Fiance to Be Feted

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rubenstein, of Webster avenue, will entertain informally in their home Sunday evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Isabelle Rubenstein and her fiance, Barney Holtzman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Holtzman, of Maryland avenue. Their betrothal was just recently announced.

SPECTATORS AT THE ANNUAL COLUMBUS DAY RACES AT HUNTLANDS, THE GEORGE R. M'NARY ESTATE, NEAR GREENSBURG

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Their sylvan peace disturbed by the horn at the beginning of the Columbus Day races yesterday, a herd of cows in an adjoining pasture came to view with puzzled eyes the trespassers of their realm.

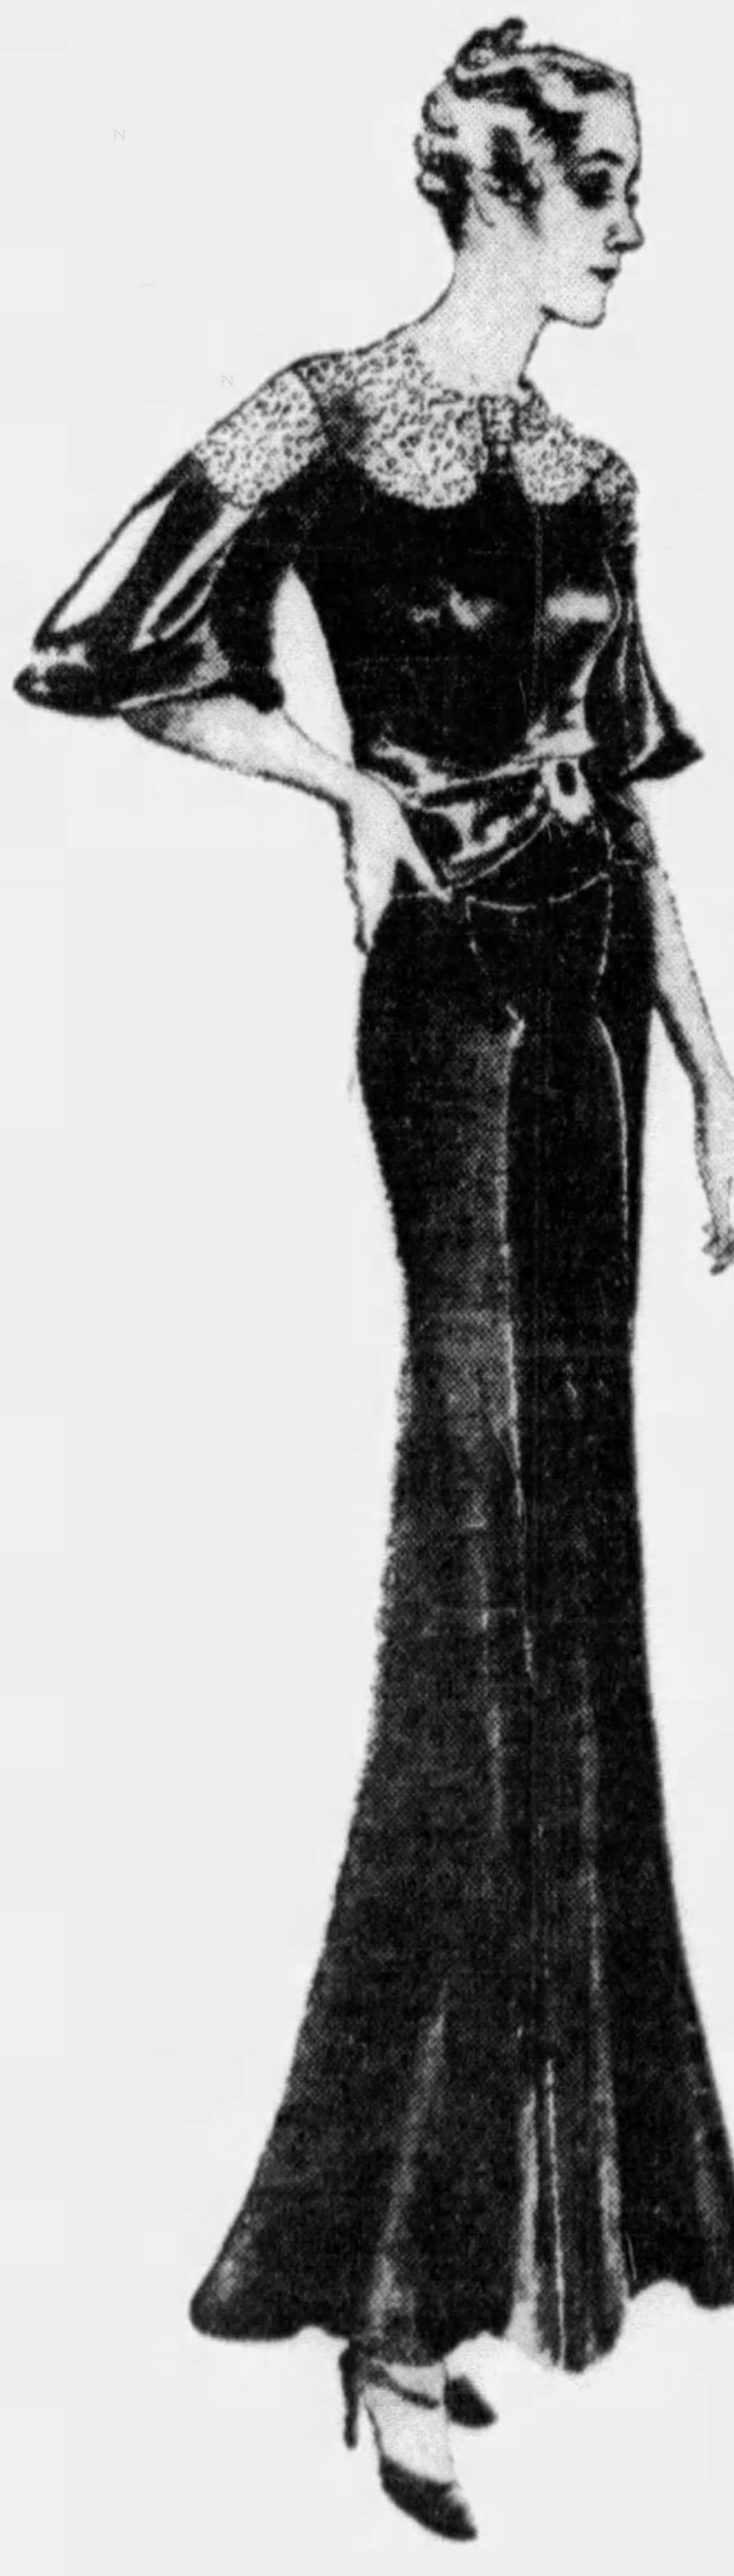
Seen at the races—Mrs. George H. Love (Margaret McClintic) and Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly munching on apples and talking with Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife (Sarah Mellon) and Mrs. Jack Bissell.

One of the men spectators, on climbing out of his car, was startled to find himself staring into the lens of a camera. Seeing he was standing in front of the Baroness Pellenc, he stepped quickly out of the way. And Patricia Pitt's camera man got his picture—the Baroness', of course.

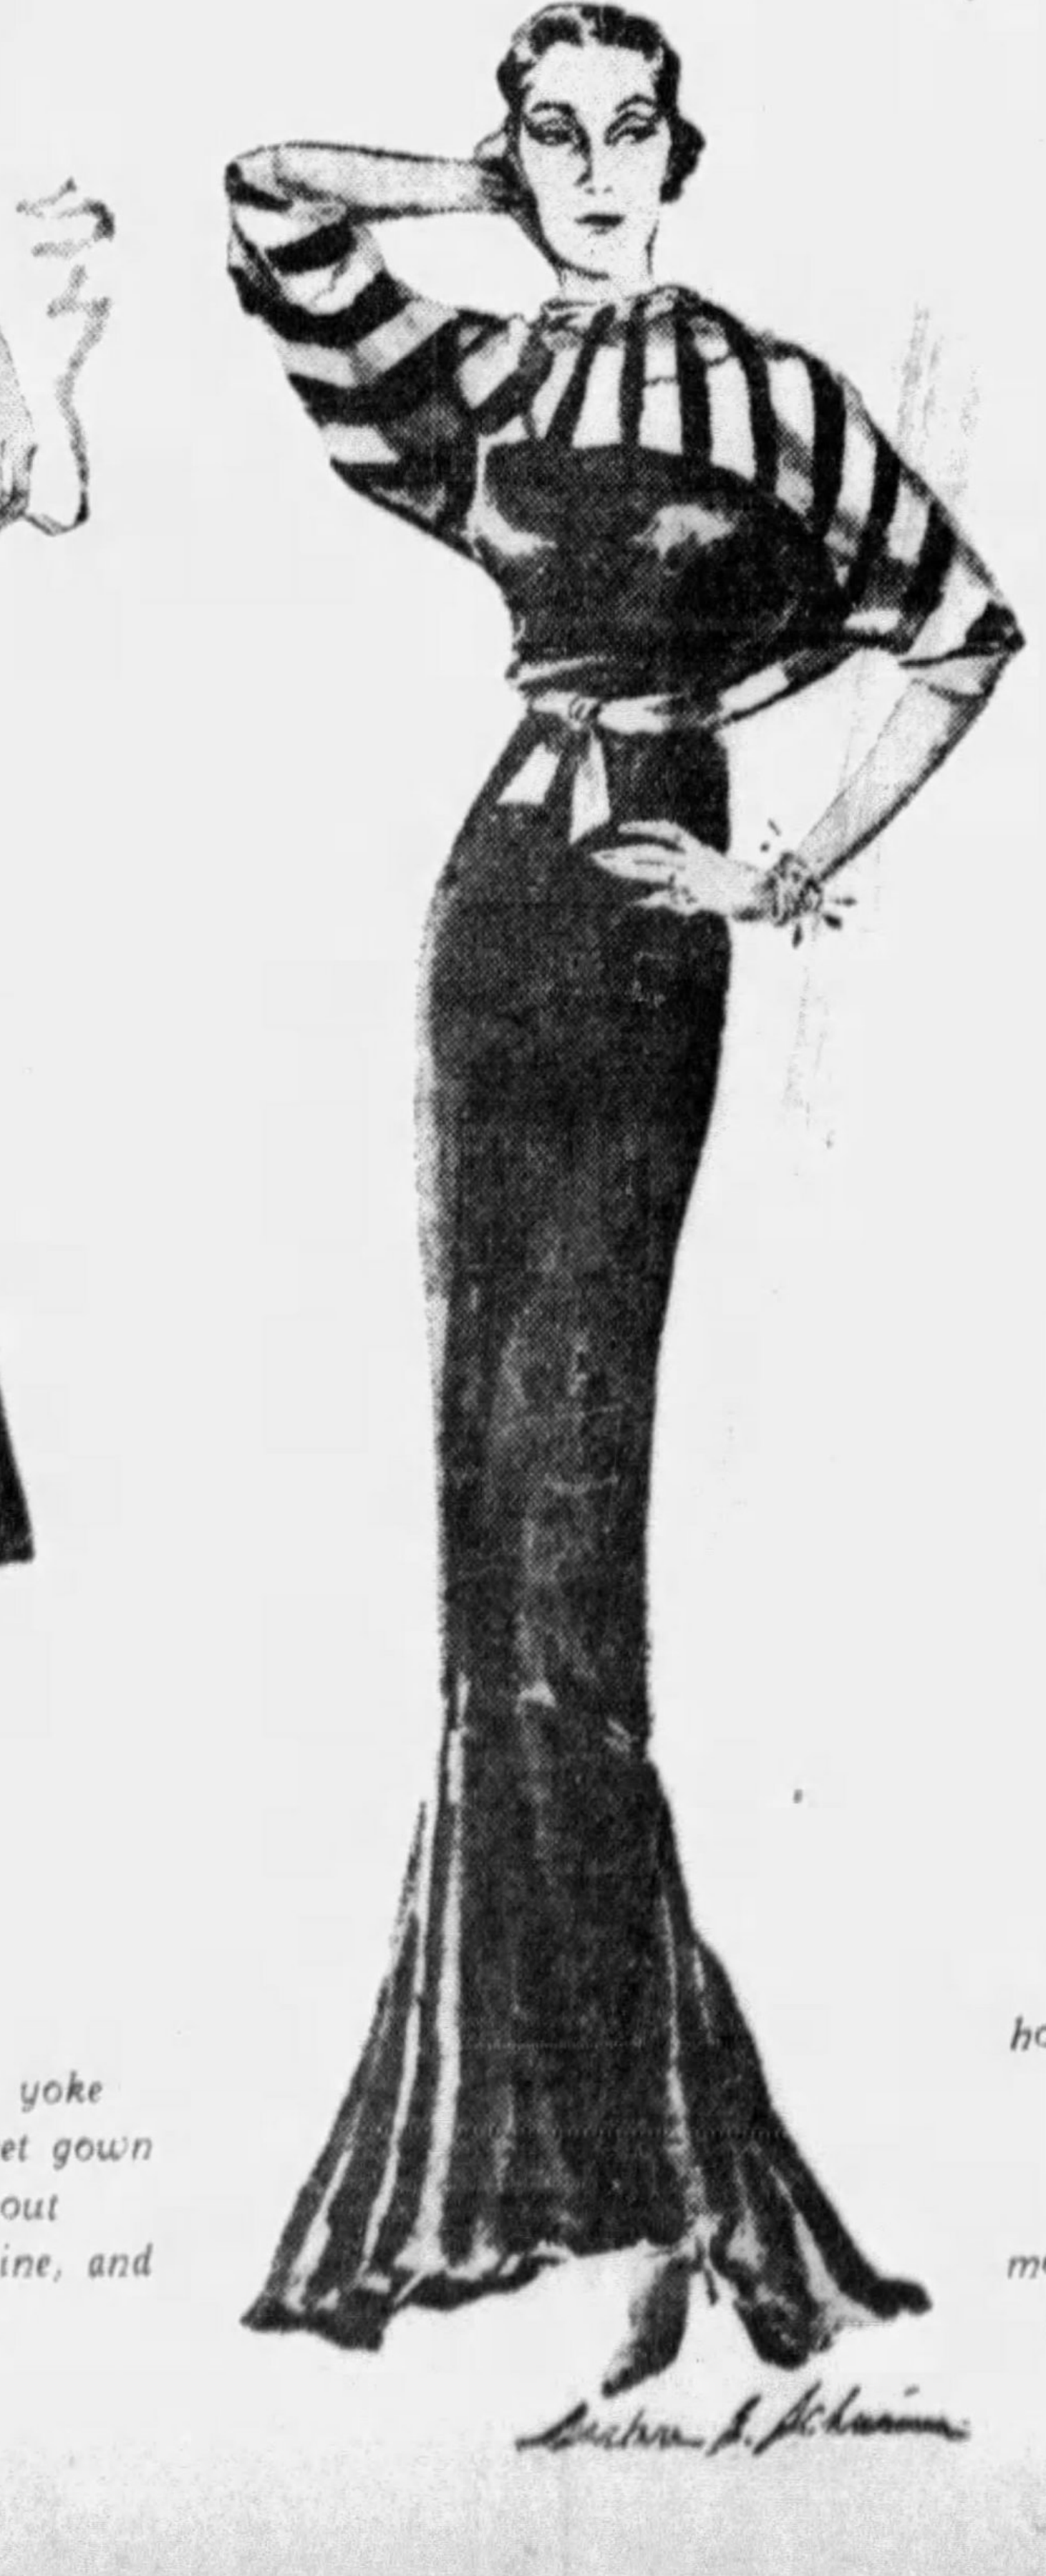
"Happy Days Are Here Again" was broadcast at the close of the races. The broadcaster during the afternoon was Grafton Duvall.

VELVET SPELLS SOPHISTICATION

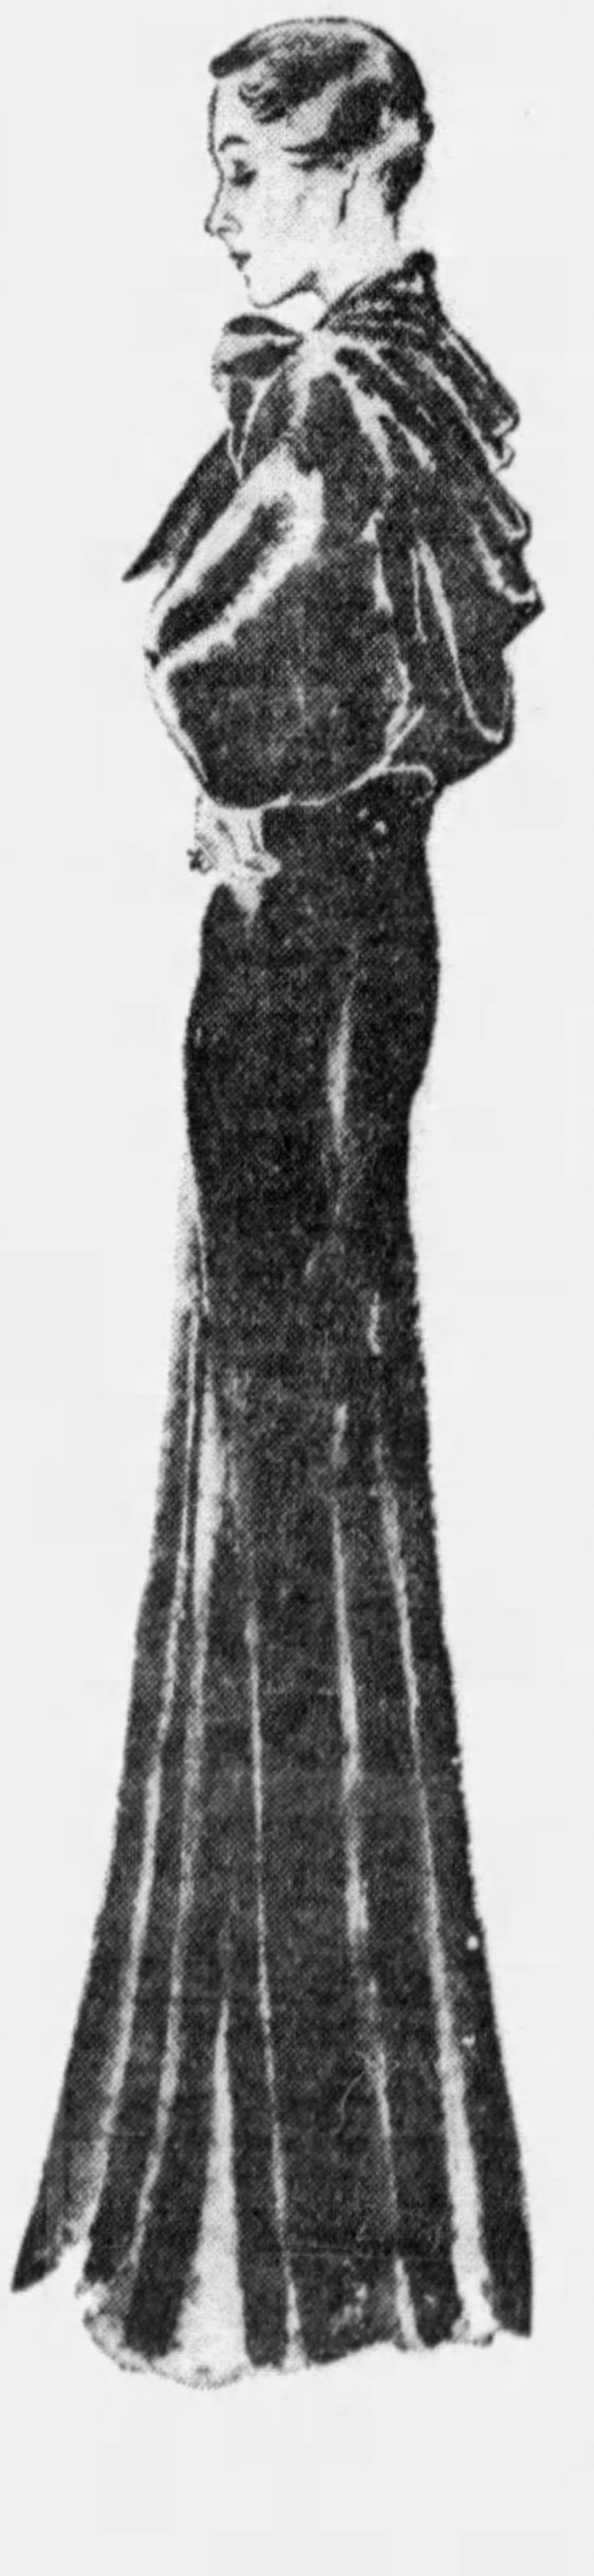
By PRUNELLA WOOD



Delicate white batiste for a shoulder yoke is the flattering touch of the black velvet gown above. Note the clever seaming about the hips, making a becoming sheathe line, and the slits in the drop puff sleeve.



The broadening upper bodice in the dark green crystelle velvet model below is made with strips of gold stitching. The skirt flounce gives a mermaid line which ends in a little train that makes walking easy and graceful. The back has a low cut neck.



There are no sleeves and no hood on the brown velvet full length wrap above, but artful draping gives this popular silhouette to the model. The fabric is a new one which will not weather spot.

Friday the 13th Holds No Terrors for Bud Who Is Bowing Today

The 1933 debutante is not superstitious—at least one of them isn't, Annette Chester. For Annette will be presented to society this afternoon, Friday, the thirteenth, at a luncheon her mother, Mrs. Roderick M. Chester, and her grandmother, Mrs. George B. Motheral, will give for her at the Twentieth Century Club.

The debs will soon begin to think of this handsome clubhouse as their second home—so much time will they spend there this season. For this year the club is even more popular than in past seasons with the hostesses.

A svelte gown of rose-red bagheera will be worn by the young brown-haired debutante. The gown has the popular wide-shoulder effect and long sleeves, slit decoratively on the upper arm and fitted tightly below the elbow. Her small hat will be of the bagheera, too, and she will have a corsage of white orchids.

Her mother will be in sapphire blue bagheera with a hat to match and will wear gardenias, and Mrs. Motheral will be in black with white for accent and will wear orchids.

Miss Freda Eichel Marries J. P. Madigan

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Madigan will be at home in Oakland avenue, Dormont.

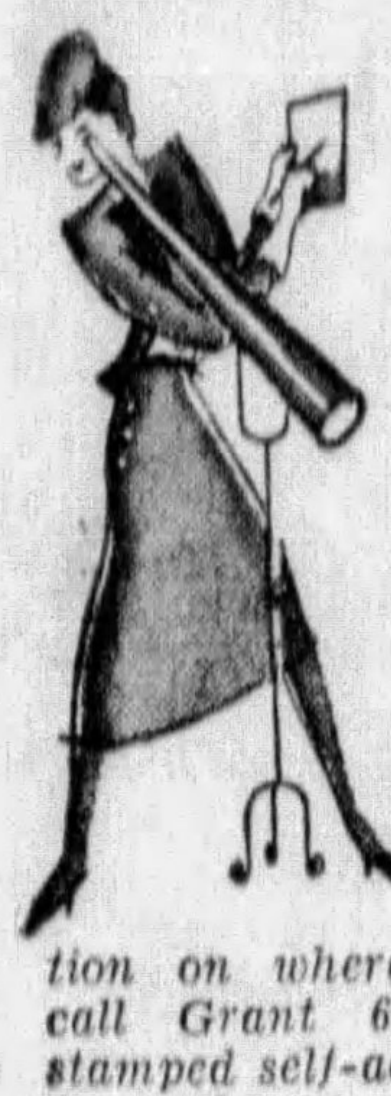
Through the Spyglass

Viewing the New



The days grow crisper . . . and so does the shopping spirit! Therefore, our spyglass is kept constantly on the lookout for what's-what . . . and these suggestions are a few of the many we have picked up in our ramblings. For information on where to find them, call Grant 6500 or send a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

* * *

When the wind (not the wolf!) begins to "huff-and-puff" and threaten to blow you inside out, you'll find one of these new coats will stand guard over you! In a truly noble way, too. For are they not $75 to $100 qualities . . . and are they not specially priced now at $68? Just ask us!

We unearthed them from their hiding hole and brought them to light with enthusiastic babblings! Three and four-of-a-kind models (so you won't meet yourself on TOO many corners!) . . . of the nicest fabrics, like Velour du Nord and Boucle . . . and absolutely staggering under their burden of furs. Furs such as Persian and Beaver . . . Fitch and Silver Fox . . . and the whole gamut of furdom The new green shades, browns, and, of course, black! And let this be a lesson to you in coat-seeking!

* * *

Ach du lieber! . . . bury your little noses in these fat Bacchus goblets, or Cheshire mugs! They are new arrivals at a well-known counter in the town, and boast of being the last word in modern Holloware. Chromium plated, no less! $1 apiece and up . . . $10 and up for a set (pitcher, 4 goblets or mugs, and tray).

Or else . . . be sweetly retiring and serve tea passing the cream and sugar on the chromium plated tray with creamer and sugar of same . . . $3. (Christmas is coming, and these would be swank gifts!)

* * *

Let us take you by the hand and lead you to the spot where—bless your little hearts!—you will now find the popular Peasant Linens for soothing sums! We advise a long look at the luncheon sets . . . hilarious stripes in many colors . . . 17 pieces (8 napkins, 36-inch runner, 8 doilies) . . . all of them fringed . . . and priced at $2! What ho for a new luncheon set, damsels! Regular 54x54 cloths with 6 napkins, the same!

And speaking of luncheon sets and whatnot . . . we're more than hurrahing around over the hors d'oeuvre sets which come encased in smart round flat decorated wood boxes for $1. The boxes are perfect for candies . . . the pottery dish inside with its partitioned nooks for holding olives, anchovies and so forth will add to any table. Quite a buy.

* * *

Oh, yes . . . pounce upon this as we did, and you'll not be sorry! Sets of three bracelets (Catalina composition like prystal) in greens, browns, wines and blues . . . for 50c the set! The kind Molyneux "launched" in little old Paree! Earrings and necklaces to match, 50c each.

* * *

Then, step right up and we'll let you have a look through our spyglass at what you're going to wear when it starts raining the proverbial cats and dogs! Rain-capes . . . generously proportioned ones which tie snugly under your dear little jaw and shed every drop. Rubber, of course, red . . . green . . . blue . . . gray . . . and white —$1 please!

Federation Convention As Club Editor Sees It in Retrospect

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

More or less hazy thoughts the morning after four crammed-full days of State Federation conventioning:

Whew! It's all over for another year! Harrisburg 1934!

That was a beautiful banquet last night. Stunning gowns. Lovely decorations.

Wonder how many manicures were ruined in arranging all the gorgeous decorations—fresh every day everywhere. Mrs. Clarence Scheck and her committee certainly were faithful—and artistic.

And the pretty young pages were valient, too, and so weary. Almost as weary as Mrs. Joseph Dury. What a tremendous job being convention program chairman is.

Didn't it seem queer to have Gov. Pinchot speak (because he was broadcasting) and then be introduced by Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton AFTER he had spoken?

Margaret Spaulding Stockdale never sang better than she did at the banquet. Thrilling—that's the only word to describe how it felt to watch the little lights on the big map and realize messages were traveling from that banquet room to London and Geneva and Shanghai and all those other faraway places.

Reach World

"Nancy Astor," pleading for internationalism in her reply, and Caroline Curtis Brown, president of the Federation of American Women's Clubs in England, sending back a message about the influence of American women over there.

If nothing else comes out of those four days they were worth while because of what the juniors did. A $1,000 fund to be raised for the Seeing Eye and a scholarship of $150 for the blind to be known as the May Taylor scholarship. Won't she be the proud person?

Conferences! Conferences! Conferences! Nearly all day yesterday.

65-Cent Dollar

Dr. George K. McCabe predicting that the dollar would be stabilized at 65 cents within two months. Dr. Benjamin H. Williams pleading for the League of Nations (because it is still in its infancy) and predicting two more wars.

Carl F. Milliken, former Maine Governor, urging the women to accompany their children to the movies and to discuss the pictures with them. Florence Fisher Parry talking of the movies from a parent's point of view.

H. R. Vanderslice saying a school room should be a work room, a laboratory, a museum and a social center. Herbert L. Spencer insisting that it is the ultra-superior child who is most neglected in education because there's no special provision made for him. Dr. R. O. Hughes calling the home, the school and the community, the triangle of citizenship training.

100 Hear Mrs. Hunt

They say nearly 100 women heard Mrs. Roy Arthur Hunt give her delightful talk and reveled in her exquisite book bindings down in the Woman's City Club.

Unimportant maybe, but it shows the potential power of federated women. They wouldn't use the fleet of 100 taxis until every beer sign had been taken off.

Wonder how many are wondering today how long it will be before chairmen begin to introduce their speakers while there's still time for the speakers to speak.

Nearly 200 women weren't too much worn out to stay over for the Congress of Clubs tours and luncheon at South Park today. Or will the rain hold off?

Members of the other two Pittsburgh chapters will be guests. Those presenting the program are Mrs. M. L. Gardner, soprano; Mrs. A. L. Volmrich, pianist and accompanist, and Mrs. E. L. Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

It must be among the supreme satisfactions to such men as Paul Whiteman and Rudy Vallee, who came from the provinces long ago, to brave the Broadway firing squads, and find themselves again perched high and gracefully in this feverish midst of ours . . . Only those who nibbled at the favors of the fickle Street can appreciate their struggles and achievements . . . For Broadway bores easily and is restless with those who cannot survive its indifference . . . And I cannot join the controversy makers, who are arguing which of these two talented personalities will outdo the other . . . It doesn't matter to me—for talent is still at a premium, and having them back to interrupt the parade of mediocrity will suffice . . . If wishes came true and I had two of them—I'd wish I could Bing Crosby a tune and think up such hilariously funny ideas as some of those in the newest Mickey Mouse . . . And if I had another wish I'd wish that Mickey's imitators would give up wasting all that time . . . Wonder whatever became of "Lazy Bones?" . . . and David Hutton?

Can't imagine Ring Lardner being so ill and preparing so amusing a travesty as he did for one of the mags—his last piece . . . Imagine having a keen sense of fun flat on your back. . . . I didn't know Lyle Talbot was once wedded to a local lady—until she phoned after the broadcast, which told of his accident . . . The shock of it left her limp—although they were divorced years ago . . . I am anxious to see how Betzi Beaton jells with the local audiences when she opens in the "Follies" . . . I saw her delight a Los Angeles first-night group, the only worth-while part of the proceedings . . . Hers is a difficult to describe specialty—she's charming, attractive and smartly attired—and there is a vagueness about her hard to jot down . . . While she mutters a song lyric she removes a shoe to straighten out her hose or something silly like that . . . You don't expect so debby a person to startle you, I guess—that's what makes her tick. The show will be billed: "Billie Burke's Ziegfeld's Follies"—all those apostrophes being necessary to keep Ziegfeld creditors from attaching the coin.

The line quoted by Bruce Barton is something to paste on your wall, at that—the definition of Courage—holding on another minute . . . Bruce Macfarlane and two of the "Sailor, Beware!" cast, a hit, were on the verge of hollering uncle when they clicked . . . The trio were together in dozens of failures, too—until this unexpected success happened along . . . Not all the Broadway night club impresarios are greedy . . . Take Mr. A. Howard, of the swanky Embassy, frinstance . . . You are lucky if you can get a table there on week-ends—and the couvert is $9 per patron . . . Yet Mr. Howard announces that henceforth there will be no couvert charge at all! . . . He doesn't want to get rich in a hurry, I presume . . . Of course, I believe the man who told it to me—but it makes me ache a little knowing it . . . He was in London, it appears, and a phone caller said: "This is Jim" . . . "Jim who?" he replied . . "Jimmie Walker" said the voice . . . "Oh, hello, Jim, come right up" . . . "Do you really mean it?" asked Walker, with great humility. "You mean you'll see me?" . . . Imagine Walker feeling that low in spirit—once the gayest of us all . . . Nothing has mattered, he said during that call, and nothing does matter—but his love for Betty and hers for him.

One line of type can arouse so much hope in some homes . . . Recently here it was noted that a Kansas City girl, who had stranded her kin, had come to Broadway where she was getting the worst of it—and over two dozen letters came from Kansas City mothers wondering if the girl was their daughter—and where could the railroad fare reach her? . . . The glamor of the Street still manages to entice and hold these kids, but why, I don't know . . . The Street itself certainly is monotonous even for those who can afford its diversions . . . The lonely must have it pretty tough . . . The armies of men and women, by the way, who are jobless in New York manage to occupy their mornings, at any rate . . . That's why you can't get a good seat at those early movie performances.

The unexpected verdict which acquitted Mrs. McCormick for bringing a gat into her husband's cell—was good news . . . I'm glad newspapermen are exempt from jury duty—I'm an old smoothie, anyway—and couldn't possibly send a woman, pretty or not, to any hoosegow . . . Although the Boston Herald's editorial page lists me among the hard-boiled . . . But why—it doesn't explain . . . Gosh, me hard-boiled! With all the decisions I've lost? . . . Wonder how that little fellow is getting along back in the Omaha orphanage? . . . I mean the boy that the New Jersey man borrowed for a while, to take the place of his dead son—only to return him because he was "difficult to handle" . . . No wonder he was tough to handle—with all that publicity choked down his throat . . . The next time that distressed father goes seeking an orphan to adopt—a lot of us will like it better if he omits the front-page heroics . . . A fine handicap he's given that kid.

It was the sort of scene that a scenorio writer probably would steal for a flicker . . . In the sector of Water St. the other day, where a small army of outcasts gather and dine on the leavings of the nearby cafes—an old man walked up to take a stale roll from a refuse can . . . Some of the younger fellows, just as hungry, snatched it from him—and proceeded to abuse him with violent language . . . Frightened, the little old fellow tottered away and paused at a safe distance to watch them all "dine" on the garbage . . . A moment or so later a dirty, unkempt exile approached him, and offered an aged roll . . . Moved by this unexpected kindness, the old man was touched to tears . . . Slowly, he straightened his body and murmured: "Oh, that's all right," and then he went on his way . . . Most of the others watching this tender scene remained silent—and none of them ate . . . All of which happened in New York City, in the United States of America—just two blocks from Wall St., where the wealth of the world is congested.

Even Gallery Seat O. K.

After being conducted on a tour of Fox Movietone City, two Baptist ministers, one of Los Angeles and the other from Syracuse, N. Y., bumped into Will Rogers, to whom they were introduced. Meeting the comedian was the highlight of their visit, particularly as Rogers was unusually gracious. As the clergymen climbed into their car, the local sky pilot invited Will to come to his church.

"I'll save you a box seat," he promised.

"I don't suppose there's a chance of your making it one of the box seats in heaven," drawled Rogers.

Both ministers smiled, but did not reply. They waved goodbye and were off.

"Hey," bellowed Rogers through cupped hands, "make it a gallery seat then."

School Girls Sought for Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—Strangest assignment on record has been given to Betty Furness, young RKO starlet. She'll be sent East in about six weeks to select 50 students from girls' boarding schools to come to Hollywood during their Christmas vacation and work in a picture.

Miss Furness

The picture is "Just Off Fifth Avenue," and it's all about what goes on behind the doors of these exclusive institutions.

Betty was selected for ambassador extraordinary because, before entering the films, she spent six years at Miss Bennett's School for Girls in Millbrook, New York.

The young actress will visit three states during her quest, and RKO plans to follow her suggestions as much as possible.

They're still gaping over the incident at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Fifi Dorsay was walking towards the Marion Davies set, when she noticed everybody looking behind her and registering amazement. She turned around to discover Greta Garbo hurrying towards her. The Swedish star hailed Fifi heartily and chatted for several minutes about their friendship when Fifi was working at the studio several years ago in "Three Little French Girls."

Poor Bobbe Arnst. First Johnny Weissmuller spoiled her freedom birthday party by stealing a march on the final decree, and now comes word that Bobbe's mother is seriously ill in a New York hospital.

* * *

You should have seen Gene Raymond when a beautiful girl—a stranger, too—came up to his table at the Fox commissary, leaned over and planted a kiss upon his lips. Gene was a little angry at first, but quickly thawed when the intruder introduced herself as Suzanne Kaaren, new Fox starlet, and told him that the kiss was from her little sister, who is one of his most ardent fans.

Mae West and Travis Banton have been in heavy conference for two days and the reason, they'll tell you, is a sensational gown which the star plans to wear to the premiere of "I'm No Angel." Just to give you an advance tip, it's to be of white beaded lace with yards of white fox fur.

Wynne Gibson didn't tell about the biggest thrill of her recent vacation trip. Coming back from Oregon, the car in which she was riding turned over several times. One of the occupants was seriously injured . . . Unable to wait to see Virginia Cherrill, or maybe he didn't want the crowd at the dock to see their greeting, Cary Grant chartered a launch and met the S. S. Virginia at sea Saturday morning . . . Dean Markham, Bobbe Arnst's late admirer, is going places with Georgette Perkins . . . Claudette Colbert has been seriously ill in Hawaii, according to letters from fellow members of the De Mille company.

Kay Francis is co-starred with Edward G. Robinson in "I Loved a Woman," photoplay opening Saturday in Enright.

Fan Dancer to Remain In the Variety

Mlle Verne, French dancer in the Sally Rand style, will remain in the Variety for a second week, and will be seen in "Parisian Nights," opening with a Sunday midnight show. The bill also will feature George Leon and Eddie Lorray, comedians, and Helen Windsor, acrobatic dancer.

Novel Finale In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

This is an age of puzzles, crossword, jigsaw and the analysis of hooch, so it is little wonder that the photoplay studio has entered into the spirit of the times and has supplied us with a picture that doesn't carry any answer, that little thing being left right up to the audience.

This is "Disgraced," which opened in the Fulton yesterday. It eludes classification. If we call it romance we have to remember that the romance has on false whiskers, for what we thought was the real stuff right out of cupid's bag is revealed to have been phony all the time, and the chap we thought was a small guy is proved out as just another slicker who never had any intention of doing right by our Nell—only her name is Gay. If we start to call it drama, we remember it doesn't get dramatic until late in the game. So it is a puzzle in other ways besides the answer.

Anyway, the slicker, Bruce Cabot, is removed permanently shortly after the dramatic side of it begins, and then there is a contest to see who gets the honor of being the remover, Helen Twelvetrees, otherwise our No—pardon us, Gay, being the first to file her claim with the authorities. She is quickly followed by her father, played by William Harrigan, who has a heck of a time convincing his fellow policemen and the district attorney that he did the erasing.

Which, when he does, brings a novel and punch-filled climax—the trial. The father of a wronged girl puts it frankly up to the jury to figure out what any member of it would do under the circumstances. And you are the jury—you of the audience.

Harrigan does a fine job of acting. The others—well, they are just others, capable enough, but what does it matter, considering the parts they have.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Odds and Ends

THE liquor situation in New York today—and throughout the country generally, I imagine—is in strange shape. Along Broadway, the boys all feel that prohibition will be completely out of the picture somewhere along in December. But what's to happen then, nobody knows.

The best guess at the moment seems to be that the government will establish a liquor commission, with Edward P. Mulrooney, the best man in the world for the job, at the head. What Mr. Mulrooney has in mind I do not know definitely. But it seems pretty safe to assert that he will not permit the return of the old-fashioned bar.

Recognized restaurants and cafes, will, of course, be permitted to serve whatever the customer desires. But at tables only. They can have a service bar in plain view, but no hard drinks will be served across it. Barrooms—or taverns, if you will—will be licensed only for the sale of beer, ale and wine.

The underlying reason for all this is not so much to avoid the return of the saloon as to do away with the seating of women at bars. The ladies, God love 'em, now see nothing wrong in dropping in at a bar for an afternoon cocktail, or in sitting at a night club bar until the last customer is rolled out.

That's going to be a thing of the past in short order. Many of the gals will resent it, and so will plenty of liberal papers. But Mr. Mulrooney is wise enough to know what will happen if women are allowed at bars in any public tavern that is exposed to street view.

And so do I. And so do you . . .

Meanwhile, many interesting events are taking place. The firm of Park and Tilford ran a full-page advertisement in New York newspapers the other day that was genuinely startling. This enterprising firm quoted liquor prices, asked for a deposit of $10 on each case, and guaranteed delivery if and when prohibition was definitely repealed.

The results, I am told, were amazing. Orders have poured in all the way from Florida to Alaska. And inasmuch as I take it for granted that the firm of Park and Tilford is not tossing away thousands of dollars without knowing something, the advertisements can be accepted as definite proof that our government will not go into the liquor business. In other words, we will not adopt the Canadian system of liquor control.

Interesting, too, are the statements that are begining to come from the fuss-budgets of the nation. As usual, without regard for common sense, the boys are going to tell us just what to do about the liquor situation.

All in all, then, it looks like a sensational winter along these lines. And I wonder how long it will be before Heywood Broun writes a column that sighs for a return of prohibtion, so that a man can once again drink when and what he pleases? . . .

* * *

AFTER all these years, Louis Fernandez has at last found out the answer to that old favorite, "I Wonder What's Became of Sally?"

She's doing a fan dance in the movie houses! . . .

* * *

ONE of the cheapest bids for dance hall publicity that I have ever encountered arrived at this desk yesterday. The owner of a new spot was bidding for the services of Mrs. Cecelia McCormick, recently acquitted on a murder charge in Brooklyn. He asked me to print the fact that—through me—he was offering her a job as a hostess at $100 a week.

The same letter was sent to practically every columnist in town. In other words, the dance hall was attempting to cash in at the expense of an unfortunate woman who had just gone through a terrific ordeal. And if the columnists could be hoodwinked, so much the better.

I know this dance-hall owner, and he has always seemed to me to be a fine fellow. In this case he must have been badly advised by some press agent who is a disgrace to his craft.

There is a vast difference between advantageous publicity and idiotic notoriety. Knowing that difference is what differentiates the good press agent from the fool . . .

* * *

IT happened, says Gene Levant, in one of the largest studios in all Hollywood. The name the pretty lady had just scribbled upon the long-term contract was well known to hundreds of thousands of moviegoers. Then they sent her over to the publicity department.

There she stood, gazing in perplexity at the regulation questionnaire that was to be filled out and filed for future reference. She began to write. When she reached the heading of "Education," she raised her blonde head thoughtfully. Then she wrote:

"I was educated by a private tocter." . . .

Miss Lefridge introduced at her musicale at the Hotel Schenley yesterday morning Mildred Lissfelt, soprano, and Henry Harris, pianist, both well-known musicians hereabouts. There was the largest audience in the history of these musicales, and on anxious one to hear what these two performers call good music.

Mr. Lissfelt

Their program was a little off the beaten path, and enlisted some new songs of Ernst Smigelski, a Roman monk who deserted the church for the conservatory, the now seldom publicly played Bach Italian Concerto and some neglected etudes of Chopin. The music from "Manon" one hears only when the opera is played.

Harris' work is so well known here now that we want to speak only of his Bach which he reduced to the quality of the composer's own instrument and, in the adagio, gave us an interpretation of the lovable and lyric Bach with such abstract musical beauty as this young fellow has never before shown us in his public playing. After the brilliant etudes he added a waltz of Chopin as encore.

Mrs. Lissfelt's voice is a lyric soprano of quite pretty quality. She tells us that she has no vague ambitions towards opera nor is she in competition for great public honors. She sings for the sake of making music as well as it lies within her talents and so far has accomplished much.

Under the conditions of yesterday's concert, after momentary adjustment, she showed still a little consciousness of method, which is, however, on the right path. Her diction is excellent, and she knows her scores which she really imbues with solid musicianship. She was best in her "Manon" airs which give natural expression to her voice. As encore she sang Trunk's 'At the Masked Ball."

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Echo of Gags Goes Far

The "gags" that Hollywood pulls in private life have astounding reverberations in far corners of the United States, it has been discovered by Richard Arlen.

"The so-called campaign to keep Jack Oakie out of the Toluca Lake residential section was generally misunderstood," he chuckled. "Even an important New York newspaper columnist thought we meant it. Yet a few days later Oakie and Gary Cooper joined me in a cruise to Mexico.

"When Chester Morris arrived in Pendleton, Ore., where the Charles R. Rogers troupe was filming 'Golden Harvest,' Roscoe Ates and I had him met by a group of boys carrying banners with 'Welcome Chester Conklin' on them. The staid Pendletonians didn't know what to make of it.

"Then, of course, there's the gag that named my baby before he was born. Chico Marx dubbed him Elmer the Great. He'll never live it down."

Among other gags that Hollywood endures is one worked out by Lupe Velez. She greets her friends with a well-buttered handshake.

Tom Reed, the scenario writer, nearly ended in an insane asylum when he was a press agent. After a big murder he dressed like Sherlock Holmes and inspected the scene through a magnifying glass. He was put in a psychopathic ward and had difficulty explaining it was all a publicity stunt.

Then there was the girl who was chased into a restaurant by Harpo Marx. When he sat on her lap she kissed him, much to his embarrassment.

GARBO'S 'SOUL MATE' FREE

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Instructed by police to keep his "spiritual friendship" with Greta Garbo outside the walls encircling her home, Oscar H. Brosi, a Long Beach laborer, was released last night.

Police said they had found him attempting to scale the fence around the film actress' residence.

"We are spiritual affinities," Briso told authorities before he was released to the custody of his brother, G. Brosi. "I am sorry that I did not get to give her the book of poems on love that I copied for her."

Brosi's pockets yielded several writing tablets bearing excerpts from well known poems and sonnetts on love. They were preceded by a penciled note: "Presented with deepest humility and highest regard."

Vamp Groove Tires Her

Lilian Bond is tired of saying mean things to ingenues.

As a result she has turned down a number of lucrative screen contracts and is engaged in free-lancing so that she may have a chance to change her characterizations.

"Personally, I'd prefer to be working under contract. It's a lot easier and more lucrative and one gets a great deal more publicity," the little auburn-haired English girl admitted as she waited to go onto a "take a chance" set.

"I'm tired of being the nasty creature who continually wisecracks at the good girls in the show. Women aren't quite like that, you know. So now I'm free-lancing until I can prove that I'm capable of playing other roles."

Miss Bond insists that her screen career was "ruined" on the day she arrived in Hollywood for the first time.

"When I opened the Los Angeles papers the first thing I saw was a full page story captioned 'La Bond is Here to Show Them How' and a slinky picture of me in practically no clothes at all. Now I'll give you my word that I'm not like that. I draw, dance, write poetry and do other perfectly placid things. Truth to tell I have a terrible inferiority complex and my private life is not exciting enough for publication. But what could I do? I was a vamp from then on."

SWEETEST DAY

Saturday OCT. 14th

TO LOVE, to live and be loved . . . and who among us but have love in our hearts, . . . yet too often it remains there, never manifesting itself.

Perhaps the energy and exertion of living precludes the constant exhibition of sentiment. However, all of us have sweethearts, mothers and wives or relatives, to whom a sweet token of sentiment would rekindle that latent spark of love and devotion and elate us with the great joy of remembering our dear ones.

SWEETEST DAY came into being because its founders recognized the eternal tendency of men and women to become so engaged in the rush and whirl of life and to forget the finer and more appealing things.

So on this day, Saturday, October 14th, steal enough time from the turmoil of routine affairs to bring a bit of good cheer to those you love. A box of candy . . . and, more than that, add a loving word—a smile—a kiss. SWEETEST DAY is worthy of your attention. Regard its observance as a sacred duty . . . and a rare opportunity. Let it be said You Remembered.

Sardines Help Appetite, Have High Food Value

Modern research proves these tiny fish aid in the digestion of other viands; with vegetables, they make a good luncheon or supper.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

Our knowledge of foods has increased steadily within the past few years. We have learned that certain foods produce energy and heat, while some provide the body with minerals and vitamins, and others develop strong bones and teeth.

There is another group of foods that stimulate the appetite and aid the body in the digestion of other foods. The sardine is a fish which comes under this classification. Its fine flavor and delicious taste are valuable in the diet to "pep up" a lagging appetite.

The name "sardine" was used originally to describe the small fish closely related to the herring family. These fish were caught in the waters off the Island of Sardinia. Later, the term was used to describe other small fish or "pilchards" found in France, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and the United States. California and Maine give us our largest supply of sardines.

INDUSTRY GROWING

Some consider the French sardine the choicest, but our own sardine is increasing in popularity. The industry in the United States is fast forging to the front.

As a rule, the fishing season for the sardine is at its height in early fall. At this time the fish are firm, plump, healthy and suitable for canning. Bait, such as the salted eggs of cod and mackerel is used to attract the sardine.

It is an interesting sight to see the fleet of boats arrive in the harbor. Their fishing nets have captured hundreds of thousands of sardines, and these are quickly removed to the canneries.

SORTED AT CANNERY

At the cannery, the head and viscera are first removed. Then the sardines are sorted and placed in brine. Later they are throughly washed and allowed to dry. The choicest sardines are skinned and boned, and the tail as well as the head removed. When dry, they are packed in oil, mustard, or tomato sauce. Those of best grade are packed in pure olive oil; others in peanut or cottonseed oil.

Enormous quantities of domestic sardines are eaten. The industry and the consumer are protected by the regulation of the Food and Drug Act. Under this law the packing and canning of sardines are rigidly inspected. The canneries must be sanitary. The ingredients in which the sardines are packed must be legibly printed on the can.

Sardines are inexpensive and obtainable all year round. They appeal to all tastes and with vegetables can be used as a main course for luncheon or supper. They are served in many different ways and lend variety to the menu.

MARKS DEPEND ON TEACHERS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—More boys than girls, report the statisticians of the Cleveland Board of Education, invariably "flunk" school courses, but not because boys aren't as bright.

Here's the reason William L. Connor, research director, gives:

"Boys pester the teacher more, and she consciously or unconsciously takes it out on them in marking.

"Boys are as bright as girls, in fact, boys generally rate higher on tests than do girls. It just goes to show that passing marks in school depend upon pleasing teacher.

"The schools are set up in such a way that a premium is placed on conformity, and girls conform better than boys."

RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY

BRISK, COLORFUL OCTOBER days bring to many a memory of savory baked beans served with Boston brown bread, rich and moist with molasses and raisins.

We should revive our skill in preparation of such wholesome truly American dishes.

* * *

WHEN YOU DETERMINE to bake beans plan quite a baking party for yourself with resulting ginger drop cakes, pies, layer cakes and some of the delicious fruit breads we worked out for our readers last season. You may have the fruit bread bulletin of recipes by writing me requesting it.

To bake beans the Boston way, use a covered earthenware bean pot. However, the same flavor has been developed in beans baked in a five-pound lard pail or any cooking container that may be tightly covered.

To prepare the navy beans for baking, pick over one quart of the beans and put them to soak 12 hours or overnight in cold water. Drain, cover with fresh water and bring it slowly to the simmering point. Allow the beans to cook slowly until the skins are loosened, about 30 minutes after they start simmering.

Drain this water off. In the meantime, prepare a pound of salt pork by scalding and scraping the rind. Cut off two or three slices and put them in the bottom of the bean pot. Cut through the rind of the remaining pork, preparing to bury it rind side up in the beans to cook. Then put in the beans and bury the salt pork in them, rind exposed.

Now add the important seasonings. 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons molasses, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard, mixed together and dissolved in 1 cup boiling water. Pour this over the beans, add hot water to cover the beans, cover the pot and bake 6 to 8 hours. Remove the cover the last hour to brown and crisp the top beans and pork rind.

* * *

SPANISH LAMB — 3 strips bacon, cut fine, 2½ cups uncooked lamb shoulder in 1 inch cubes, ¼ cup seasoned flour, 2 medium onions, sliced, 2 cups diced celery, 2 cups green peas, ½ teaspoon powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups canned tomato juice or strained canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon bottled condiment sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Cook the bacon in the bottom of the "waterless" cooker without the base until a light brown. Then add the meat which has been sprinkled with the seasoned flour, and the sliced onions, and cook until the meat is browned on all sides. Add the remaining ingredients, and set the cooker on its base. Cook with the rice and mixed fruit compote for one hour after steam issues from the vent of the cooker and the heat has been lowered. Serves four.

* * *

BUTTERED RICE—1 cup rice (uncooked), 3 cups cold water, 1 teaspoon salt.

Combine the rice, cold water and salt in one of the half inset pans of the "waterless" cooker. Cook with the mixed fruit compote and Spanish lamb for one hour after steam issues from the vent of the cooker and the heat has been lowered. Serves four.

* * *

BEEF WITH NOODLES—4 to 5 pounds of round beef, 1 package noodles, 2 cups canned tomatoes, ½ cup chopped beef, 1 large onion, 1 large green pepper, salt and pepper, 2 slices bacon, 3 bay leaves, 6 cloves, 1 clove garlic, suet, 1 cup hot water, grated cheese.

Chop suet and bacon and fry. Add onion, garlic and green pepper finely chopped and when they begin to brown add the meat. Brown on both sides and then

Liberty is glad to announce the return of one of America's greatest and most consistent advertisers to its advertising pages.

Starting in the issue of October 21st, the famous color pages advertising Campbell's Soups will go to nearly two and a quarter million new families. And practically all of these families live in cities where counter displays of Campbell's Soups provide 100% sales tie-up!

Since Macfadden Publications, Incorporated, acquired Liberty a little more than two years ago, the Campbell Soup Company has been a close observer of Liberty's upward progress—the improvement in such mechanical things as paper stock, inks and printing—and the improvement in its editorial material through the growth of a great contributing staff of writers and illustrators.

And the makers of Campbell's Soups saw that these new policies had resulted in solid reader support throughout the most trying periods of the depression—that Liberty had become a necessity in two and a quarter million households.

So with the upward surge an accomplished fact—with confidence in the future—and with confidence that Liberty is destined to fill a definite niche in American home life—Campbell's Soups are to be advertised in Liberty—in full color—starting with the issue of October 21st!

Campbell's Soups are advertised in Liberty because:

1 Liberty gives them nearly two and a quarter million new circulation—the only reading group not at present reached by their extensive advertising campaign in the United States and Canada.

2 Liberty is the magazine that survey after survey has demonstrated is the most thoroughly read magazine today. Every week more men and women step up to newsstands and buy Liberty than any other magazine published. Liberty's readers buy it at the newsstands because they want it and prefer it and go out and buy it week after week—just as they want and prefer and buy Campbell's Soups every week in the year.

3 Liberty is the favorite weekly of women—with a far greater proportion of women readers than any other weekly.

4 Liberty's circulation is concentrated in the cities—where point of contact displays can complete the buying impulse started by Campbell's color pages! Liberty has a greater proportion of its circulation in the cities—in Campbell's most productive market—than any other magazine published.

Responsibilities Are Changed After Marriage

She's a wonderful little missis, and she loves home—
But the home she loves is Mamma's.

So every little while she leaves her husband to boil his eggs and swab his own floors, while she dashes off to ''visit'' for a week or two. And now she just can't understand why he's peeved. So won't we tell him a thing or two?

Will we? Try and stop us!!!

Dear Miss Robinson:

Will you please help me? I am 23 and have been married for about a year, but I am not really happy. I don't think my husband understands me, and it seems to me that he is selfish.

You see I was always a home-loving girl and adored my mother. When I married Dent we moved to another town, about a hundred miles from my home, and I nearly died from loneliness. I just couldn't stand it, not seeing mother and not being in the old home I had always loved so.

So I have gone home several times to visit. I have been home for a week or so four times since we were married, and for some reason Dent gets angry when I go. We have quarrelled about it the last two times I went. I have just gotten back to him now, and I was so hurt at the way Dent greeted me. Instead of acting like he was glad to see me he remarked sarcastically, "Well, you decided to give me a few minutes of your time again, did you?"

MISSES RELATIVES

I just don't know what to think of him. I am wondering, seriously, if he really loves me any more. I am so upset I don't know what to do.

Why can't he understand the way I feel, and the way a girl loves her home, even if she is married? Mother and I have always been the greatest of pals. There are so many things that we always did together, and I miss them so when I am away from her. I miss Dad, too, and my brother and sister.

Will you please write an article about this and try to make Dent understand, and stop treating me the way he is? He just sulks and acts as if he thought I'd done him some injury. I'll say something about fixing up our apartment, and he'll give me a dirty look and say "What for? You aren't here enough to make it worth bothering."

I think he is cruel. I have been wondering lately if maybe I shouldn't leave him for good. I don't think he will ever be the loving, understanding man I thought I was marrying.

RYA.

FELL DOWN ON JOB

So he "isn't the loving, understanding" husband you expected?

Let me ask you, lady—How about you being the loving, understanding, Regular wife he expected?

Never thought of that, did you?

No; you didn't. Plainly, it hasn't occurred to you that he had a right to expect anything, your idea being that you were doing him a Great Big Favor when you married him.

Get over it! You weren't doing him any bigger favor than he did you, Rya. You promised to be partners; to build a home, together. He has kept his end of the bargain, but you haven't kept yours. And now you wonder why he seems to feel that you've sold him out. You have!

Yes, it's grand to be a Mamma's Girl. But you lost that job when you married and became Dent's girl. Then stop jumping your job and scuttling back to the old nest. Also, stop kidding yourself that you want to go because you "love them so." That's only partly the reason.

The real reason why you go home is because you're a big baby, too cowardly to grow up, too lazy to tackle grown-up jobs, too doggoned selfish to think of the other fellow's rights.

Snap out of it and act human—or take the consequences. Which, believe me baby, will be plenty!

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Prepares for Stormy Session With Mother-in-Law

Softly I pushed open the door to the little hall outside the suite which includes Katherine's room, the nursery, and the bedroom that is used for Junior and Roderick when Roderick's older brothers, Hank and Bill, are with us. The nursery door was partly ajar, and I went in to find Mother Graham sitting erect in a low chair, her foot tapping a tattoo upon the rug, while Katherine stood as if on guard before the crib, where my adorable small daughter lay cooing and kicking.

"When it comes to the pass," my mother-in-law was saying, "when I cannot pick up my own grandchild, it is time for me to go elsewhere than under my son's roof."

It was a familiar plaint to me; and I guessed that Katherine must also be getting used to it.

"Dear Mother Graham," Katherine said, with a sweet reasonableness which would have softened almost any grandmotherly heart, "it will be only a few minutes now when you can take her. She has just had a feeding, and I do not want her disturbed for a little while afterward."

"And then she'll be asleep. I've heard that story before," my mother-in-law said caustically. With some idea of deflecting the lightning, I spoke from the doorway.

"Katie said you wished to see me, mother," I said in my sweetest accents.

She whirled and looked at me witheringly.

"Well! I must say you've taken your time about coming," she snapped.

TO PLAN DINNER

I saw my chance to steer her wrath away from Katherine.

"I'm sorry," I said, not revealing the fact that I had been waiting inside the nursery. "I had to attend to something downstairs."

"You generally find something more important than my wishes," she retorted, "but I haven't time to take that up now. Come over to my room where I can talk to you about dinner."

She swept to the door, the full skirt of her house dress of gray voile billowing around her, its tight bodice and immaculate collar and cuffs making her look like a Godey illustration—or a modern fashion plate, so far back has the style pendulum swung this year—and without vouchsafing another word to Katherine she went down the corridor. I lingered only to flash a comprehendingly sympathetic glance at my little kinswoman, and to hear her whisper "Bless you," with humorous emphasis. Then I, too, was out in the corridor, and by quickening my pace was able to reach my mother-in-law's door at the same moment she did.

"Sit down, and take pencil and paper," she commanded. "We have very little time in which to get up the sort of dinner Mr. Veritzen should be given. You'll probably have to go to Southampton again, although if you're as long as you were this time, I'd better send somebody else. I haven't had a chance to ask you yet about those cake boxes, and why in tunket you were so long getting back."

CONTROLS RESENTMENT

"I'm afraid I delayed too long at the Hampton Bays hat shop," I told her glibly, ashamed of my deception, but knowing that she must not be told of Avis Arlen's activities. "But, mother, do you think it is necessary to get up a special dinner for Mr. Veritzen? He understands how busy we are, and I told him we could only offer him 'pot luck.'"

"I heard you make use of that hatefully vulgar expression," she said caustically, "but I do not choose that the father of the young man who is to marry my granddaughter shall be entertained in any such haphazard fashion. I have some pride about this house, if you have none."

Long experience with my mother-in-law has brought me to the comfortable philosophy that there is no use resenting the many little pin pricks she gives. I have two reasons for this conclusion. One is my realization of what sterling character, warm kindness and genuine affection for me lie under her irritating manner. The other is my theory that if I resent the little things, I shall have no effective ammunition with which to wage the occasional battle which I am compelled to give her in order to preserve my self-respect and my position as mistress of the farm. So I put down my natural desire to make an angry retort, and only said quietly:

"If you'll outline what dinner you want, I shall try to carry it out."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Obstacle Race"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should Julienne potatoes be eaten? Julienne potatoes were served with our dinner at a fashionable club and, as I was experiencing some difficulty in eating them with my fork, my escort suggested eating them in my fingers, as he did. They are very unmanageable with a fork. Was he correct when he said that "everyone" eats them in the fingers? X. Y. Z.

Julienne potatoes do offer a problem, but they can and should be eaten with the fork. Although they are so small, they are rather greasy when taken in the fingers. And, therefore, we should eat them with a fork. And it's fun to practice in this obstacle race.

Wedding Details

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Who is the proper one to first congratulate the bride and groom after they are married?

2—Who should ask the minister to marry them?

BRIDE-TO-BE.

1—The clergyman.

2—The bride and her mother usually go to see the clergyman to make arrangements with him about the ceremony.

Answering Employers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When your employer calls you by name, which is proper to say, "Yes, Sir" or "Yes, Mr. Brown"? G.

"Yes, Mr. Brown," is the appropriate answer.

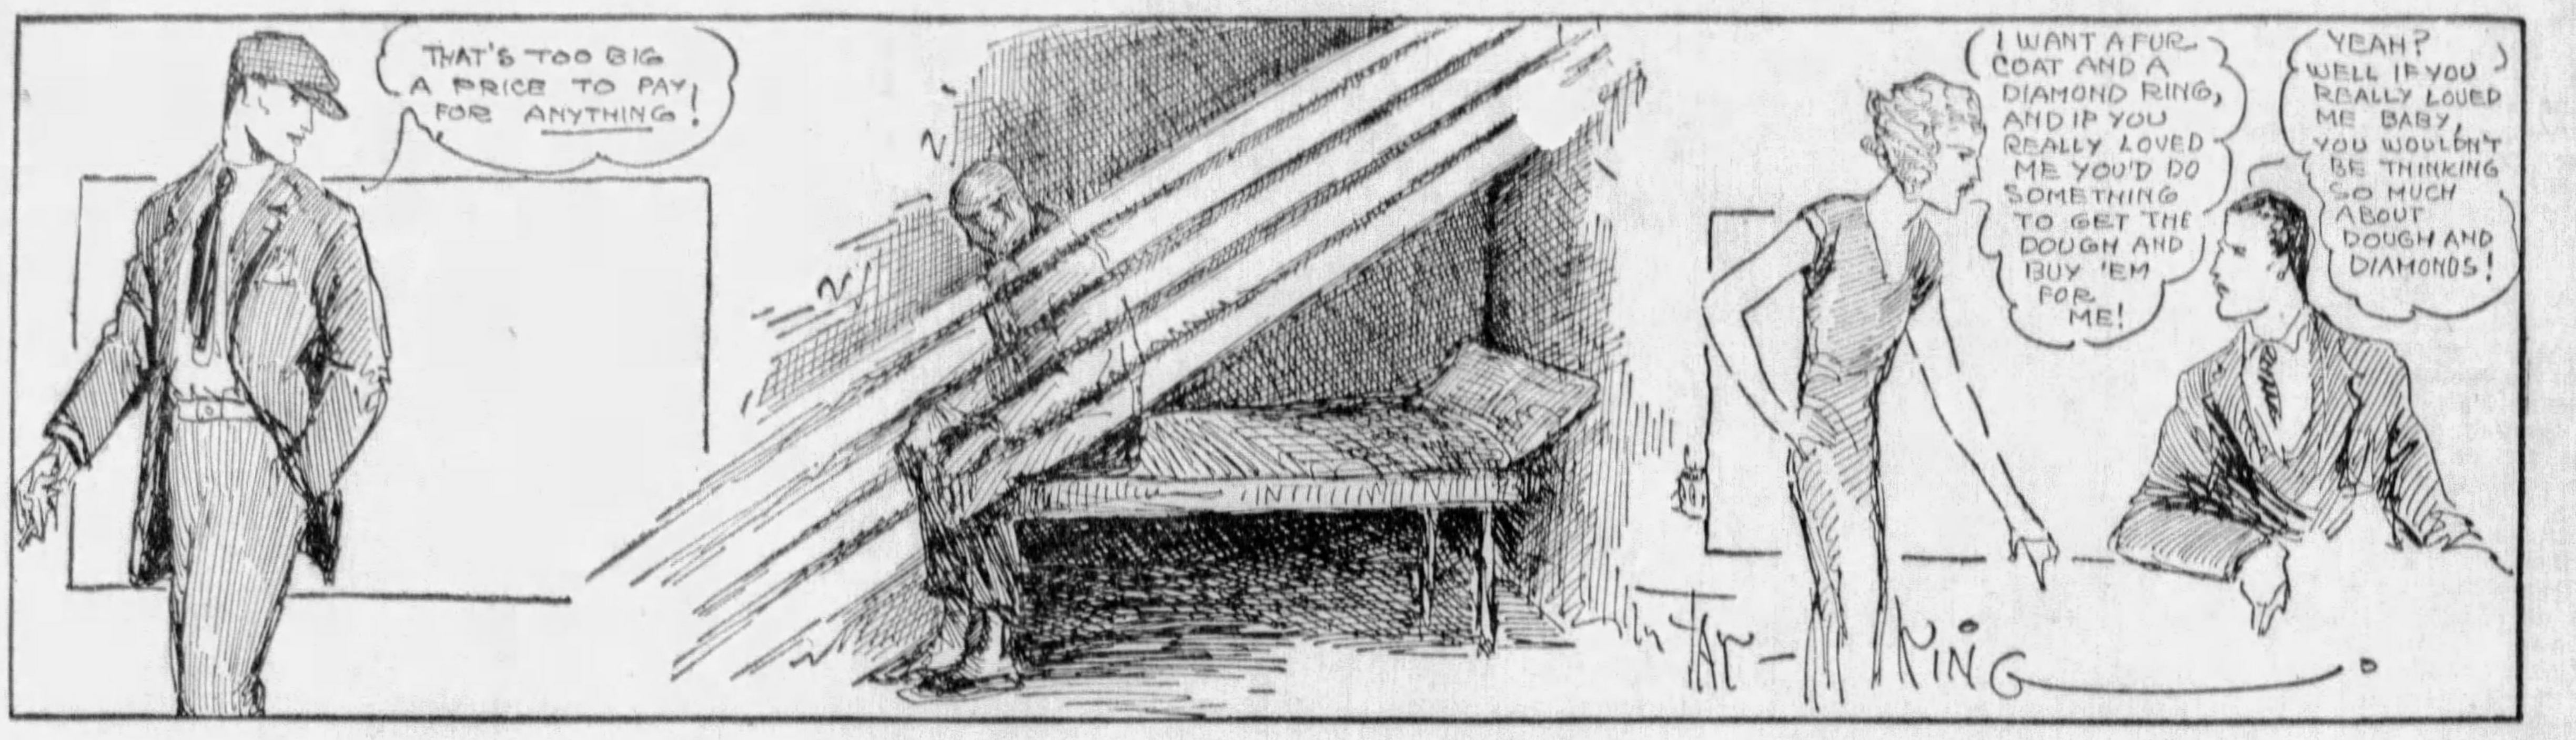
Criminal Prisoner of Fear Despite Acquittal, Says Fay King



THAT'S TOO BIG A PRICE TO PAY FOR ANYTHING!
I WANT A FUR COAT AND A DIAMOND RING, AND IF YOU REALLY LOVED ME YOU'D DO SOMETHING TO GET THE DOUGH AND BUY 'EM FOR ME!
YEAH? WELL IF YOU REALLY LOVED ME BABY, YOU WOULDN'T BE THINKING SO MUCH ABOUT DOUGH AND DIAMONDS!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

The common motives for crime are greed, revenge and jealousy. The penalty is imprisonment or death.

Before committing any kind of crime one should ponder well upon the price he will pay.

First try living a while without freedom, without seeing any friends. Give up all the small pleasures and comforts that mean so little now.

He will come to the wise conclusion that nothing and no one is more important than just being his carefree humble self, going about as he pleases.

It is said one can guess the guilt of an accused person by the lawyer engaged for defense. But if clever counsel gains acquittal, the stigma of doubt remains.

Crime never pays. Even if he "beats the rap," he is a prisoner of fear!

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Sure Bidding of a Sure Slam

I am indebted to Mr. Ira Dunkle, of Eagles Mere, Pa., for the following hand, which is clearly indicative of the superiority of the new Culbertson Slam Method.

By skillful employment of the 4-5 notrump convention and the jump trump rebid, the players who held the North-South cards arrived safely and effortlessly at a Grand Slam contract. And I should like to stress the safety factor; they could tell from the bidding that it was practically unthinkable that they might not be successful.

According to Mr. Dunkle, expert proponents of other systems failed to reach a contract of seven when given these hands as a bidding test, because the North hand could not be sure that a holding of K2 in spades would make his partner's suit solid.

These are the hands:
North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠K2 ♡63 ♢AK943 ♣AKJ6

West: ♠— ♡K108 ♢J875 ♣Q109752

East: ♠83 ♡9542 ♢Q1062 ♣843

South: ♠AQJ1097654 ♡AQJ7 ♢— ♣—

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1♢	Pass
2♠ (1)	Pass	3♣	Pass
4♠ (2)	Pass	4NT (3)	Pass
5NT (4)	Pass	7♠ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—South has not the necessary 3½ honor-tricks for a forcing takeout, but his hand is so very powerful that it justifies shading those requirements.

2—The Jump Trump rebid. It shows a suit of six cards or more in length, with only one losing trick in the trump suit.

3—The conventional slam try, showing two Aces and the King of a suit bid by the partners. North's hand has far more than the actual requirements for this bid.

4—The conventional response. South confirms possession of the other two Aces.

5—This is the bid that players not using the Culbertson slam methods were unable to make. North knows that there is not a possible hole in the combined holdings; his spade King makes that suit solid. South has the Ace of hearts, and the diamond and club suits are so strong that they must furnish sufficient discards to eliminate any heart losers South might have.

It was not necessary to play the hand at all, South spreading his hand after the opening lead and claiming all 13 tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding having gone:

North	South
2♣	2♡
3♡	4♡
5NT	?

What is South's correct response to the Forcing five-notrump bid, holding the following hand:

♠AK3 ♡QJ1074 ♢863 ♣95

Answer: Seven hearts. North's five-notrump bid is a clear invitation to bid seven if any extra values are held. South certainly holds more than a simple two-heart response.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Pellagra—A Deficiency Disease

Dr. Copeland

In our daily conversation the word "vitamin" is frequently used and most everyone is "vitamin conscious." Yet comparatively few have heard of a "vitamin deficiency" disease.

There is an annoying and persistent skin affliction called "pellagra" which is now known as a vitamin deficiency disease. For many years little was known about the cause and cure of this disturbance. We are indebted to the United States Public Health Service for much excellent research work. This bureau has confirmed the suspicion that pellagra is the result of some fault in the diet, with the lack of necessary vitamins in the food.

Many physicians doubted the early reports of this extensive work. Since the disease usually involves the skin, they believed it could be traced to some disorder of that structure and not to the food. Today it is universally accepted as a disease due to the eating of improper food.

Many believe that pellagra is a poor man's disease. This is not true. It is not caused by lack of food, but by eating the wrong kind of food. It may occur in persons who avoid eating certain necessary foods, because of their efforts to reduce. It may be the result of some disorder where proper digestion of the necessary foods is disturbed.

There are other vitamin-deficiency diseases. When the diet is lacking in vitamin C, "scurvy" occurs; if vitamin B is deficient, we have a disease called "beri-beri." Pellagra, however, is caused by a lack of vitamin G. Fortunately this particular vitamin is found in a variety of foods and you can be assured of receiving your required amounts if you partake of a well balanced diet.

Vitamin G is found in fresh lean meats, liver, milk, canned salmon and wheat germ. It is also found in eggs, dried beans, peas, canned spinach and canned string beans. Corn products, wheat and rye flour, oatmeal, salt pork, lard, carrots and rice contain small quantities of this valuable vitamin.

As I have said, pellagra need not be feared if the diet is varied and well balanced. No vitamin deficiency disease can occur when the necessary measures are taken to insure a diet that includes meats, vegetables, fruits, wheat products and milk. Bear in mind that a diet low in proteins and one that contains few vegetables and fresh fruits is likely to lead to a vitamin-deficiency disorder.

At one time pellagra was a common affliction among farmers in certain districts of the country. During the winter months they lived on a diet consisting essentially of molasses and corn bread. Fortunately the danger of such a diet is now well known and I am glad to say that pellagra is not as common as in former years.

Stir in melted chocolate, egg yolks and vanilla. Mix dry ingredients, sift twice and add alternately with milk. Beat well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two 10-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 20 to 25 minutes. When cool spread fruit filling between layers. Frost with a boiled icing.

Fruit filling: Put ¾ cup evaporated milk, ¼ cup water and ¾ cup sugar in top of double boiler. Stir until sugar dissolves. Add ¼ cup chopped dates, ¼ cup seeded chopped raisins, ¼ cup chopped figs. Cook until thick. Cool. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup chopped nut-meats.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH COMMON CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation gets its grip on a person almost unawares. It often starts with such little things. Headaches. Listlessness. Bad complexion. Unpleasant breath. If unchecked, it may seriously impair your health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this danger by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of iron for the blood.

Biological tests demonstrate that the "bulk" in bran is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than taking unpleasant patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Serious cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

P. R. R. PLANS DELIVERIES TO STORE DOORS

The Pennsylvania Railroad plans to start store door delivery of freight throughout the entire system within about two months, John F. Deasy, vice president of the road declared today, as he was making preparations to leave for Philadelphia. There he will be executive officer in charge of operations of the entire system.

For the past two years he has been in charge of the Central Region, with offices here.

Deasy said tariff schedules are being prepared and the plan, revolutionary in American transportation, is being favored by Joseph B. Eastman, railroad coordinator.

It is probable that there will be no increase in freight rates for distances of less than 260 miles. For greater distances higher rates will be charged.

AMPLE FACILITIES

Trucking at most points will be handled by existing transfer organizations. The Pennsylvania Railroad, Deasy explained, acquired interests in trucking companies in leading cities some years ago in anticipation of the development of store door delivery. These organizations have ample trucking facilities to handle the business, at least in its experimental stages.

Speaking of general business, Deasy said:

> "As soon as work on codes is completed and the present industrial troubles are settled, I anticipate considerable improvement in activity."

When he was asked if this would be likely to take place before the end of the year, he declared:

> "I sincerely hope so."

NO NEW TERMINAL

Pittsburgh is unlikely to have a new passenger terminal for some years, in Deasy's opinion.

He explained that Pittsburgh provided passenger business of about $13,000,000 a year at the time when the plans for the station were first made. This business has since dwindled to about $4,500,000 a year so that present facilities are adequate. He stated that this decline is in line with passenger traffic conditions in other parts of the country.

The road is carrying out electrification at points where traffic is greatest. At present traffic in the Pittsburgh district would be unlikely to justify the expense of electrification.

Auto Victim Killed En Route to Hospital

LANSDALE, Pa., Oct. 13.—(INS.)—An injured man being rushed to a hospital was killed today when the car collided with another machine, seriously injuring another man.

The dead man was Weston E. Lightcap, 37, of Colmar, struck by the car of Albert Rodgers, of Mnotgomeryville, while riding a bicycle.

SHERIFF KILLER IDENTIFIED AS CONVICT

LIMA, O., Oct. 13 —(AP.)— Harry Pierpont, escaped Michigan City, Ind., convict was identified by county and city police from Bertillon pictures today as the slayer of Sheriff Jess L. Sarber, killed when John L. Dillinger, paroled Indiana convict and suspected bank robber, was liberated from the Allen County jail last night.

The identification was made by Detective Inspector Bernard J. Roney, of Lima, and several deputy sheriffs.

Immediately after the identification officers went to Leipsic, near here, and took into custody for questioning Fred Pierpont.

Harry Pierpont, officers said, was one of the 10 convicts who escaped from the Michigan, Ind., state prison September 26.

Although Sheriff Sarber, before he died identified his assailant as "Harry Copeland," officers said they were convinced his right name was Harry Pierpont.

In a barn on the Pierpont farm, officers found a new eight-cylinder automobile which Harry said was brought there several days ago to be repaired.

Officers said the car was "ready to go" and expressed the belief it may have been "planted" for a "get away" if officers got too close on the trail of those who liberated Dillinger.

pin. Crimp the edges of the cake. Prick the surface with a fork.

Dust a flat back tin with rice flour (do not grease it). Bake in a quick oven 10 minutes, then reduce the heat and cover the cake with paper. Turn gas very low and bake about 50 minutes, making a total of 1 hour althogether.

* * *

APPLE TURNOVER—1 quart milk (lukewarm), 1 piece yeast, 1 box (6 ounces) finely crumbled rusk or toast, 3 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 cup raisins, 1 teaspoon cardemon seed (crushed), ¼ teaspoon salt, 2½ cups flour, 2 apples, peeled and cut into thin slices or sections.

To the lukewarm milk add the dissolved yeast, the crumbled rusk, the eggs, raisins, cardemon, salt and flour. Blend well. The mixture should be of the consistency of a thick drop batter. Set it aside in a warm place and allow to rise one hour. Stir the batter and pour into a hot well-buttered iron (Abelskiv) apple-turnover griddle, placing a thin slice of apple in each compartment. When the turnover is a golden brown on the under side, turn it over quickly with a fork and fry the other side. They resemble golden apples when done. This makes about three dozen. Serve hot with sugar, jelly, jam, marmalade or syrup.

Note—the apple-turnover griddle is similar to an iron gem pan, is round, has a handle and seven compartments. It fits snugly on the gas stove.

* * *

HOPPING JOHN—1 cup cooked rice, 1 cup pea beans, 1 quart water, ¼ pound salt pork, onion, 1 teaspoon salt, sprinkle of pepper, 3 allspice berries, 3 cloves, 2 slices onion, 1½ cups tomato sauce.

Soak beans overnight in 2 cups water. In the morning add 2 cups water and cook gently until tender.

Cut salt pork into small dice. Brown in frying pan with onion and add to the beans. Season with salt and pepper. Add the rice and cook for 10 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce flavored with the allspice, cloves and onion.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

2 cups dried beans.
½-pound salt pork.
4 tablespoons molasses.
1 teaspoon mustard, if desired.
1½ teaspoons salt (depending on saltiness of pork.)

Soak the beans overnight in cold water to cover. In the morning drain, add a quart of fresh water, simmer for 45 minutes, or until the beans begin to soften, and drain. Score the rind of the salt pork and put half of the pork in the bottom of the bean pot. Add the beans, mix the molasses and other seasonings with a little hot water, and pour over the beans. Add enough hot water to cover. Place the rest of the salt pork on top, cover the pot and cook the beans in a slow oven (about 250 deg. F.) for six or seven hours. Add a little hot water from time to time to replace that which cooks away and is absorbed by the beans. Keep the lid on the bean pot until the last hour of cooking and then uncover, and allow the beans and pork on the top to brown.

* * *

ICE BOX PUDDING—2 egg yolks, 2 egg whites, ¼ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup milk, 1 small can crushed pineapple, ½ cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, vanilla wafers.

Mix the egg yolks, ¼ cup sugar, flour and milk. Cook in double boiler until thick. Cool; add the pineapple. Cream the butter and powdered sugar and mix with the first part. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Line a mold with vanilla wafers, add alternately the mixture and wafers. Chill 24 hours. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 8 to 10.

* * *

SWEETMEAT SALAD—½ pound prunes, ½ pound dates, marshmallows, walnut meats, shredded cocoanut.

Parboil the prunes until tender. Remove pits carefully and stuff each with a half marshmallow. Seed the dates, filling the center with walnut meats. Dip each prune and date into well beaten egg white, adding a little salt. Then roll them in shredded cocoanut and bake in a moderate oven a few minutes until the cocoanut browns. Serve in a nest of crisp lettuce leaves, with ripe olives.

1 cup corn meal and 1 cup rye meal, or 2 cups corn meal.
1 cup Graham flour.
1 teaspoon salt.

PATIENTS' FAULT THEY'RE ILL, MEDICS SAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Many sick persons have themselves to blame, physicians attending the American College of Surgeons, told the public in a series of addresses.

They said this was because many persons fail to avail themselves of the knowledge physicians have about preventing certain diseases such as smallpox and diphtheria.

Dr. C. Jeff Miller, of New Orleans, among the physicians making public addresses yesterday, said that each year in the United States 13,000 persons die of diphtheria, 11,000 of them children under 10 years of age.

"Yet there are simple tests which show whether children are susceptible to diphtheria, and if they are shown to be susceptible, there are methods of protecting them.

"Vaccination against typhoid fever is effective in nearly 100 per cent of the cases, yet 8,000 Americans die of this disease each year."

He added that although smallpox is an entirely avoidable disease, there are 100,000 cases of it in the United States annually.

Dr. Frank K. Boland, of Atlanta, Ga., declared there were numerous cases of heart disease and arthritis which would never have occurred if the victims had not overlooked infected sinuses, teeth and tonsils.

'Taming' of Glands Held Cure for Many Diseases

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Dr. George Crile, famous Cleveland scientist, told surgeons last night that gland surgery promises new cures for many dread diseases, particularly those affecting "the body's storm center"—the adrenal gland.

The nervous system of this gland which lies on the kidney, Dr. Crile described as "occupying the driver's seat in the life and strife of civilized man."

He blamed the adrenal as the imp of the body, exciting other glands, particularaly the thyroid in the neck, to overactivity which either causes tuberculosis, diabetes, heart ailments and nervous disorders, or is associated with them.

He reported success in curing tuberculosis of the lungs when associated with overactivity of the thyroid, by gland surgery on the thyroid. Operations on 87 patients, he said, served in nearly 75 per cent of the cases as a successful treatment of the disease.

Taming the thyroid also worked cures in diabetes when its running mate was an overactive thyroid, he said. He is working, he announced, on experiments in curing this disease by disconnecting the adrenal and thus slowing down the thyroid. He reported success in three cases.

teaspoons soda, or 2 cups sweet milk, ¼-teaspoon soda, and 4 teaspoons baking power.

Mix the dry ingredients and add the molasses and the milk. Beat the mixture thoroughly, and pour into greased molds until they are about three-fourth full. Cover loosely to keep out the moisture, and steam for 3½ hours. Remove the covers and bake the bread in a moderate oven for about 10 minutes to dry it off. If the bread seems likely to crumble, loop a string around the loaf and cut slices by pulling the ends of the string.

CHANGE SOUGHT IN CHURCH SESSIONS

Important changes in the operating boards of the church were expected to be presented before the international convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) in session today at Syria Mosque.

Proposal that the international convention will be made a legislative rather than an advisory session is expected to be the principal change submitted. The Commission on Function and Structure, especially appointed last year to study the convention functions, was reported as prepared to submit the proposal to the Committee on Recommendations. All convention business must be submitted by the latter group for action of the delegation.

EXTENDS POWER

The proposed change would establish the election of regular delegates to attend the convention rather than a general membership of the church as now exists. Where the convention is largely an auditing agency for various boards, the proposal is expect to provide power to deal directly with all problems affecting the church.

A second important change would be to establish separate agencies from two functions now included in the work of the United Christian Missionary Society. The new boards, likely to be recommended by the Commission on Policies and Relationships, would be the Board of Church Extension and the Department of Benevolence. The extension board controls funds and property valued at $3,000,000, while the benevolence department operates 12 homes for children and aged people.

Elimination of miscellaneous fund appeals likewise is expected to be proposed. A general fund drive under a central promotional agency would be substituted. The proposal of an educational drive for temperance is expected to be submitted through the Commission on Prohibition and Social Welfare.

STAND ON WAR

A proposal, suggested by 72 students of the California Christian College, of Los Angeles, for the denomination to take a definite stand against war will be submitted to the recommendation committee. A second recommendation bearing on war and expected to be submitted to the convention will call for the endorsement of the Roerich Peace Pact. It proposes a pact whereby all churches, art museums and libraries would be protected during wars.

Plans to rebuild the Christian world were considered folly until the builders are regenerated by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Walker, of Columbus, O., at the morning session. Comparing conditions of today with those of Christ's time, Dr. Walker said there still was "injustice in dealing, oppression of the poor and unfortunate, criminal connivance between racketeers and officials, conflicts of capital and labor."

China's welfare is at stake, Searle Bates, widely known missionary in China, declared in citing the conflicts caused by the greed of international trade, including the sale of armaments to the Chinese.

JURY FREES KIN OF SLAIN MAN

After one jury had been out 26 hours and discharged because it could not agree, another found a verdict of not guilty in the case after 15 minutes' deliberation in Criminal Court yesterday.

Carl Sonnie, 29, of Vandergrift, was charged with accessory after the fact of robbery. The jury that disagreed heard the case two weeks ago.

John Sonnie, 24, deceased brother of Carl Sonie, was alleged to have attempted to hold up R. T. Hirtle, Springdale constable, August 5, while the constable was searching parked automobiles for "petters." Hirtle said Sonnie tried to draw a gun but he, the constable, shot first, fatally wounding the younger Sonnie.

He went for help and while he was gone, according to the evidence, Carl Sonnie arrived. Finding his brother wounded, Carl took him to a hospital, where he died. For this a charge of accessory was made against him.

Court Sets Mark Of 50,000 Cases Since 1911

Fifty thousand cases have been disposed of in Common Pleas Court since the courts of that branch were consolidated in 1911, according to Earl Jacobs, minute clerk of the court.

Lists of 500 cases are compiled at a time. Jacobs started on list 101 today. Many of the cases were settled by agreement of litigants, or without actual trial by a jury.

WINS $17,360 LAND AWARD

Peter Restaimo yesterday was awarded a verdict of $17,360 against the city for the taking of property at Bennett and Batavia streets.

The verdict was based on the market price of the property on September 21, 1929. The viewers had awarded him $17,000 for four houses and a plot of ground, but the city appealed.

It was reported others in the vicinity accepted a 15 per cent reduction of the amount awarded by the viewers. Restaimo was given $14,000 and $3,360 detention money by the jury. His counsel was Harold M. Irons.

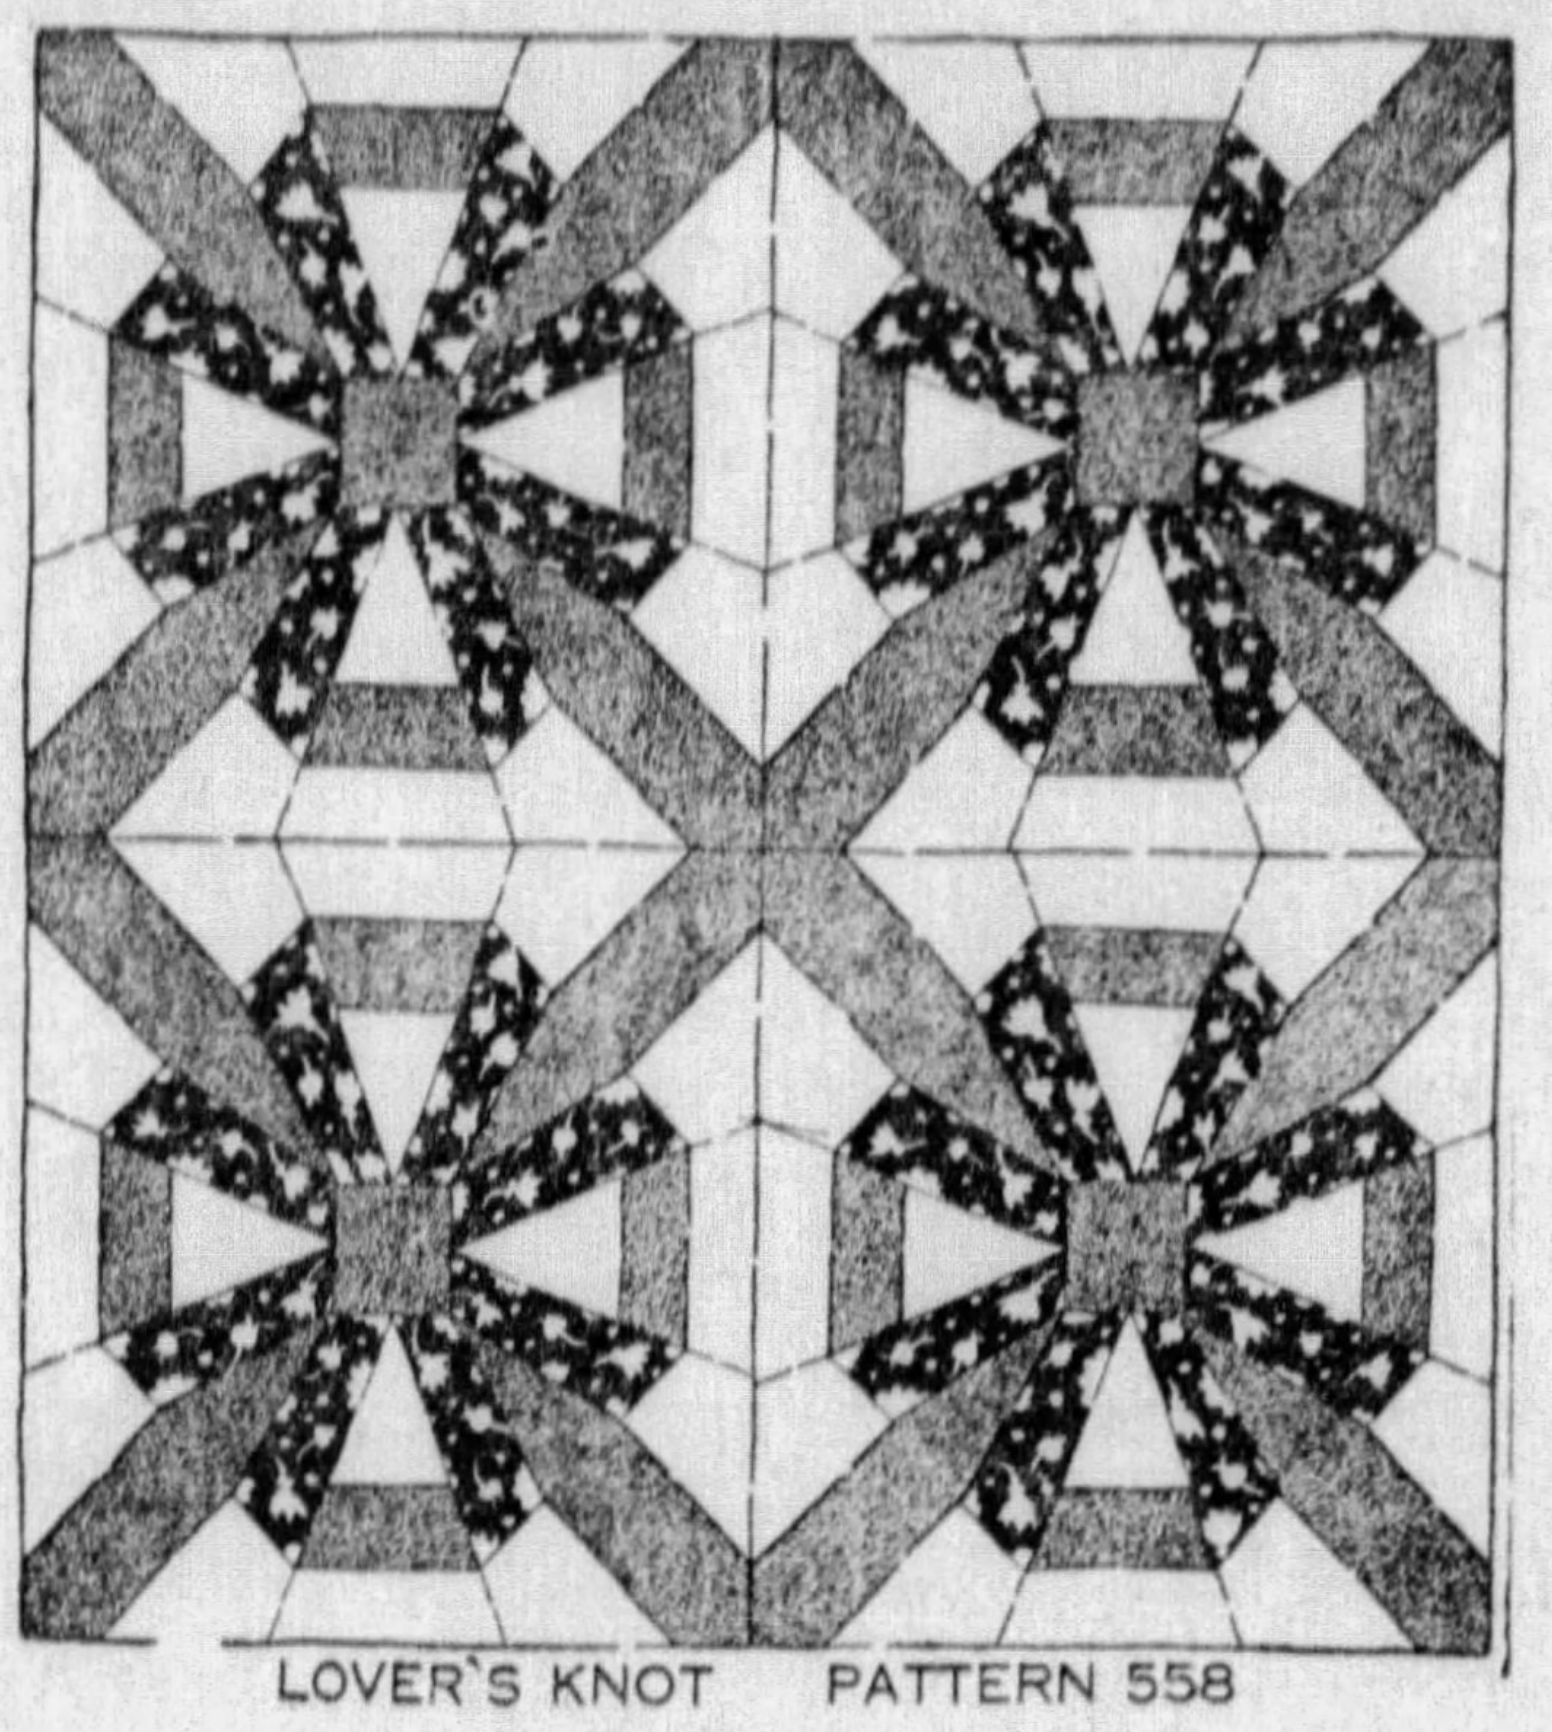
EASY - TO - MAKE QUILT



LOVER'S KNOT PATTERN 558

By LAURA WHEELER

All the world loves a lover, and every quiltmaker loves a Lover's Knot. And why should't she, when it makes so decorative a design with so little effort? This quilt should, of course, be carried out in three materials, with the ribbon in two materials giving the effect of two-toned ribbon. It is not often that a block done entirely in patchwork makes so pictorial a pattern and one that, at the same time, carries out the best traditions of the Colonial needlewoman.

Pattern 558 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

ASKS HALLOWEEN APPLE RECIPE

Housewives Derive Real Help From Contest

Since the inauguration of the Sun-Telegraph - Prudence Penny favorite recipe contest this department has several times called attention to the practical aid the publication of the prize-winning recipes is giving to housewives. This fact is emphasized in hundreds of letters that have come to Prudence Penny during the last two or three weeks. Mrs. Henry A. Pompeo, of Coraopolis, writes:

"I can't begin to tell you how much help your wonderful recipes have given me. When my Sun-Telegraph is delivered every afternoon, the first thing I look for is the column of prize recipes. It is now lots of fun to prepare a meal. No matter how good a cook you may be, it's a real treat when a new dish is prepared for the table—particularly if it follows one of the recipes among the Sun-Telegraph prize winners."

By the way, Marie E. Waters, 7121 Grand avenue, Neville Island Branch, Pittsburgh, is looking for a recipe for clear sugar coating for covering Halloween apples—the apples to be placed on sticks. Perhaps some of the many housewives following the Prudence Penny Department will give her this information.

Bear in mind the Prudence Penny favorite recipe contest is still on. The Sun-Telegraph is still paying $15 in daily cash prizes—one $5 award and 10 $1 awards every day—for the best recipes submitted. Send them to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLARK TAKES U.S. OATH

BEAVER, Pa., Oct. 13.—Dr. Robert Clarke, Beaver Falls, vice president of Geneva College, will make his second try for citizenship. He has filed his first papers and taken the formal oath.

Several years ago Dr. Clarke, a native of Ireland, sought citizenship but refused to take the formal oath, asking a modified form. Judge William A. McConnel, of the Beaver County courts, refused him citizenship, holding the oath set forth by Congress must be taken.

Dr. Clarke carried his case to the United States Supreme Court. The opinion of Judge McConnel was sustained. Dr. Clarke, a member of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, declared at the time the church creed did not permit the formal oath demanded for citizenship. The case attracted country-wide attention.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing, rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

DEADLY DRUGS EMPLOYED TO DOPE HORSES

CHAPTER III

Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—When federal narcotic agents swooped down upon the Arlington Park (Chicago) race track, made arrests, seized bottles containing narcotics, syringes, measuring glasses and other paraphernalia used in drugging race horses, they also came into possession of "prescriptions" used to stimulate animals into speed-frenzy.

Veterinarians who have seen these "prescriptions" and know the effect of commingled narcotics within the organs of thoroughbreds because some of the potions did not almost instantly kill even those animals which were long used to drugs, these "prescriptions," the preparations of trainers, or owners, perhaps suggested by unscrupulous horse doctors, contained different drugs in keeping with the individual idea as to which would drive an animal at super-speed.

Deadly 'Prescriptions'

One "prescription" called for the following:

2 ounces sweet syrup.
4 grains cocaine.
¼ grain strychnine.

The directions, contrasting with the general ones, usually instruct much earlier administration of dope, read:

"Give as soon as leaves for post."

Another dose was:

2 ounces kola nut.
1½ grains heroin.
¼ grain strychnine.
5 drops digitalis.
2 drops nitroglycerin.

The directions were:

"Give one-half 50 minutes before post time; other half 20 minutes before post time."

Horses race and fall dead during the running; others race and drop dead after the effort. The track veterinarian's verdict usually includes something about a "weak heart." Perhaps this dose, found among the "prescriptions" seized at Arlington, accounts for the "weak heart:"

8 grains cocaine.
½ grain strychnine.
¼ grain heroin.
2 ounces kola nut.
2½ ounces nitroglycerin.

No directions accompanied the above.

Likely to Be Fatal

A veterinarian, taking note of the huge amount of cocaine, the tremendous dosage of nitroglycerin, and the half grain of strychnine, concluded that, if administered at one time, or for any one race, it would kill any horse alive. So perhaps this mixture was intended for two different horses on the same day—or two separate-day doses for the same horse.

Another of the seized "prescriptions" read:

4 to 5 grains cocaine.
1 ounce alcohol.
3 ounces syrup.

Directions—Half the dose 1 hour and 15 minutes before post time; remainder 45 minutes before post time.

"Mike's hop," which was guaranteed to make a feeble, ancient horse run with the blazing speed of a champion, called for 14 grains of cocaine, 1 grain heroin, 1 ounce digitals, 1 ounce strophanthus (a powerful heart stimulant) and 2 ounces of kola nut. No directions accompanied this, but it probably was to serve for two races, or two horses.

Depends on Temperature

Obviously, the temperature has something to do with the functioning of some "prescriptions." Here is one which instructed, "give full dose 50 minutes before race on hot days, 60 minutes before race on cold day" and read:

5 grains cocaine.
1½ grains heroin.
¼ grain strychnine.
½ ounce extract ginger.
2 ounces kola nut.

The kola nut, so frequently used in the "prescriptions," is a very mild stimulant, perhaps equal in effect to caffeine or alcohol, and is used in conjunction with the high-powered drugs chiefly because it is good neutralizing fluid.

Among the very mildest of the "prescriptions" was:

2 ounces kola nut.
1½ grains heroin.
¼ grain strychnine.
2 drops nitroglycerin.
5 drops digitalis.

Directions — Half 50 minutes before post time; balance 20 minutes before post time.

Needle or Syringe

These liquid prescriptions used in doping are administered by two methods: direct injection into the blood stream with a hypodermic needle through a vein in the neck or by squirting, via syringe, into side of mouth between lips and back teeth, holding the animal's head high in the air until he swallows the dose that may make his win a race—or may just as easily send him to his death with an over-stimulated heart.

GRID LEADERS AIM TO CURB FATALITIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Alarmed by the mounting number of deaths from football injuries, mostly in high school ranks, authorities of the game redoubled their efforts today to bring about closer supervision, better medical attention and a closer study of the rules.

Coincident with an Associated Press survey which revealed 14 deaths attributed directly or indirectly to football already this season as compared with 12 at the same time a year ago, Major John L. Griffiths, athletic commissioner of the Western Conference and president of the National Collegiate A. A., and Dan E. McGuigin, of Vanderbilt, president of the American Football Coaches' Association, indicated these organizations were continuing their efforts to solve the problem.

Griffith said an investigation by the N. C. A. A. had shown that lack of supervision, ignorance of the rules and poor medical attention were responsible for a majority of the deaths and that an educational campaign to "eliminate these faults" was being conducted.

McGugin, agreeing with these views, said nothing should be left undone in studying the cause of injuries and their elimination.

DUQUESNE ON GUARD AGAINST SURPRISE

Dick Harlow

As far as advance dope on paper may be trusted, it would appear that the Duquesne University football team ought to go through to its fifth consecutive victory of the season in tonight's game at Forbes Field without being sorely pressed. This for the reason that while the Dukes are having an exceptionally good year, their opponent of tonight, Western Maryland College, was defeated by St. Thomas, 12 to 2, and was able to beat Mt. St. Mary's by a score of only 7 to 0.

However, the Bluffites are taking nothing for granted and will run no chances on being caught napping or overconfident, in view of the fact that Western Maryland has in Dick Harlow one of the smartest coaches in the country. Harlow's teams rarely are pushovers. They're always well coached. A few years back the former Penn State man piloted his gridders through two seasons without a defeat. In 1931 they played a scoreless tie here with the Dukes. Dick has a knack of making his team show a sudden and surprising improvement when he points it for a particular game of importance, like the one on the bills for tonight, and Elmer Layden's charges are prepared to find the visitors showing far greater strength than their record to date would seem to threaten.

MANCUSO NEVER GIVEN CREDIT DESERVED

Men in close touch with the inside workings of the world champion New York club continue to insist that Gus Mancuso, like Travis Jackson and Joe Moore, has not been given the credit deserved for the part he played in the World Series.

Gus had a whole lot to do with the success of Carl Hubbell in pitching 20 innings without allowing an earned run, just as he was a factor in the fine work of other Giant pitchers.

BEHIND BAT IN THIRTY DOUBLE-HEADERS

Nor was it only in the World Series that Mancuso proved a tower of strength to the Giants. His great work all through the season was one of the biggest items in the winning of the pennant. The improved pitching of Hubbell, Schumacher, Parmelee and Fitzsimmons was due in no small measure to Mancuso's judgment, coaching and handling.

The little Italian was a horse for work, too, taking part in 144 of the Giants' 156 games, which included catching 30 of the club's 34 double-headers, though part of the time he had a bad bone bruise on his right hand and an actually broken thumb on his left. Go ahead and tie that for gameness, if you can.

EVANS FIRST BUSINESS OFFICE HOLDOUT

If Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland club for six seasons, does not come to terms with the owners in the meantime, he will be out of a job when his present three-year contract expires on November 27. For the present, Evans has the distinction of being baseball's first business office holdout. President Alva Bradley asked him to accept a cut of 66⅔ per cent in salary. Billy refused. He was willing to stand for a slice of 40 or even 50 per cent, but balked at working for only one-third of his old pay.

Billy Evans

Thus Evans finds himself on the other end of a salary argument of the same kind in which he often figured in his dealings with the players. A conference is due shortly, but the former umpire intimates that he will not recede from his stand. He may hook up with the Cubs in a business capacity or return to sports writing. President Bradley makes it known that Cleveland players will be asked to accept general salary cuts for the third year in succession.

SOME SHORT ORDERS OF FOOTBALL FODDER

When W. & J. meets University of Detroit tonight in Detroit, there will be a Bill Wilson on each side. Bill Wilson, of Carnegie, is the left halfback of the Presidents, and Bill Wilson, of Hazel Park, Mich., is the center for Detroit.

Dana X. Bible, Nebraska coach, who brings his team here for a game with Pitt on November 18, uses slogans to pep up his players. Above each locker in the Cornhuskers' dressing room is a sign reading, "Football is a running game —don't dogtrot."

Ernie Nevers, in his starring days at Stanford, was noted for his ability to get kicks away quickly. Yet in his first varsity game, five of his six punts were blocked.

Five of the teams in the National Professional League have playing managers. Five coaches came out of the playing ranks, and an equal number formerly coached college elevens.

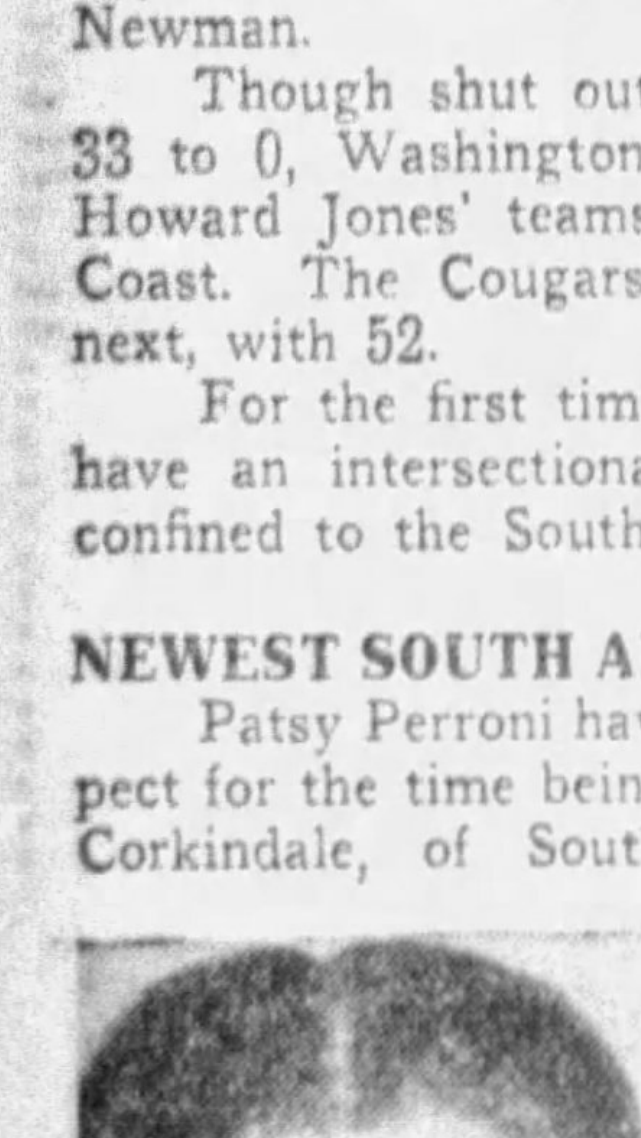
The roster of major college teams shows that 35 prominent coaches came from Notre Dame. Despite Southern California's fame, only three Trojan grads are coaching in the upper ranks. They are Brice Taylor, Leo Calland and Chief Newman.

Though shut out by Southern California last Saturday, 33 to 0, Washington State has scored more points against Howard Jones' teams than any other eleven on the Pacific Coast. The Cougars have 57 to their credit. Stanford is next, with 52.

For the first time in many years, Georgia Tech will not have an intersectional game this season. The schedule is confined to the South.

NEWEST SOUTH AFRICAN VAST IMPROVEMENT

Patsy Perroni having been set back as a heavyweight prospect for the time being by his defeat at the hands of Don McCorkindale, of South Africa, after attracting considerable attention by drubbing Izzy Gastanaga, fight fans now are speculating as to how far McCorkindale will be able to go. Thought by no means satisfying, he was an improvement over the last big South African boxer to invade this country previously. That gent was Johnny Squires, who made his visit in 1928 and looked so sad in being stopped in two rounds by the late Young Stribling that he was shipped right home again.



Patsy Perroni

McCorkindale is not without a background. He has been boxing five years and during a campaign in England defeated a number of British heavies. That might not mean a great deal in itself, but a 10-round knockout over Larry Gains after the latter won a decision over Primo Carnera is not to be passed over lightly. McCorkindale also went 10 rounds with Carnera a year and a half ago. The only American he met was Stribling, who defeated him.

MATMAN VISITOR

Jimmy Longacre, the middleweight wrestler, who has been campaigning around Boston, is a former resident of Pittsburgh and Clairton, and now is visiting in Wilson, Pa., resting a broken wrist. He plans to continue his career on the mat shortly. Before becoming a wrestler, Longacre was a boxer.

SOX GET CISSELL

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The Boston Red Sox yesterday gained a second baseman to replace Marty McManus, their released manager, by trading Lloyd Brown, one of their left-handed pitchers, for Bill Cissell, of the Cleveland Indians. General Manager Eddie Collins said it was a straight deal.

U. S. C. EXPECTS TROUBLE FROM ST. MARY'S

JONES' SELECTIONS

Stanford over Northwestern.
U. S. C., St. Mary's, a toss-up.
Washington over Oregon.
California over Olympic Club.
Washington State over Montana.
Oregon State over San Francisco U.

By HOWARD JONES

Member, All-America Board of Football. (Registered United States Patent Office.)

Two games of particular interest to Pacific Coast football fans are to be played tomorrow. Because of its intersectional character, the Stanford-Northwestern game in Chicago will attract the greatest attention as far as national interest is concerned.

Howard Jones

Tiny Thornhill, successor to Pop Warner at Stanford, will meet another disciple of the Warner system in Dick Hanley, so this game will not be a battle of one system against another, but one in which each team will be familiar with the other fellow's strategy in all its intricacies. Whoever sees this game probably will go home dizzy from watching the avalanche of single reverses, double reverses and fake reverses.

I look to see Stanford decisively outplay the Purple of Northwestern, but unless they can develop a scoring punch which they lacked against U. C. L. A. two weeks ago there will be no great margin of points in their victory. I will call the game Stanford's by one to two touchdowns.

Out here on the Pacific Coast no little excitement is attached to the University of Southern California's clash with the St. Mary's Gaels, who hail from the San Francisco Bay region. Many of the northern sports writers and thousands of followers will accompany Slip Madigan and his team south with not only hope, but firm conviction that they will repeat their victory of two years ago when the defeated the Trojans.

The Trojan team has not come along as fast as I hoped for earlier in the season. Harper and Dittberner have shown the most improvement in the tackle positions vacated by Brown and Smith of last year. Homer Griffith has maintained the fast pace he set last year, and if he continues this gait he should be rated as one of the nation's best backs.

HANLEY LOOKS FOR DEFEAT

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 13.—Dick Hanley, who takes an Eastern team to California for an all-star game every year, is not very optimistic about the chances of his Northwestern team against Stanford.

Although Northwestern looked much better in yesterday's practice, Hanley still insisted he expected to lose to the Indians tomorrow.

CORNELL SETS LINEUP FOR MICHIGAN

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Twenty-seven Cornell football players left Ithaca last night for Ann Arbor, where they will meet the Michigan Wolverines, Big Ten champions, tomorrow.

Coach Gil Dobie named the squad after brief limbering-up exercises yesterday afternoon and indicated his varsity would remain unchanged with Wallace and Irving at the end positions; Puterbaugh and Kossack, tackles; Borland and Shaub, guards; Brock, center; Frederick, Ferraro, Switzer and Goldbas, backs.

Spiegal, Becker Win at Fairmont

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Joey Spiegal, flashy southpaw fighter of Fairmont and Uniontown, Pa., climbed to the top of the state welterweight ranks here last night with a decisive 10-round victory over Louis (Kid) Cook, of Huntington.

Harpster Dopes Games

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Teach Football Coach; All-America Quarterback, 1928.

Thoughts of a football coach a week and a day before his team plays Notre Dame:

This is Friday, the 13th. Swell time to lose a football game. What an alibi! Why couldn't we play Notre Dame today?

Wonder what luck—good or bad—Duquesne's Dukes will have against Western Maryland tonight? Toss out the superstitious aspects of the day and you can see an edge for the Dukes, who ought to turn in their fifth straight win of the season. That's pretty far along. We're playing only our second game tomorrow.

TOUGH FOR PRESIDENTS

W. & J. is in a tough spot against Detroit University at Detroit tonight. Besides, the Presidents are reported crippled by injuries. Detroit should win, according to the dope, unless those are "bear" stories we have been getting out of Little Washington the last few days.

Geneva figures to beat Westminster for its second Tri-State Conference victory tonight.

Try to pick the winner of that Pitt-Navy game at the Stadium tomorrow. Pitt hasn't looked very impressive in its first two games, but the potential power is there, and it may be turned on in this game. Navy is reported to be strong, and, in Rip Miller, former Notre Dame star, it has one of the finest and most popular of the younger coaches. I like Pitt if it cooks up for this game, otherwise it's a tossup.

TECH MUST FIGHT

Carnegie Tech will win its game with Xavier at Cincinnati tomorrow if the players are able to forget their success in the Temple game last week and fight just as hard to defeat its less famous foe. Xavier held Carnegie to a 15-0 score last year and is keyed up for this latest meeting. I hope none of our Tech players are figuring on going to Cincinnati just for the train ride, for, if they are, they'll go into the Notre Dame game a week later an already defeated team.

BOSTON BEATS CENTRE, 6-0

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The no-longer "Praying Colonels" from Centre College out-rushed and out-fought Boston College for the third time in as many years yesterday and went down to defeat by the slim margin of 6-0, the result of last-minute touchdown that never fails the Eagles against these Southern visitors.

Two years ago the Colonels preyed on B. C. until they tired in the last few minutes of play and made a slight mistake that the Eagles converted into a touchdown. The story was the same last year, when B. C. won, 7-0, and again yesterday.

Head linesman—Earl Cavanaugh.
Field judge—H. O. Dayhoff, Bucknell.

The Dukes will be out to get scores and get 'em quick tonight as they face their fifth game of the season under Forbes Field's flood lights. The opposition will be furnished by the Green Terrors of Western Maryland, coached by the canny Dick Harlow, who may be depended upon to put a smart and aggressive eleven on the field.

Conquerors on successive weeks of Waynesburg, West Virginia Wesleyan, West Virginia and Bucknell, the Dukes enter tonight's fray heavy favorites to take the Terrors, who have been far from impressive in their two games to date. They've been beaten by St. Thomas, of Scranton, and only defeated little Mt. St. Marys by a 7-to-0 count.

PLAYED TIE IN '31

Back in 1931 almost at the height of their greatest gridiron glory, when they were taking on and then "taking" all comers, the terrors came to Pittsburgh and were held to a scoreless draw by the locals. Tonight, if they can hold the Dukes even, they'll consider it a feather in their caps, but the same went for the other teams the snappy Dukes have met this fall.

Coach Elmer Layden expects the Terrors to lay down a barrage of forward passes, and has drilled his men on pass defense all week. The Dukes are in good physical trim, having recovered from the bumps and bruises assimilated in the game with Bucknell last week. Duquesne isn't taking the Western Marylanders lightly, and the varsity will be in there for the opening kickoff.

Western Maryland's attack is built around Bill Shepherd, fullback, and Jim Dunn, crack right halfback. On the line, Al Sadusky, hefty tackle, Blissman, who plays the side of the line opposite Sadusky and Hurley, formerly a terminal star, now at center, direct the Western Maryland defense and are its chief bulwarks.

TITANS, GENEVA CLASH

Three other district varsities will get into action tonight. At Beaver Falls, Geneva and Westminster renew their football rivalry with a Tri-State Conference game under the lights, with the Covenanters top heavy favorites to wallop the light but aggressive Titans.

Wash-Jeff, crippled by injuries to its star backs, is in Detroit for a game with the University of Detroit varsity. The Presidents are conceded no better than an even chance to beat the Michigan State eleven.

Carnegie Tech's varsity squad will depart at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Cincinnati, where tomorrow the Plaid engages Xavier.

The Tartan party will consist of Coaches Harpster and Lovewell, Graduate Manager Buddy Overend, Trainer Bert Munhall, four student managers and the following players:

Ends, Capt. Stewart, Lewis, Burns, Goodridge, Schmidt and Moore; tackles, Croft, Doloway, Forsman, Nutter and Hudson; guards, Burzio, Dreshar, Heinzer, Anderson and Kohout; quarterbacks, Bevevino, Carlson and Charley Spisak; halfbacks, Bill Spisak, Vorderburg, Terebus, Spencer, Graham, Bowser and Sanford; fullbacks, Mihm, Sayles and Brewer; centers, Trbovich, O'Toole and Boyd.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE DESERT OF MAINE—This "desert" covers about 300 acres and is situated about four miles beyond Freeport, Me., and three miles off the Atlantic Highway. Buried under this desolate expanse is the once fertile farm of the Tuttle family. Sixty years ago, a small patch of sand broke through the turf. The owner tried in vain to check the inroads of the sand, which gradually conquered the fertile soil. Today an undulating surface of multi-colored sand stretches away in the sunlight, and its waves, in the interim between sandstorms, ripple restlessly in the breeze not unlike a miniature Sahara. Trees from 60 to 70 feet high have been almost buried in the sand, leaving only their crowns exposed. A FREAK SHOT—Commander McMillan accompanied Admiral Peary on his successful expedition to the North Pole in 1909. One day, while McMillan was reclining with his right arm around his head and left shoulder, a bullet accidentally discharged by a fellow member of the expedition, struck him in the right forearm. The bullet passed through the arm, entered his shoulders, and, emerging through it, took off one of his fingertips.

PANTHERS SET FOR BIG TEST WITH TARS

In fine physical trim, the Navy's footballers, accompanied by ranking officers of the United States Naval Academy, dropped anchor here this morning, primed for the battle tomorrow with the Pitt Panthers in the outstanding collegiate encounter of the day in the East.

Coach Rip Miller expressed himself as being confident that his Middies would be able to give a good account of themselves against the Panthers. He isn't certain how he'll start his Tars and probably will not select a definite starting lineup until shortly before game time.

Coach Miller said:

"Reserves will play an important part in tomorrow's ball game. If I can match Jock's reserve strength, I think we have a good chance. My boys are in a fine frame of mind, are in good condition and have been working well. It ought to be a tough ball game, and don't think for a minute they've been kidding me about this Pitt team."

From the B. & O. station, where they disembarked, the Tars proceeded to the Pitt Stadium for a look at the field and from there went directly to Shady Side Academy, where they will remain in seclusion until game time.

In the official party accompanying the team Admiral W. H. Standley, Chief of Naval Operations, and senior ranking officer in the United States Navy; Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy; Rear Admiral E. S. Land, Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair; Capt. R. S. Holmes, Commandant of the Midshipmen; Capt. T. F. Caldwell, senior aide to the Superintendent; Capt. J. W. Wilcox, of Director of Athletics; Commander W. W. Smith, Executive Officer; Lieut. Commander L. D. McCormick, aide to Rear Admiral Hart, and Lieut. Commander J. H. Duncan, aide to Admiral Stanley.

OFFICERS WITH TEAM

The following officers will remain with the team: Lieut. Commander Brown; Lieut. Commander Overesch, graduate manager of athletics; Lieut. E. B. Taylor; Ensign O. E. Hageberg, Head Coach E. E. Miller, and assistant coaches, John O'Brien and Christy Flannagan. The officers will be guests of the Pitt Alumni at their smoker tonight at the Schenley Hotel.

For the first time since the Carnegie Tech game in 1930, the Panthers will go up against an eastern foe that will at least have an even choice to win. The fine showing of the Middies this year, plus the relative poor work of the Panthers has been responsible for the sudden change in the opinion of the experts.

Jock Sutherland and his Panthers are not taking the Navy lightly, however, for Jock has had scouts eyeing the Middies for some time, and these gentlemen report that the Midshipmen have been improving in every game.

FEAR NAVY PASSES

Pitt's apparent weakness against a short passing game has been checked off by gridiron sages as one of the big reasons why Rip Miller's team will be dangerous, for the Tars have passed over both their 1932 opponents for scores. The slowness with which the Pitt attack gets under way also will be in the Middies' favor, for the latter depend entirely upon speed.

LEADS AT STAKE IN SCHOOL GAMES TODAY

SCOTT OPPOSES MIDLAND HIGH TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

Scholastic football teams of Western Pennsylvania face a heavy program of games this afternoon and evening with four contests in the City League and two class AA engagements heading the schedule.

South and Westinghouse, deadlocked for the lead in Section I, both swing into action this afternoon. South should have little or no trouble defeating Fifth Avenue at Langley Field, while Schenley, much weaker than last season, always manages to give Westinghouse a tough argument. The Schenley - Westinghouse duel is scheduled for Schenley High Scool Field.

In Section II of the City League, the Carrick-Allegheny fray at Carrick is the headliner. Carrick is undefeated in Section II and must defeat Allegheny to remain in the fight for the crown. The second contest in Section II finds Langley at Oliver High School.

Two night games are listed in the class AA division, Washington being the opposition at New Castle, while Jeannette is the attraction at Monessen. Early-season records favor New Castle and Jeannette in the two big contests.

MIDLAND AT SCOTT

The W. P. I. A. L. class A and class B schedules for today are unusually attractive ones. The class A headliner is the duel between Johnny Reed's Scott High eleven and Paul (Rusty) Lomond's Midland High Crucibles. The Scott eleven is undefeated in the class A competition. Burgettstown Union, also undefeated in class A games, opposes Trinity, of Washington, at Burgettstown.

Several "naturals" also are listed for disposal. Millvale and Etna hook up in a night engagement at Etna, Coraopolis entertains an old antagonist in McKees Rocks, Crafton and Dormont stage their annual tug-of-war, Glassport invades East McKeesport, Carnegie and Stowe Township renew acquaintances, the undefeated Hurst eleven risks its record against Duquesne, Pitcairn is the night attraction at Homestead, and Aspinwall and Oakmont clash in their annual grid fray.

Uniontown plays Morgantown at Morgantown this afternoon.

Herb Ripper, coach at Springdale High School, would like to arrange a game at home or abroad for November 3 or 4. Write or call him at Springdale High School.

TEAMS PLAY TIE

In a City League engagement yesterday, Perry and South Hills battled to a 7-7 deadlock on the Langley High Field. It was hoped the result of the contest would bring out a possible Section II champion, but the tie has muddled the situation no little.

South Hills scored in the first quarter, Fowle passing to Maren for the touchdown. The extra point was obtained and the Tunnelites held their advantage until the second quarter, when Perry drove to the nine-yard line and Kornick raced around left end for the touchdown.

In a parochial high school league game at Ambridge, St. Veronica's defeated St. Marys', of Pittsburgh, 12 to 0. In the same league, the Duke Preps and St. Peter's battled to a 6-6 draw in a night duel at McKeesport.

Mrs. Shriver Gains Tourney Title Round

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—John J. Hicks Kerr, of Richmond, and Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia, have advanced to the finals of the twenty-first annual golf tournament at Hot Springs.

Kerr turned back D. N. Tallman, of Minneapolis, 5 and 5, while Vare was winning by the same margin from W. L. Richards, of New York.

Mrs. Beverly R. Shriver, of Pittsburgh, defeated Mrs. Thomas R. Hulme, of Philadelphia, in a thrilling match, 1 up. Mrs. Shriver will meet Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia, for the championship today. Mrs. Vare, the former Glenna Collett, defeated Mrs. John T. Pirie, Jr., of Chicago, in their semi-finals match yesterday, 7 and 6.

Carl Stevens, Zanesville (O.) professional, also broke 98 birds to lead in the pro class. In the handicap class, Eugene Murray, Jr., took additional honors for the family with a score of 46 out of 50 from 18 yards.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Two veteran net rivals, George M. Lott, Jr., Davis Cup and National doubles titleholder, and J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., clash today in the finals of the Greenbrier autumn tennis championships.

COMEA, MELLON HORSE, WINS HUNT CUP

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 13.—Victory in the first running of the renewal of the Western Pennsylvania Hunts Cup, a gruelling three and one-half-mile steeplechase over the Western Pennsylvania Hunts Racing Association course on the McNary farm, near here, yesterday went to the Yale blue, scarlet and white of R. K. Mellon. Under the strong and heady direction of James E. (Jim) Ryan, Mr. Mellon's brown gelding, Comea, won the first leg on the new trophy.

Trailing by two lengths but finishing strong came Bliss Flaccus' Broceste, with Flaccus up, and in third place was the other Flaccus entry, Starborn, ridden by the capable George McCook. Isolateur, owned by Mrs. J. C. Hamilton and ridden by James McCormick, was fourth and last. Only four started, Paul Mellon's Drinmore Lad and Bert C. Cence's Red Rocket being scratched.

RED FIRE CHAMP

A year ago, Mrs. George McNary's game little mare, Red Fire, won permanent possession of the cup, which was placed in competition in 1926. The McNary entry won that year, was first again in 1927 and then came back for her third triumph last fall. Other winners of the award were H. K. Binn's Santley, in 1928; James Hamilton's Merry Widow, in 1929; Mrs. James Hamilton's Drambuie, in 1930, and T. W. Durant's Barleycorn, in 1931.

Isolateur was a three-to-five favorite, the Flaccus entry closing at even money and Comea at four to five. Isolateur led the field the first time past the judges' stand, but Ryan brought Comea to the front as the horses gained the half-way mark on the second time around and maintained the advantage until the finish.

R. K. Mellon and the Ryans dominated the program, the eighth annual Columbus Day meeting of the Association. Mellon's Teddy Brown, a chocolate gelding, ridden by James Ryan, won the Westmoreland Cup, the opening event on the card, a two and one half-mile race over brush, with Royal Doulton, a Baltimore entry, second and And Silver Dawn, owned by Mrs. John W. Lawrence, third.

RYAN HORSE WINS

The second race, over the flat at a mile, went to Mrs. J. E. Ryan's Aughrim Boy, ridden by Mr. Ryan. Royal Doulton was second and Harvard, owned by John W. Beach, third.

A crowd of approximately 3,500 attended.

Interest Grows In Boxing Revival

Promoter Eddie Kapphan reports steadily growing interest in his revival of boxing at the Moose Temple, downtown, beginning with a Buck McTiernan - Joey Feldman show next Monday night, with Sunny Jim McVey boxing Jim Rice in the eight-round semifinal. There will be two six-round preliminaries.

Joe Speigal, of Uniontown, meets Jack Holt, brother of Billy Holt, in the eight-round semifinal to a Sammy Slaughter-Alabama Kid bout at Canton, O., next Monday night.

A meeting will be held at the local office of the boxing commission one week from next Monday to consider applications for wrestling permits in Western Pennsylvania, it was announced today.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Remember the big time we had in this man's town two years ago when the Army football team came on to play Pitt at the Stadium and brought along the Cadet Corps for a parade through the streets and the colorful pageantry on the field? . . . Well, the Navy squad got in this morning and all of this splash and color were missing, but that's apt to be made up for in the football game the Middies and Panthers will stage at the Stadium tomorrow afternoon . . . Pitt outclassed that Army team of a couple seasons ago with the most spectacular display of open football any Pitt team has put on in years, and it repeated the thriller at West Point last fall . . . The Navy team Coach Rip Miller will send out upon the Stadium greensward tomorrow does not figure to be taken so easily as Maj. Sasse's Army team of '31.

The Middies have not been up to snuff for several seasons, but they are "hot" this year, and Pitt in its first two starts has been anything but impressive . . . Unless they can be roused tomorrow Jock Sutherland's crew will be in for what football men call a "long afternoon."

The last time Pitt played Navy, at Annapolis, in 1916, Coach Sutherland played a guard for Pitt, and he played throughout the game, a bruising 20-19 victory for the Panthers . . . They're going to play a professional football game between the New York Giants and Boston Redskins for the benefit of the widow and eight minor children of the late Maj. Frank Cavanaugh at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Sunday, November 12, the day the first Sunday afternoon game is played here between the Pirates and the Brooklyn team at Forbes Field . . . Forty per cent of the receipts will go to the family . . . The Giants lost a hair-raising battle to the Redskins in Boston last Sunday, 21 to 20, which was voted the greatest game ever played in Boston territory, not excluding the Harvard classics.

The progress made by the pro football teams in the last few years has been little short of amazing . . . These teams now rate up there on a par with big league baseball outfits and give the fans a great show . . . The success of the National League from the standpoint of patronage in its first season in Pittsburgh alone might be cited as an example of the manner in which the football-going public has taken the pros to its heart.

Harry Williams, Negro heavyweight, who was campaigning around here a few years ago, meeting Patsy Perroni, George Panka and others, is now fighting under the management of Don Curley in Cincinnati . . . Ray Kemp, former Duquesne University Negro tackle star, who was with the Pittsburgh Pros for their first three tussles, may try his hand at the boxing game . . . He is a big, rangy, 190-pounder of far more than average intelligence and possesses a master's degree . . . He turned down an offer to coach a Negro college team in Texas to join the Pirates.

Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech's young coach, whose team meets Notre Dame here Saturday of next week, played for the Tartans twice against the Irish and Tech won both games, by 19-0 in 1926 and 27-7 in 1928 . . . Notre Dame has won the three games between the rivals since then and eight games all told in their series of 10.—HARRY KECK.

Local Men Named Navy Goat Guardians

T. H. Cable and T. D. Price, United States Naval Academy, '30, will be the custodians of Old Bill, the Navy goat mascot, at the game with Pitt here tomorrow. The goat will be delivered into their custody at the Stadium at noon, and it will be up to them to see that it remains safe in their possession until after the game.

Cable and Price are employed in the East Pittsburgh Works of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

SALE OF GIANTS IMMINENT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The New York Giants, champions of the baseball world, not only will be sold, as stated exclusively by the International News Service several weeks ago, but the sale is slated to be consummated within two weeks.

One of three groups interested in the purchase of the club has accountants working on the club books this week.

One group is a syndicate headed by A. C. Blumenthal, theatrical producer.

Another is two of three millionaires who actually had the club bought last April when one of the three died as they were about to sign the papers. The survivors are trying to find a third friend to take their dead partner's place.

The third prospective purchaser is Jock Whitney, multimillionaire sportsman of turf fame.

The best biid so far made for 74 percent of the stock of the club is Whitney's $1,900,000.

This 74 percent includes the 25 percent of the total stock now owned by Charles A. Stoneham and the holdings of John J. McGraw and Judge Francis X. McQuade. These three have an ironclad contract whereby no one may sell his contract without the consent of the other two.

Iowa U. Gridder In Serious Condition

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Arthur Ehlers, 19, University of Iowa freshman, is in a critical condition today in the university hospital with a cerebral hemorrhage resulting from an injury in football practice yesterday.

Taylor, Kreevick Released by Cubs

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs today released outright two young players, who once were figured to star within their ranks.

Harry Taylor, a first baseman obtained from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League in 1931 at a reported price of $50,000, was released outright to the Cub farm at Albany of the International League. Taylor played with Albany last season, but the Cubs today released their option on him.

Outfielder Mike Kreevich, obtained from Des Moines of the Western League in 1931, and who played on the Cub farms at Los Angeles and Albany during the past two years, was released to Kansas City, of the American Association, apparently as payment for some past or impending deal.

There is no better place in Pittsburgh to buy Men's and Young Men's Clothing than here on our Third Floor. This season, especially, with Quality Goods costing you little more than shoddy (thru the ministrations of the NRA), is a fine time to form the Harris habit.

"IT'S EVEN BETTER THAN ITS GUARANTEE"

When we reduced Bayuk "Phillies" in price—from 10c to 5c—we guaranteed that it was the same fine cigar as when it was the most popular 10c value in America. We meant—and still mean—just that!

Smokers now tell us that Bayuk "Phillies" is an even better cigar than we guaranteed. Men who can well afford to pay double or triple the price, say that no cigar—regardless of price—gives them the complete pleasure and satisfaction they get from Bayuk "Phillies"—at 5c.

We do know that Bayuk "Phillies" is the cigar that most smokers like best. Sales prove it. In 9 months—at 5c—it has become the largest-selling cigar in America, at any price.

When you try a Bayuk "Phillies"—remember this. It is not a 5c cigar. It is a proven 10c cigar value now selling for 5c. This makes a vast difference in what you can expect. There's a fresh box on your dealer's counter.

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

'SOUND MONEY' OUTLOOK TURNS STOCKS EASY

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Stocks and staples tapered nervously today under the "sound money" implications of the administration's Liberty Loan conversion proposal involving the issuance of new lower-yield long-term bonds totaling some $2,000,000,000.

While there was no great selling rush in those equities and commodities whose substantial spring-summer rise was based partly on the belief there would be a drastic inflation of the currency, prices generally sagged in spiritless trading. Dullness ruled in most stocks. Some of the highest grade issues, which might benefit by an anti-inflationary program, showed resistance. Wheat dropped about 3 cents a bushel and other cereals were soft. Cotton was a little heavy. "Gilt Edge" bonds were steady to firm. The dollar soared in foreign exchange dealings.

Banking and brokerage circles, for the most part, were agreed that speculative inflationary hopes had been decidedly lowered by the Treasury's refunding plan. Financiers pointed out that the offering of 10-12 year bonds bearing 4¼ cent interest the first year and 3¼ for the remainder of the maturity could only mean that the government would not attempt any unusual monetary expansion—at least in the near future—but would base its plans for recovery largely on the building up of the capital and credit markets and the re-establishment of confidence through the maintenance of an "honest dollar."

At the same time some market observers warned that the big bond issue was not the last word in the inflation controversy. They recalled that the inflationary prerogatives of the President are still present and that, even if he does not use them, the next session of Congress may make currency expansion mandatory. There are a number of influential political leaders, it was added, who continue of the belief that the Liberty loans should be paid off in greenbacks.

The decrease of 7,399 in freight car loadings for the week ended October 7, was larger than the usual seasonal decline registered at this time of year. The total of 654,428, however, was 29,339 ahead of the same week last year. The drop under last week's aggregate was attributed partly to high coal prices and the holding up of shipments as the result of labor troubles.

As an offset to the lagging of freight traffic, Dun & Bradstreet reported a sharp increase in retail distribution over the United States. The week-end review found the "most impressive pickup of the fall season" occurred in general trade movements.

WHEAT CLOSES AT BOTTOM

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Persistent selling ascribed largely to easterners who had bought at 10 cents above prices now current drove wheat down today the maximum limit allowed.

Leading trade authorities said the chief apparent reason for collapse of the wheat market was lack of confidence on the part of new buyers. Much notice was taken of a sharp setback in British exchange accentuating the effect of lower wheat quotations at Liverpool when translated into American funds.

Wheat closed prostrate at the day's bottom figures, 4⅞@5⅛c under Wednesday's finish; corn, 2¾@3⅛c down; oats, 3@3⅛c off, and provisions at 5 to 22 cents decline.

U. S. Refinancing Plan Spurs Gilt Edge Bond List

High grade corporation bonds were in brisk demand as the investment world apparently accepted the news of the Treasury refunding plan as indicative of tightening of the grip of conservatives on the monetary ideas of the administration. A brisk rally in the dollar against foreign currencies accepted as registering the world reaction to the Treasury move, tended to further bolster the position of high-grade fixed-term securities in the eyes of the investor.

Bullish for the longer term was the interpretation placed by the Treasury refunding operation in Wall street. But for the short term, the development was viewed as likely to have some distasteful repercussion from a speculative angle. The severity of the latter, however, admittedly depended on the extent to which the recent reactionary mood of the stock and commodity markets had been by way of discounting just some such development. Much of the advance in those markets to the July peaks had been accomplished on buying by those seeking safeguard against inflation and dollar depreciation. But more than 10 weeks of reactionary trend must have witnessed the undoing of a good part of such speculation.

Bank clearings for the country last week totaled $4,156,721,000 compared with $3,354,959,000 for the corresponding period last year, which included only five business days, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

At New York the clearings ran about 30 per cent ahead of last year, while the total for outside centers was 12.8 per cent higher. The Columbus Day holiday will be reflected in next week's report. Allowing for the difference this week, the figures show little change from those of the weeks immediately preceding.

Republic Steel Corporation's business in September failed to live up to the promise of July and August. A declining backlog, irregular operations and higher costs managed to offset much if not all of the net profit which the corporation carried into the final month of its third quarter. The third quarter, therefore, probably was just about a stand-off, with earnings falling about in line with the interest, depreciation and other operating costs for the period.

High after-repeal liquor taxes which may approximate the wartime rate of $6.40 a gallon on domestic production of distilled spirits, is the only major alteration in revenue laws at present planned by Treasury officials for recommendation to the next session of Congress.

This program which implies continuance of all so-called nuisance and excise imposts at present rates and also an unchanged income schedule will soon be placed in final form for consideration by Secretary Woodin and eventually President Roosevelt.

International Business Machines Corp. had the largest monthly sales volume in its history in September. Total volume of business last month, according to officials of the company exceeded that of June, 1929, the previous record month, by about 14 per cent, and was more than double that of September 1932. The September record is ascribed by company officials to general improvement in both business sentiment and demand, as well as to the fact that the company launched a world wide sales drive during the month, which will continue to the end of the year.

Paramount Detroit Theater Deal O. K.'d

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Trustees of the bankrupt Paramount-Publix Corporation today were granted permission by Federal Referee Harry K. Davis to withdraw a petition for authorization to sell properties of the Pontiac Theater Corporation, a subsidiary, operating theaters in Detroit, Mich.

The referee approved a plan under which the trustees will enter into a 10-month management contract with George W. Trendle, Detroit theater man. Trendle agreed to extend his purchase offer for six months.

Cottonseed on hand at mills September 30 totaled 589,130 tons, compared with 667,022 tons a year ago.

LOCAL MARKET UNCHANGED, QUIET

Resumption of trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, following the Columbus Day holiday, found the list indifferent to the news developments since Wednesday night. Likewise the "big board" was a colorless affair for the most part, with a moderate downward tendency in evidence during the first half of the session. The government's refunding plan for the Fourth 4¼ Liberties fell flat as a market factor although banking circles seemed to be fairly well pleased with the program. The labor situation, so far as the market was concerned, seemed to be ignored. There is a growing belief, however, that settlement of this question would likely have favorable reflection in share values.

Only a few scattered trades marked the dealings here. Small fractional changes ruled throughout the day and there was no effort on the part of traders to force the list in either direction. The so-called "outside public" remained "outside."

COTTON WEAK UNDER SALES

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 2 higher to 2 lower with steadier Liverpool cables offset by Southern selling. October, 9.30; December, 9.40; January, 9.48; March, 9.65; May, 9.79; July, 9.93.

Orders were fairly well divided at the start, with trade buying just about sufficient to absorb southern selling, but hedging increased slightly after the call and prices worked off several points.

At the end of the first half hour, December was selling around 9.31c and May 9.70c, making net losses of 9 to 10 points on the more active months.

Trading continued quiet and prices sagged slightly under comparatively small offerings. At midday December was selling around 9.31 and May 9.70, or about 9 to 10 points net lower. General business appeared to be awaiting further developments in the spot situation or more definite indications regarding the significance of the government refunding plan in relation to the general monetary policies of the administration.

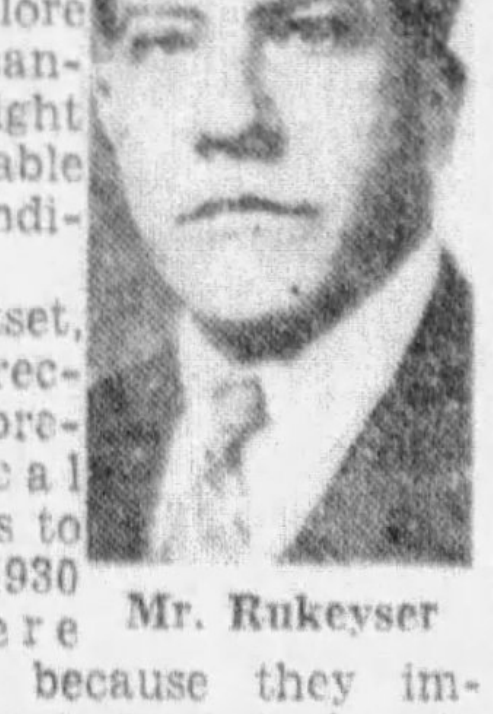
PUBLIC TO GAIN BY SUPPORTING 'BUY NOW'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.



Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A long suffering public doubtless wonders whether the new "buy now" campaign is merely an organized effort to make suckers out of consumers.

Let's explore this subject candidly in the light of predictable economic conditions.

At the outset, it should be recognized that premature local campaigns to "buy now" in 1930 and 1931 were objectionable, because they importuned the consumer to buy in the midst of a major downward swing in prices when it was good business to postpone purchases.

Apart from altruistic reasons, the essential question before the consumer, who is actuated by enlightened self interest, is whether at this juncture it is more profitable to buy immediately or to wait. This query can be best answered by a forecast of the near-term trend of retail prices.

SEES PRICE RISE

Of course, it is obvious that only the relatively affluent, with available funds, are in position to make a free choice. Numerous others are compelled to buy when they get the wherewithal.—

A. W. Zelomek, New York statistical economist and authority on retail prices, in a report to a group of fellow statisticians, significantly concluded:

"I am happy to state that it is much simpler to forecast retail prices at present than in the recent past. In my opinion also retail prices are more predictable than wholesale.

"As it appears to me, retail prices will continue to advance during the next six months. However, there is a possibility that the rate of increase, which has been gaining momentum since the May low, may slow up somewhat. We could hardly have expected the gain to continue in the geometric ratio, which was 1.4 per cent in May, 2.6 per cent in June, 5.2 per cent in July, and 8.4 per cent in August according to the Fairchild Retail Price Index. Even with a slowing down in the rate of increase, prices will have risen at least 25 per cent above current (October 1) levels by next spring. This would bring retail levels at least 50 per cent above the low recorded on May 1 of this year. Although prices would be at the highest levels in more than three years, nevertheless, they would still be as much as 20 per cent below the high of 1929 and preceding years. The 1929 level may be equalled in 12 months."

But, the skeptic will ask, with what will the consumer pay the advanced prices?

Zelomek, the statistician, offers this answer:

"It is both interesting and encouraging to note that the gain in retail prices and in general cost of living since the low point has been somewhat less than the gain in consumer income. However, the former has been advancing at a more rapid rate of late, which makes necessary a further improvement in industry and trade and thus greater dollar income, if we are to avoid a decline in the 'real' income of the consumer."

It should also be pointed out that the rise in industrial prices recently has upset the effort relatively to increase farm prices. The approaching parity has been thwarted by the upturn in city prices under the stimulus of the NRA drive.

Of course, even enlightened selfishness would also take cognizance of the fact that in buying the consumer casts his ballot in favor of returning prosperity, whereas by hoarding he accelerates the vicious trends making for unemployment. In the modern power age, we give employment to one another. The problem is to establish genuine economic balance under which the vast social masses in the city and in the country can exchange among one another the products of their hours of labor.

The slogan should be: Buy now and save money.

Forbes

Finance Hails Plan for Big U. S. Financing

By B. C. FORBES

SCORE ONE for the U. S. Treasury.

Secretary Mellon won acclaim for his smooth handling of financing operations running into billions. The financial world harbored doubts as to how a less experienced Treasury head would fare when faced with gigantic refunding operations.

Mr. Forbes

Secretary Woodin's first important refinancing plan instantly inspired approval. He has adroitly combined raising half-a-billion cash with arrangements to refund almost a third of the biggest of all government obligations, Fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds.

Whereas America's last Democratic President, Woodrow Wilson, was widely criticised for not seeking enough advice, President Roosevelt has exhibited an extraordinarily open mind and open door. He has freely counselled with all classes.

Although indifferent health has interfered somewhat with Secretary Woodin's activities, his department has consulted well-informed banking and other financial authorities in an earnest endeavor to formulate sound policies.

This week's action evidences careful thought and fine calculation. If, as expected, the conversion loan prove successful, the highest-ups in the financial world will face future Treasury refunding most cheerfully.

And since so much governmental financing will have to be achieved to carry out the new deal, this is far from unimportant.

CHARLES CASON, of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, philosophically observed to the writer this week:

> "It may be that nobody knows the way out of the economic woods and mire, but there can be no question that it is best for all of us to support the way out now agreed on—then if that should perchance fail, we could all get together to try another way."

PRESIDENT L. C. STOWELL, of Dictaphone Corporation, who is president also of the Office Equipment Manufacturer's Institute, quotes government statistics to show that "a vast amount of obsolete office equipment and machinery is being used that should be replaced," and that replacement would "send at least 375,000 people back to work."

Andrew Carnegie declared he got rich by being quicker to scrap machinery than any other steel manufacturer. It is related that at a cabinet meeting one day Secretary Mellon brought an instant decision when the question of scrapping a certain government plant was being discussed, by remarking:

> "We once were faced with a similar problem with a $12,000,000 plant. We scrapped it."

And Mr. Mellon has done quite well financially, well enough to satisfy most of us, hasn't he?

Replacement often can replace a loss by a profit. Remember that prices are generally expected to rise.

FOOD, DRUG and cosmetics people, as well as the advertising fraternity, are alarmed over the proposed Tugwell bill to regulate advertising in these fields.

Prof. Tugwell, now assistant Secretary of Agriculture, is quoted as expressing doubt as to "whether nine-tenths of our sales efforts and expense serves any good social purpose."

William Esty sends this column an analysis of what are regarded as the bill's defects, a lengthy list. For example, the bill authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture "to prescribe by regulation any further information for the label as he may deem necessary."

This, Mr. Esty points out, will give the Secretary authority to "acquire statements of all ingredient percentages and complete disclosures of formulae, continuing:

> "A major asset of a salad dressing company might be its secret blend; this same thing hight apply to blends of seasonings, or other condiments. Such disclosures would permit a competitor to put a substitute product on the market."

Again:

> "The Secretary may revoke a permit apparently without any warning, hearing, opportunity for defense or even court trial. Should the manufacturer prove that the action was unjust and obtain restoration of his license, the unfavorable publicity may have ruined his business."

The country is prepared for all kinds of official regulation. But before taking drastic action, Washington should guard against strangulation.

Doctors may call an operation "successful," but if the patient dies, Cui Bono?

*Preliminary. †Revised.

PITTSBURGH BUSINESS took a turn for the better last week. This followed six weeks of continuous decline in activity.

The improvement was particularly impressive since it occurred in spite of the coal "holiday," which was responsible for the shutting down of more mines.

A sharp upturn in iron and steel was the principal contributing factor to the improvement.

These changes are indicated by the weekly index of business activity in the Pittsburgh district as prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh. The index for the week ended October 7 stood at a preliminary level of 58.2. This compared with a revised index for the previous week of 57.2 and an index of 46.1 a year ago.

* * *

Coal Troubles Reduce Output

THE CONTINUED labor troubles were responsible for a drop in the coal index to 22.3 from 24.6 in the previous week. A year ago the coal index stood at 63.9. The high point of this year for coal was 98.3 in the week ended August 26.

The upturn in iron and steel more than balanced the decline in coal. The index for this industry advanced to 58.8 from 52.8 in the previous week. A year ago iron and steel stood at 26.5.

While the recent improvement in steel is encouraging, men in the industry point out that it is largely due to an abnormal situation. October 15 is the final date on which consumers can take delivery of steel at prices covered by old contracts for the third quarter. The rising trend in steel prices has made users particularly anxious to benefit from their old contracts to the fullest extent.

* * *

Electric Power Index Declines

ELECTRIC POWER production dropped to 65.0 for the week. This compared with 68.4 in the previous week, but still exceeded the level of 64.1 a year ago.

Other factors in the index showed only minor changes. Trade activity and rail shipments dropped slightly. All the elements of the index, with the exception of coal, were higher than a year ago.

Internal Revenue Gain Cuts U. S. Deficit

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Aside from emergency expenditures the government's budget has now been balanced with a surplus of $95,000,000 for the first two months and a half of the 1934 fiscal year, according to treasury figures available today.

Including emergency expenditures there was a deficit of $233,526,000 on October 10 compared with $787,827,000 on the same date the year before.

A big factor in the improved condition of government finances has been the rapid increase in miscellaneous internal revenue particularly in the first 10 days of October. Receipts for that period from tobacco, beer, capital stock, manufacturers excise and other special taxes was $115,041,000, nearly as much as for the entire month of September. This was an increase of $75,727,000 over the same period of October, 1932.

For the July 1-October 10 period miscellaneous internal revenue netted $477,191,100, a gain of $268,000,000 over the same period last year and compared with $167,810,000 income taxes.

Receipts from all the sources so far this fiscal year have been $824,818,000, an increase of $334,000,000. Expenditures were $742,818,000 for ordinary purposes. Emergency expenditures totaled $315,526,000 as compared with $334,618,000 last year.

Trust fund accounts showed a surplus of $13,632,000, more than double that of a year ago.

As a result of the October 15 financing when $500,000,000 in 4¼-3¼ per cent 10-12-year bonds will be sold for cash the public debt will be boosted to the enormous total of more than $23,500,000,000.

The financing will push the daily cash balance to around $1,650,000,000, the largest in peacetime history.

In addition to the bonds to be sold for cash there will be an issue sufficient to make exchanges for 4¼ per cent fourth Liberties, about $1,900,000,000 of which have been called.

DOLLAR RISES IN EXCHANGE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The government's leanings toward a conservative monetary policy as indicated by its conversion offer, influenced further strength in the dollar today with the rate up to 67.2 cents gold against 67 cents on Wednesday.

British pounds sterling dropped 4½ cents to $4.63. Scandinavian exchanges reacted 18 to 19 points in sympathy with the pound as did the Canadian dollar which lost one-quarter cent to 97½ cents.

The European gold currencies again dipped substantially in favor of the dollar. French francs declined 7½ points to 5.84 cents. Belgian belgas 23 points to 20.77, Swiss francs 32 to 28.88, and Dutch guilders 87 to 60.08.

Restricted gold currencies gave a similar demonstration of weakness. German marks dropped 39 points to 35.56, Italian lire 11 to 7.84, and Spanish pesetas 18 to 12.47.

The Girl Who Won

Added to this, less than a block away, workmen were dynamiting the foundations of a new building . . . the explosions being varied by the sound of the electric drill.

And it was hot! As hot as Yapahunk those first two solitary days, when Nollie sought a stenographic job in vain. She seemed less than a grain of dust in this great, heedless, rushing city.

Her third day in New York drawing to a dreary close, and not a job in view. Her tiny nest-egg rapidly diminishing.

Nollie was scared. With her courage at low ebb she went down the four flights of shabby stairs that led from her hall bedroom to the street, and into a "one-arm lunch" for a solitary supper.

Broadway tonight—the sight of all those wondrous signs in jumping electricity—had lost its thrill. It seemed so vast, so utterly indifferent to her.

Soon she found herself in that block under the elevated, east of Broadway, at Fifty-third street.

The gay scene was all changed here. So near to brilliance and sparkle, yet sordid and depressing. There were lean alley-cats aprowl. Nollie felt a queer kinship with them.

Old women with bedraggled petticoats were here, emerging from dirty, gloomy basements. The uncurtained, grubby windows seemed to leer at her. She hastened her footsteps.

BECOMES FRIGHTENED

Columbus Circle! Pregnant name! She—a female Columbus—had come to plan herself in a new world—and the new world wanted none of her!

The green loveliness of Central Park attracted her. She walked in its winding paths until, at a turn of the road, a long slinky car drew stealthily in to the side and a fast-looking man accosted her.

"Want a ride?"

She turned her back on him and hurried away, her chin held high.

But she was lonely and heartsick and frightened, and she felt that she could cry.

* * *

"Look here, child, we have 150 applicants on our waiting lists, and don't you realize that you are inexperienced?"

This in a typewriting office where stenographers were placed. Oh, Nollie had heard this kind of thing for a whole week now!

But she must work, or starve. Already she was cutting down strenuously on meals.

It was so hot at nights she couldn't sleep. And when she did drop off, the roar of the elevated below her window awoke her.

But she hadn't got the means to find a better room. And when her remaining few dollars were gone, what would happen to her?

MONEY DWINDLES

On her eighth day in New York, which proved equally fruitless, a girl in the room next hers spoke to her on the stairs.

"I know you're looking for a job. Ever done any work in the chorus?"

"No. But I'd try anything—and I can sing a little."

"Well, why don't you go around to the Frivolity at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning? They've an audition on. They've advertised for 40 girls, and with your face and figure, and if you have a voice and dance a bit, your chance is as good as anybody's."

So Nollie went. In fear and trembling, but keyed up by the thought of her fast diminishing dollars.

She'd only seven left now! Then WHAT? And—this being the beginning of her second week—that seven was already bespoken by her landlady . . .

There was a piano on the large and gloomy stage, with two shirt-sleeved men at it.

One played, while applicants sang—in turn. The second man was the director.

When it came to Nollie's turn, in that vast auditorium, her voice was reed-like and quavering.

She was dismissed at once and with a wise crack at her expense that made her cheeks burn and her body tremble. Tears blinding her eyes, she dragged herself out of the theater.

Spots danced before her vision as the hot sun blazed down on her on Fifty-first street. Her head felt queerly light and she was so dizzy she couldn't walk straight. She lurched against a railing . . . caught it . . . then sliddered down in an unconscious heap on the sidewalk.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

All out for the orchestra, fellows!

We had 26 come out for the first auditions and they were all dandy players. The orchestra is progressing, and now we are ready to announce the first names chosen. They are Walter Juba, 2915 Treble avenue; Veronica Dyttmer, 288 Fisk street; Andrew Merhout, 1151 Voscapt street; Betty Weiss, R. D. 1, Pitcairn road, Pitcairn, Pa.; Ernest Quinter, 1815 Filmore street, Aliquippa, Pa., and Thomas Rowanna Marshall, 719 Ferree street, Coraopolis, Pa.

They play the piano, saxophone and violin, and they are a dandy start toward a much bigger, really swell, Junior Patrol orchestra. But we need more players. If you can play a musical instrument—drums, trumpet, violin, clarinet—write in to Junior Patrol headquarters right away and ask for an audition.

Thomas Filer, Lewis Shrader, Billy Hillman, Richard Sabation, Cecil Bennit, Charles Lockwood, Morris Meyers, Howard Snow, Billy Henderson, James Fix and John Backovitch are all members from State Branch, Cresson, who have sent pledges but who haven't elected a captain. When he is elected, send in his name, fellows, and we will send him the official Junior Patrol black and orange armband.

Now, here's a new letter from Bob Sipe, of 556 Tenth avenue, New Brighton, Pa. He says:

"Please send me a button and a membership card. We have a patrol at school. There are two boys on each corner holding a flag. We let the girls and boys pass and stop the cars and sometimes we stop the children. Tell the Junior Patrol fellows to ask their teacher to have a patrol like we have. When you send my button and card I am going to have a club with at least 10 members. Tell me what station you come over on Wednesdays."

In other words, Bob, you have a safety patrol at your school, and see to it that children get to and from school across the streets safely. Boy, that's a dandy, and as you say, Junior Patrol members everywhere ought to help others with a safety patrol, too.

Don't forget, Bob, that you need 10 fellows who belong to the Junior Patrol and who have signed the pledge and sent it into headquarters, before your patrol can meet and elect an official captain. The Junior Patrol program is on one of the biggest stations, WCAE. Write and tell us how you like the next broadcast.

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.

Signed ....

Date of Birth .... Address ....

School ....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR PATROL, Sun Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

GEN. BRADDOCK MORTALLY WOUNDED (1755)

French exploration along the Mississippi and tributaries was followed by French colonization aiming for a "New France," to reach from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The warfare between England and France, starting in 1689 (William of Orange and Louis XIV) and lasting almost a century, was complicated also by the adverse interests of their expanding colonies, resulting in clashes on American soil. Several of them were fought on territory of today's Pittsburgh district.

One of the bloodiest was the defeat of Braddock. He was advancing with about 1400 troops against Ft. Duquesne when he was ambushed where Braddock Borough stands by the French and Indians. Most of his men were killed and he was mortally wounded. Young George Washington had a heroic part, saving the remainder from annihilation. Ft. Duquesne was finally taken in 1758 by the British and colonists under Gen. Forbes. A new fort was erected and named Fort Pitt. (U. S. History)

LUNAR TIDES (Gen. Science)

Newton's hypothesis about universal gravitation states that every portion of matter attracts every other portion in the universe with a force called gravitation, depending upon the masses of the bodies and their distance. Above is shown how tides are caused by the gravitational pull of the moon. The moon attracts strongest the seas nearest to it, raising their surface; at the same time it also draws the earth nearer, causing a high tide on the opposite side of the globe, too. The sun's gravitational pull causes the solar tides on earth only about 45 per cent the height of the lunar.

ALEXANDER CUTS GORDIAN KNOT

Sovereignty over Asia was prophesied by the Oracle for whomsoever should loose this knot. Alexander the Great cut it, symbolizing his ambition of conquest. Ambition, the desire for distinction, is one main spring of achievement. Great characters were molded by the desire to rule; greatest by the desire to serve. (Character Building)

ALEXANDER DEFEATING DARIUS III AT ARBELA 331 B. C.

Alexander the Great, a pupil of Aristotle, became king of Macedonia (336-323 B. C.) as a youth of 20 upon the assassination of his father, Philip II. After quelling revolts in Greece he marched eastward. Battles of Granicus (334 B. C.), Issus (333 B. C.) and Tyre mark important victories against Persia, which he finally defeated at Arbela, 331 B. C. Darius III, last king of Persia, died at the hands of his own men shortly afterward. (World History)

THE INDUCTION COIL

Induction coil is an arrangement of two coils, the primary A and secondary B in a common magnetic field. It transforms one current (primary) into another (secondary) with desired tension (voltage). The tension of the secondary current depends upon that of the primary and the number of loops in both coils. By connecting and interrupting direct current (by switch S) or by each change of flow direction of alternating current in the primary winding, there is generated a magnetic field which may be intensified by an iron core of the coil. The lines of force are shown at top in three stages. While expanding and receding, these lines cut the secondary winding, inducing in it the secondary current. (Smith: Industrial Electricity)

This is a riding plow, with one sharpened, concave, revolving steel disc set at adjustable angles to the direction of traction and to the vertical. Frame and wheels are of heavy castings, the weight being utilized to sink the disc into the soil. Disc plows develop less resistance than the share-moldboard types and can be used in hard ground where the latter wouldn't work. (Smith: Farm Machinery)

BATTERY IGNITION WITH VIBRATING COIL

Vibrating coil is an induction coil connected with a "vibrator" which automatically interrupts and reconnects the primary direct low-tension current; thus inducing high-tension current in the secondary needed for the spark. Each automobile engine cylinder has its vibrating coil, connected by the timer (revolving contact) in succession to the battery furnishing the primary current.

Above: Diagram of ignition system with vibrating coil. The magnetized iron core of the primary coil attracts the vibrator, which breaks the current at O; the magnetic field collapses, the vibrator is released and reconnects the primary current; each time high-tension current is induced in the secondary winding and spark produced in the spark plug.

The mechanical breaking system (non vibrating coil) (Pict. Ed. Oct. 11) is replacing the vibrating coil. (Moyer: Gasoline Automobile)

Improving the Allegheny

The NRA Might Well Consider the Advantages of Extending the Navigable Portion.

Limestone is being shipped in considerable quantities by barge down the Allegheny River from near Templeton to the Davison Coke and Iron Company's Neville Island plant. It is proposed to store sufficient to tide the company over if the coming of cold weather should interfere with navigation.

Templeton is near the head of navigation. The Chief of Engineers has recommended that the navigable portion of the river be extended 10 miles to East Brady by construction of one high dam or two low dams. The limestone resources in that part of the valley would seem in themselves to justify the improvement.

Congress made no appropriations for river improvements at the recent session. But the National Recovery Administration has been authorized to expend money for such purposes. The NRA might well give some thought to the improvement of the Allegheny. The work could be started at once.

Mr. Deasy's Promotion

We Are Sorry That the Genial Vice President of the P. R. R. Is to Leave Pittsburgh.

John F. Deasy, vice president of the Central Region and highest local official of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been promoted to vice president in charge of operations of the entire system. He will have his headquarters in Philadelphia.

Mr. Deasy came to Pittsburgh less than two years ago. In that short time he has made an indelible impression on the community by his geniality and his vigorous interest in the things that make for a better city. A host of friends, rejoicing in his promotion, will regret his departure.

It is a satisfaction to know that a former Pittsburgher, E. W. Smith, is to come back and assume the management of the Central Region as Mr. Deasy's successor.

Friday the Thirteenth

Joke About It If You Will, But Do Not Take the Superstition in the Least Seriously.

This is Friday, the 13th, a day that the superstitious regard with fear and trembling.

Many persons will jokingly attribute any misfortune that may befall them today to the bad effect of this combination of a traditionally unlucky day and unlucky number.

Joke about it if you will, but do not treat the silly superstition in the least seriously.

It is a sad commentary on our intelligence that so many people fear the number 13 that some of our best Pittsburgh hotels have been compelled to omit that number in numbering their floors.

The Demand for Books

Increased Leisure Necessitates the Provision of Additional Facilities for Utilizing It.

The Carnegie Library reports that while its budget is the same this year as in 1925 the demand for books has more than doubled.

Eight years ago 1,915,465 books were borrowed by readers; last year 4,270,052 were borrowed, an increase of 123 per cent.

People had more time to read last year, because of unemployment, than they had in 1925. And they are going to continue to have more leisure than formerly, because of the NRA codes shortening working hours.

Notwithstanding the increased demand for books, there is no increase, because of lack of funds, in the number available for circulation.

Some provision will have to be made for wholesome recreation for the leisure time that the workers are now going to have even after industry gets going again in full blast.

We know of no better or cheaper recreation than the reading of good books.

A Voyage to Leghorn

The Propeller Club Convention Recalls an Interesting Story of Early Pittsburgh.

We note that the Propeller Club, which is holding its annual convention in Pittsburgh this week, numbers among its delegates some deep-sea mariners, and that the club refers to the city as "the port of Pittsburgh."

This brings to mind an incident unearthed by the late William H. Stevenson while digging into the early history of the city.

In 1801 a ship built here proceeded with a cargo of Pittsburgh products down the Ohio and Mississippi and across the Atlantic to Leghorn, Italy. When the master of the vessel presented his clearance papers to the Leghorn custom house official the latter said:

"There is no such port as Pittsburgh. These papers are evidently forged. You are under arrest as a pirate."

The last deep-sea vessel whose arrival at the port of Pittsburgh was reported to Lloyds was the old Australian convict ship Success.

Rural Credit Unions

The Co-Operative Societies Authorized by the Legislature Should Benefit the Farmers.

From Harrisburg comes word that two groups of rural dwellers—one at this end of the state and the other on the eastern side of the mountains—are planning to organize credit unions, as authorized by the Legislature in an act passed at the last session.

Credit unions are designed to serve the country people in somewhat the same way as building and loan associations serve the urban dwellers. The members take shares, which may be paid for in weekly installments of from 10 to 25 cents a share. The receipts are carefully invested or may be loaned to members for purposes as varied as the purchase of fertilizer, livestock or motor trucks, the drilling of a well, or the payment of a son's or daughter's college tuition.

It is encouraging to find interest being shown in the formation of credit unions, for the experience of our building and loan associations has shown that such organizations promote thrift and furnish assistance to persons needing and deserving it but without bank credit.

"Buy now," advises Gen. Hugh Johnson, Federal Recovery Administrator. "Buy now, and help keep some member of your family on a payroll."

As applied in national economics, that sentence conveys the meaning of the "Buy Now" movement.

But there is also, as Gen. Johnson points out, domestic economy to be considered—the economics of the individual household.

"Better times," he explains, "always mean higher prices."

That is why the public buys wisely in buying NOW.

Each dollar spent puts the nation's business up a point—and the consumer benefits by current prices.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when they put butcher paper under the upper lip for nose bleed? No one writes better sob-sister stuff than Adela Rogers St. John. Gar Wood and Judge K. M. Landis look alike. I can never tell which Piccard twin is which.

George Pattullo, a Woodstock (Ont.) boy, who made good in the city. Those singing-for-supper lads at every afternoon tea. And expressing such an inquisitive delight in human activity. Few handsomer middle-aged men than Bainbridge Colby. Anyway the poor are getting accustomed to it.

One word description of Lillian Gish—feathery. They say Noel Coward fashions ribald limericks when he comes to a full stop in play-wrighting. Donn Byrne used to watch an hour-glass. There's a hiccupy name—Ichabod Gupp. The dramatic critics have certainly had to scratch this summer.

But who is it that hasn't? One of my favorite people—"Bugs" Baer. No one tries to imitate Roy Atwell's flibberty-jibberty lingual contortions. No one can. Someone wrote me today: "Why does Bobbie Clark always have McCullough in his shows?"

My answer would be: "Because Bobbie is a grand person!" I always peep in the drawn curtain cracks to see window decorators. Nobody has yet offered me brandy that wasn't Napoleon. But to be honest very few ever offered me brandy. I seem to strike most people as a lemonade man.

It was years ago and about a dozen saw it. The scene was a large hotel dining room rather late when most patrons had gone. A now celebrated American novelist wandered in quite blotto. At a table alone sat Col. Mann, publisher of Town Topics, a society magazine. The novelist staggered over, gave Col. Mann's beard a yank, and said: "That is for being such a scavenging old billy-goat." Col. Mann said nothing, but a flaming red slowly mounted and suffused his bald dome like an Italian sunset. He went to Europe next day for six months. He could not take it!

In Forty-sixth street a gray-haired fellow extended an old felt horror with stained band and limp, greasy crown. Suddenly he withdrew it and looked away quickly like a dog that has not made up its mind to wag his tail. To both of us at the precise instant came recognition. The mantle of the late John McE. Bowman seems to have fallen upon Ralph Hitz—that is as a hotel reorganizer. The only inn to remain out of the red in New York during the depression Hitz directed. He also took over five bankrupt taverns in other cities and made them pay dividends. His method seems simple. He merely cut out de luxe fuddy-duddy and tuned in with the times.

Consider sitters on one leg! Harry Lauder's one. Charles Laughton, English actor, another. Among friends, their left legs twist under. Lord Northcliffe sat on one leg and munched peanut brittle during conferences. England's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Philip Snowden, indulges the same twirl. So does Col. Joseph Hartfield, international lawyer, as did the late Myron T. Herrick. O, yes, Marlene Dietrich sits on one—er, limb or whatever they are these days.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Mary Roberts Rinehart says we should have Women Vigilantes—the idea being to start nation-wide organizations of voluntary women workers to ferret out crime and report criminals.

Now, I have the greatest respect for Mrs. Rinehart as a writer, but, personally, I wouldn't give a nickel for that Female Vigilante notion of hers.

Vigilantes, of course, are no innovation. They went into action in the bad old days of the "wild and woolly West." I remember some of those days. What the Vigilantes did was plenty! Some of it doesn't make pretty history. Some of it has been forgotten. But, in the main, I suspect the Vigilantes of that pioneer period did a useful and necessary job.

But those were MALE Vigilantes—operating in a MALE WORLD, from a MALE viewpoint. FEMALE Vigilantes? That's something else!

They, too, have been tried, in various cities. Fine women were enrolled — clever, intelligent women, devoted wives, noble mothers. Doubtless the personnel of such organizations represented a far higher average of personal decency than one could have found in similar organizations of men. But they didn't represent an equal amount of experience, sophistication and plain hoss sense. As a consequence, what happened?

IN PRACTICALLY EVERY CASE, SUCH ORGANIZATIONS MADE DOGGONED NUISANCES OF THEMSELVES.

With the best of motives, they committed an appalling amount of mischievous meddling, and gummed up all the civic works, with their unwarranted snooping and petty tattling. In the end, they accomplished far more evil than good by their well-meant but misguided tantrums.

So I'm strongly of the opinion that Female Vigilantes are NO GO. And, here's the reason. We women are not yet able to handle world affairs with that large, impersonal tolerance and understanding which is essential to justice. We're too personal, too stubbornly convinced that our way is the only right way.

We want to run the world as we run our homes. We want to deal out judgments as we deal out spankings to our naughty children. And IT CAN'T BE DONE.

Vice is not as easy to classify and segregate as all that; and Virtue is even harder and more questionable. There is no Pure White, no Dead Black in the human character.

Justice is not a simple matter of separating the Goats from the Sheep. It is a question of devising the best method to get along with mottled mongrels. In short, it is an everlasting compromise between the good you'd like to do, and the good you're able to do.

BUT WOMEN HAVEN'T YET LEARNED HOW TO COMPROMISE — WON'T EVEN ADMIT IT'S NECESSARY. AND WHEN THEY COME IN CONTACT WITH OUR LEGAL MACHINERY WHICH HAS, OF NECESSITY, BEEN BASED ON THAT LAW OF COMPROMISE, THEY RAISE CAIN.

The boy who wrote that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned" was wrong. There's one worse fury—and that's a militant female who thinks she's Got Something on a Police Judge.

Kipling wrote a poem about that. You know its refrain—"THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES IS MORE DEADLY THAN THE MALE!" And the reason she's more deadly, said R. K., is because she won't compromise—won't take those half-way measures which make a little progress possible—insists on a whole loaf and, if she can't get it, pulls the house down about her ears.

Female Vigilantes? Just start 'em, and within a month we'll have a national hair-pulling fracas that will make the recent World War look like a kindergarten picnic!

So there, Mary R., is what one humble admirer thinks of your cute scheme. And it's my bet, lady, that if they were ever started, you'd be one of the first to grab your portable and light out for parts unknown.

But maybe I'm wrong. And you—and you—and you—are hereby invited to tell me if I am.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Marrying for Cash

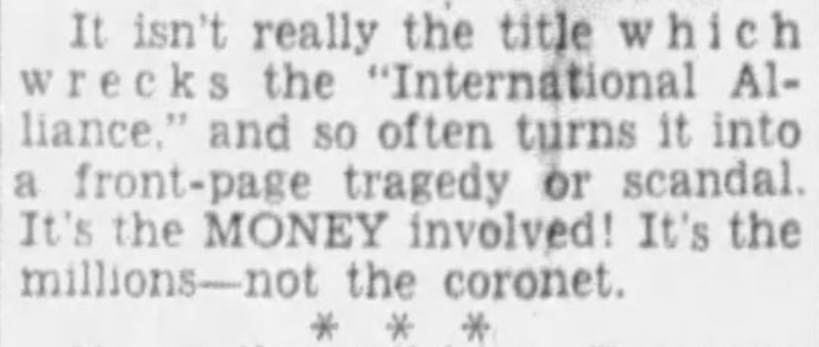
Faith Baldwin opines (in a recent newspaper article) that the title-marrying market is due for a big slump.

* * *

Well, this Country is becoming "positively stuffy" with foreign titles, and over-production is as bad for the title market as for the cotton market. But the American people are still sufficiently naive to be dazzled by the glitter of a coronet, and thrilled by crested note-paper or a ribbon across the chest. If the title-market ever crashes, it will be either because American millions have evaporated, or because the titled boys have decided that it's more fun to go to work than to take Fido for a walk.

* * *

American girls will never cease to fall for polished foreigners, who seem to know so much more about woman and the subtleties of love-making than the bluff "he-man" type of American, who regards it as "sissified" to kiss a woman's hand, but not to kiss her lips. Oh yes, those foreign dukes and princes who are cluttering up these shores may sometimes make expensive husbands, but they DO make alluring and thrilling lovers. And that's SOMETHING!



ARE YOU A REAL COUNT ?
YES !

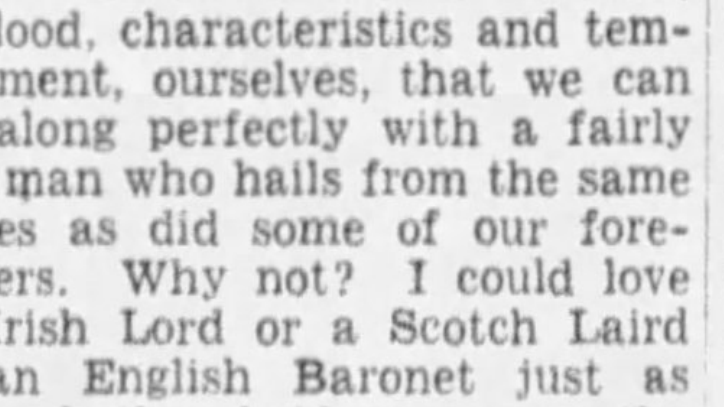
It isn't really the title which wrecks the "International Alliance," and so often turns it into a front-page tragedy or scandal. It's the MONEY involved! It's the millions—not the coronet.

* * *

No really well-born European takes his title seriously. As a young Italian explained to me, if a count in Italy has twelve sons, they are ALL "counts." That count-stuff means about as much over there as our "esquire" means over here. In business a title is a handicap, not an asset.

* * *

The success or failure of an international marriage, I honestly believe, depends first on the sort of man the girl chooses, and second on the nationality from which she chooses him.



IN MY COUNTRY A COUNT MEANS—WELL NOTHING

We Americans are so MIXED, in blood, characteristics and temperament, ourselves, that we can get along perfectly with a fairly nice man who hails from the same shores as did some of our forefathers. Why not? I could love an Irish Lord or a Scotch Laird or an English Baronet just as well, whether he'd even seen the White House or the Stock Exchange or not. Because it's Irish and Scotch and English blood that runs in my veins.

* * *

No—the great rock on which the average international marriage goes to smash is the CASH! Because the man who marries for cash is the kind who intends to collect it, and will insist on spending it HIS way. Whether he has a title or only a singing voice and dancing foot, he's always a dud as a husband.

* * *

A fortune-hunter is a fortune-hunter, whether he's born in America, in Europe, in Egypt or in Abyssinia. When two people make marriage a BARGAIN instead of a partnership, they practically sign an agreement, right at the altar, to hate each other for life.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you are willing to associate with those whose efforts along a certain line are of a mediocre kind, naturally you will not far excel them.

If you desire to improve you must seek the society of superiors.

To make a fair showing you will have to exert yourself to a greater extent than when you are constantly with people no better informed than yourself, but you will make advancement.

It is easy to fall into the pace of those around you; especially easy when there are no demands upon physical or mental strength.

It is a case of smooth, easy sailing along with the tide.

Not many will expend the effort to rise unless there is the incentive of superior work on the part of associates.

There is no especial glory in being a top-notcher among those who are not above ordinary in their work.

Perhaps you are guided by the old saw, "rather be a big frog in a little puddle than a little frog in a large one," but that is foolish.

How are you going to be anything else, if you have not the ambition to get into the large puddle and beat them out at their game?

Do you think those who succeed are only lucky? No; they work.

State and City Politics Halt Jobs Program

By James T. Williams, Jr.

STATE and municipal politics and politicians are one of the chief obstacles in the way of the federal government's effort to put jobless Americans to work on public projects North, East, South and West.

A flagrant example of this lamentable fact has just been dragged into the light by President Roosevelt's advisory board on public works.

Upon the recommendation of the board, the President, on June 22 last, made an emergency allotment of $400,000,000 for new construction on public roads.

New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Georgia, Illinois and California are among the 14 states that have not yet begun construction under this allotment.

Although the road projects in these 14 states have been approved by district engineers of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, the dilatoriness of state and local politicians in deciding which roads should be given priority, which of several projects should be approved and which rejected, has held up road construction from June 22 until the present time.

* * *

Thousands Are Denied Work

THIS means that thousands of unemployed citizens, urgently needing work for themselves and their dependents, have been denied work while greedy politicians fought among themselves for political plums.

Thirty-four states have begun their road construction and thousands of their citizens are now employed on these projects.

But the machinery of government in the remaining 14 states has been the target for so many political monkey-wrenches that the unemployed citizens of those states are suffering while their politicians squabble.

This is the condition of affairs that prompted President Roosevelt to take drastic action. With his approval, the Advisory Board on Public Works has served notice on these delinquent states that they may lose their allotment unless road construction is started before the New Year.

In an effort to make up for the time that has already been lost, the administration has temporarily suspended many of its regulations governing construction work on secondary roads. These are the roads which feed into the 10 federal highway systems extending from the Atlantic seaboard to the Middle West, the eight federal highway systems that cross the Mississippi River and the six federal highway systems that reach to the Pacific Coast.

It would not have been necessary to order such an unprecedented suspension of regulations, designed to insure an honest and wise expenditure of public funds, had not political greed and the petty ambitions of local politicians cheated thousands of jobless men of honest work for the last three months.

* * *

Work Must Start Before Snow Flies

THESE 14 states in which new road construction has been blocked all through the summer by the machinations of pork-barrel politicians must end this delay. They must get this work going before snow flies.

If they do not the Roosevelt administration intends to withdraw this allotment and distribute it among the other states which have made a good record.

This would mean that California, Connecticut, Georgia, Maryland, New Jersey, Illinois, Pennsylvania and the other states that are in this delinquent group would lose the $130,781,000 allotted to them.

Massachusetts, New York, Michigan, Nebraska, Washington, Texas and the other states where dirt is now flying on 10,000 miles of road construction would get the money.

When next the President calls the Governors of the several states into conference at the White House, the reorganization of their highway departments should be on the agenda for discussion.

For as long as some states permit pork-barrel politicians to control these departments, the unemployed will be denied employment and the taxpayer will see his taxes squandered.

The Fantastic Adventures of Col. E. A. Powell—His Colorful Pictures of Paris—A Sketch of Abdul Hamid

By Edwin C. Hill

PROBABLY no living American has had so many fantasic experiences and extraordinary adventures as Col. E. Alexander Powell. He was a consular officer of the United States in Asiatic Turkey during the reign of the Red Sultan, Abdul the Damned. He has been waylaid by brigands in the Apennines and captured by Bedouin tribesmen in Arabia. He has crossed the Himalayas by elephant, Western Asia by caravan, and the Sahara by six-wheeled motor car.

He was a cub reporter on the Syracuse Journal when fate set his restless feet upon trails to far places. For thirty years adventures came to him as naturally as the hours of the day and the days of the week. He tells it all in a book with a title like a bugle call: "Yonder Lies Adventure!"

A lovely, colorful picture Col. Powell paints of Paris in the early years of this century—the Sunday morning promenade in the Bois de Boulogne, with its tranquil charm, as yet unspoiled and unmarred by the honking of motor cars and the fumes of gasoline. The fashionable still clung to their horses and carriages, and in the course of a sunny Sunday morning one could see half the figures of the beau monde, as well as a good many from the demimonde.

There was James Gordon Bennett, then proprietor of the New York Herald, in a long tan coat and a high white hat, on the box of the yellow road coach that he used regularly between Paris and Versailles—Gabrielle Rejane, in a carriage drawn by four Spanish mules caparisoned in scarlet—the dapper and diminutive Count Boni de Castellane, whose pink marble palace in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne was the new wonder of the town—Sarah Bernhardt, nodding and smiling to the bravos of her countless admirers.

Pictures Paris In the Springtime

THERE, too, one could see Baron Edouard de Rothschild, burly, big-beaked and bearded, driving a pair of spanking bays to a red-wheeled phaeton; Lina Cavalieri, the reigning beauty of Paris, with her blue-black hair and scarlet mouth and dead-white face; Don Carlos, exiled pretender to the Spanish throne, accompanied by the two Great Danes which were his constant companions — the great and the near-great, the noted and the notorious, parading past in glittering display of wealth and beauty.

He pictures intoxicating Paris in the springtime, when the sun turns the domes of Les Invalides into a hemisphere of molten gold, when the Eiffel Tower lifts its loveliness into the cloudless blue, when the horse chestnuts are a bloom along the Champs Elysees, when the banks of the Seine are lined with optimistic fishermen, when the air is as soft and fragrant as a young girl's cheek and the flower venders offer bunches of purple violets for five sous!

A remarkable picture, too, that Col. Powell paints of the late Abdul Hamid, Sultan of Turkey—the Red Sultan they called him—Abdul the Damned. Twenty thousand troops lined the streets when the Red Sultan drove once a week to pray at the mosque. All foreigners were required to wear top hats and morning coats. At the Ambassador's Pavilion, in the long wait for the Sultan to appear, the eunuchs passed thick, black coffee in priceless cups of Sevres and boxes of the Sultan's own brand of cigarets.

All Parts of Empire Contribute Troops

EVERYWHERE troops — sturdy Anatolian infantrymen in blue and scarlet; foot soldiers from the Yemen, in red and yellow; Bosnians with bright green facings; Tripolitans with turbans striped like barber-poles; Turkish cavalry of the line, in caps of astrakhan; hussars in blue jackets frogged with yellow; lancers with fluttering pennants.

Promptly at midday the guns of a battery of horse-artillery began barking out of the imperial salute. The gilded gates of the palace were flung open. The brazen clangor of cavalry trumpets soared above the roll of drums. Sabers flashed in air. Rifles formed a lane of steel. Massed bands crashed into the wild and stirring strains of the Hamidieh march. From thousands of throats lifted a mighty roar.

From the palace gates came a cortege which was the Oriental procession of Alexander Powell's boyhood dreams. First marched a double-rank of palace eunuchs, gigantic Negroes in frock coats and fezzes, their white eyeballs rolling in their dark faces. A few paces behind, preceded by band of kettledrums, clattered a regiment of cavalry beneath a forest of lances. Presently the imperial carriage, gilded and crested, drawn by four superb bays, the near horses ridden by scarlet and gold postillions.

Then, amidst the gleam of steel and the flaunting colors, Powell caught a glimpse of the man with the ashen complexion, the furtive eyes and the thin, cold smile, Emperor of the Ottomans, Commander of the Faithful, Successor to the Prophet, Shadow of God—The Red Sultan, Abdul the Damned.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Morning Glory

Because the morning glory
  Blooms only for an hour
Some hearts are stirred with pity
  For this frail, lovely flower.
And to the silken blossom
  Whose beauty soon must die
Some always give the wistful,
  Brief tribute of a sigh.

But, ah! the morning glory
  That dances on the wind
Knows nothing of the noonday
  With heat intense, unkind;
For it the lark's first lyric,
  The little breeze of dawn
That rustles through the poplar
  With laughter, then is gone.

Oh, joyous morning glory,
  What blessing could surpass
Your lot, to greet the dawning
  And with the dawn to pass?
